110,000 Conscripts Kept in Service; 30,000 Occupy Forts.

4-Point Program Drafted by Duce

Lithuania Protests to Germany Against Its 'Interference.'

The Crisis Abroad.

France is moving reinforcements into the eastern frontier. Officials reported an army of 350,000 ready for emergencies.

A four-point program has been prepared by Mussolini for submission at Stresa. At the peace talks France will ask Britain and Italy to join her in a resolution strongly condemning German rearmament, it was reported.

In Vienna, Austria ousted 700 tenants of the war-time armory to make room for her troops.

In Danzig, Rudolf Hess, Adolf Hitler's personal spokesman, demanded a Nazi vote in elections Sunday.

Paris, April 5.—Highways to the German frontier were alive with troops today, streaming to new posts along the border in France's latest answer to the threat of war.

Simultaneously with the moving up of three army corps, the supreme council of national defense recommended that the last half of the present conscript class, totaling 110,000 men, be retained "temporarily" in service instead of being demobilized this month.

The government plans to bring France's military strength up to 630,000 men by April 23, when new recruits report for duty.

Decree Due Today.

The council asked the cabinet tomorrow to issue a decree legalizing retention of the present class during the current crisis. Approval of the move by the cabinet is certain.

The defense council prepared not to fix the exact duration of this extraordinary extension of conscript service, but to decide on demobilization later, when the crisis is ended.

Foreign Minister Pierre Laval and the ministers of war, air and navy told the council the action was imperative to meet the possibility of armed conflict.

While the council sat, three army corps totaling possibly 30,000 men, moved up to the German "front," reinforcing regular garrisons and extra regiments thrown into that area in the last two weeks.

The troops started at dawn, afoot, by train and in motorized columns, and by tonight there was a solid blue line from the Belgian to the Swiss borders, facing the East and busily digging in for a long "seige."

Second Line of Defense.

The units constituted the second line of defense, acting as a cover for the mobile force which already occupies the "Maginot line" of steel and concrete fortresses stretching

Lineman Falls, Is Electrocuted

Revival Efforts Fail After Worker Grabs High Voltage Wire.

Charles Eller, 34, Potomac Electric Power Co. lineman, was electrocuted yesterday by a 4,000-volt current while working on a pole at Thirty-eighth and Garrison streets northwest.

Despite fast rescue work by other men of the crew, Eller's brief contact with the high tension wire had taken his life. He was dead when lowered to the ground.

Within 30 seconds after the lineman had touched the wire other crew members had cut it, breaking the current, and were lowering his body to the ground with a rope.

Resuscitation measures were applied but failed. Eller was pronounced dead by a physician attending an emergency Hospital ambulance.

It was an instinctive gesture which cost the lineman his life. He was working on a pole when his left spur slipped. He reached out his left hand to keep his balance and grabbed the high voltage line.

Eller cried out, attracting other workers. He did not fall because his other spur held and his belt was hooked around the pole.

Members of the crew who cut the wire and lowered Eller's body from the pole included Moody Sanders, foreman, 2616 Fourth street northeast; Walter Hudson, Capital Heights, Md.; W. B. Kingrey, 612 Fifteenth street northeast; Theodore Brooks, 900 C street northeast, and Charles Black, 223 Longfellow street northwest.

He leaves his wife, Mrs. Clara Eller, and an 8-year-old son.

Teacher Bars Door Against Successor

By the Associated Press.

Globe, Ariz., April 5.—A defiant school teacher, Mrs. L. Madge Woodley, 43, who was said to have pulled her would be successor's hair, clung to her barricaded little schoolhouse tonight, but was threatened with possible arrest tomorrow.

Saying she would not "come out until I collect my pay," Mrs. Woodley cooked her evening meal in the remote Green Valley district school, and prepared to sleep in a bed she moved there.

Sam Haught, chairman of the school trustees, said Mrs. Woodley's term expired February 1, but that when Miss Opal Lee sought to take charge Mrs. Woodley threw her belongings into the school yard.

House to Place Barrier Today On War Profit

18th Anniversary of Our Entry Finds McSwain's Bill Near Vote.

Eighteen years to the day since America entered the World War, the House today is expected to pass the McSwain bill to prevent profiteering in the next war this country fights—if any. Not in many years, however, has sentiment in official circles appeared so determined to keep the United Stats out of war as on the eve of this anniversary.

As a result of the ominous thunder of war clouds over Europe, House and Senate approached today's anniversary by competing to make the terms under which another war must be fought so drastic that everyone will oppose another conflict.

Meanwhile, agitation for formulation of a rigid program to make this country's neutrality invulnerable in case war abroad again breaks out was gaining momentum on both sides of the Capitol and in Administration circles as well.

Debate on the McSwain bill probably will be in full swing at 11 minutes past 1 o'clock today when the eighteenth anniversary is reached.

Speak of "Next War."

House members spoke in terms of another conflict yesterday when they tentatively agreed to the Boileau-Truax amendment, which would forbid the use on foreign soil of conscripted American soldiers except where deemed necessary to "repel an invasion."

Speaking with his customary acrobatic gestures, Representative Truax (Democrat), of Ohio, was the first member to discuss the prospect of war abroad.

"When we know of preparations for war being made by Japan, Russia and France," he shouted, "are we going to imitate Rip Van Winkle and peacefully snooze for 20 years? Germany has as big an air force right now as Great Britain."

Gray-haired Representative McSwain, champion of the bill, indicated he would move today to have the House proper reverse the action of the committee of the whole and reject the Boileau-Truax amendment.

Observers believed the purpose of the Boileau-Truax amendment was to prevent use of drafted American troops anywhere abroad except in the Philippine Islands after their independence and in case of an invasion by Japan.

Would Bar Labor Draft.

Another important amendment approved, offered by Representative Faddis (Democrat), Pennsylvania, would specifically prohibit drafting of labor as well as soldiers and sailors in an emergency.

Faddis consented to language

Lyddane Case Action Taken By Gov. Nice

Attorney General Told to Take Charge of Investigation.

Woman Denies Knowing New Suspect; Political Angles Hinted.

Acting upon the appeal of James H. Pugh, Montgomery County prosecuting attorney, Gov. Harry W. Nice of Maryland, yesterday ordered State's Attorney General Herbert R. O'Conor to take charge of the case of Mrs. Anne Lyddane, 36-year-old blonde Rockville bank employe, charged with plotting with three men to kill her husband, Francis, 34, bookkeeper in a Bethesda liquor store.

Gov. Nice took this step when Mr. Pugh insisted Mr. O'Conor, and not an assistant, be assigned to the bizarre case. He penned an order yesterday in Annapolis, and gave it to the attorney general.

Another Suspect Held.

Washington police were still busy yesterday rounding up persons to be questioned about the alleged conspiracy.

An Alexandrian, William Brown, 27, was the latest to be taken into custody. He surrendered here last night, Detective Sergt. Robert J. Barrett announced, after being notified that the authorities were seeking him.

Brown was booked as a fugitive from justice at Metropolitan Police Headquarters and then departed with Barrett for Rockville, to be examined by Montgomery County authorities.

Four men are now in custody in the case. John Boland, Rockville bartender, is being held as a material witness, and Edwin J. Davis, another Washingtonian, is held for investigation. Mrs. Lyddane herself, charged with conspiracy, is free in custody of the lawyers.

Developments Expected.

With her co-defendants, Mrs. Lyddane is to be given a hearing in Rockville Police Court Monday. The entire City of Rockville was talking about the case yesterday, and the general feeling is that sensational developments may be expected in Monday's preliminary hearing.

Since it has been developed that until recently Mrs. Lyddane controlled the county's bonding business, interest has run high in the political ramifications of the case. Mrs. Lyddane said yesterday, under questioning, that her only affiliation with the Democratic party in the county was through her former employer, Robert Hilton, former State senator and bank president.

Conducted Bail Business.

Mr. Hilton, both Mrs. Lyddane and Maj. E. Brooke Lee, for many years Democratic leader in Montgomery County, said yesterday, had been devoting most of his time to party politics and receiving only $500 a year as salary as a legislator. Consequently, they asserted, he had been given the county bonding business as additional recognition.

When he became seriously ill two years ago, and was taken to a private sanitarium, his income was cut off and his private fortune tied up through the business crash.

At this time, they said, the Baltimore bonding company, which he represented, agreed to name Mrs. Lyddane as their representative. The understanding, however, was that she would pay an adequate part of her commissions to meet Mr. Hilton's hospital bills.

Until four months ago she continued in this work, Mrs. Lyddane asserted. Then the Fusionist Party was victorious at the polls, and the Democrats went out. Thus the bonding business was taken from Mrs. Lyddane. Since this time Mr. Hilton has been removed to a State hospital from the sanitarium.

Indignant denial that she ever had met Edwin J. Davis, Washingtonian arrested Thursday in connection with the alleged plot against her husband's life, was made yesterday by Mrs. Lyddane.

"I do not know him," she said. "I never saw him before!"

Questioned about a report that she had driven him to the home of a certain woman last November and offered him $1,500 to kill her, Mrs.

Easter Dress Funds Denied Relief Seeker

By the Associated Press.

New York, April 5.—A one-man riot occurred in a downtown relief bureau today when Morris Baron, 44, an undersized, unemployed tailor, rushed in demanding money for a new Easter dress for his wife.

"Down with home relief!" he cried. "Down with everything! Bunch of crooks!"

He made such a racket the police had to take him in custody. He was found to be suffering from hysteria.

60,000 March To Fete Army In City Today

Dern Asserts Purpose of Display Is Intended to Stress Defense.

Throughout the United States today the Army goes on parade. It is the eighteenth anniversary of the last declaration of war by the United States. Sixty thousand will march in Washington.

"It is not my conception of Army Day that its purpose is to glorify war," Secretary of War George H. Dern said last night.

"Rather, it is my view that the intent of Army Day is to focus attention on the constitutional mandate that one of the primary duties of government is to provide for the common defense."

The chief of staff, Gen. Douglas MacArthur, field leader of the Nation's land fighters, said it was a day which offered the public "special opportunity to inspect, examine and become more closely acquainted with its soldiers, both professional and civilian."

Parade, Rain or Shine.

Rain or shine, the parades will go on today. Here the weather forecast indicated rain for the early morning hours, but clear weather by 1:30 p. m., when the parade starts from New Jersey avenue and B street southeast, proceeds to Constitution avenue and continues on the avenue to Seventeenth street northwest.

Sixty thousand persons—soldiers, reserves, cadets, veterans, members of patriotic societies—are to parade. Spurring their steps will be the music of some 40 bands.

Reviewing them from a stand on Constitution avenue near Sixteenth street northwest will be Vice President Garner and Speaker of the House Byrns, as well as Cabinet officers and their wives, members of Congress, diplomats and ranking officers of the Army's general staff.

Gen. Callan Grand Marshal.

Heading the march will be Maj. Gen. Robert E. Callan, commander of the Third Corps Area, grand marshal. Behind him will come four divisions, including:

1. Army, Navy and Marine Corps units, led by Col. Kenyon A. Joyce, commander at Fort Myer.

2. National Guard and reserve units, led by Col. John W. Oehmann, commander of the District National Guard.

3. Reserve Officers Training Corps and cadet units, led by Maj. R. O. Barton.

4. Veterans and other private patriotic groups, led by Brig. Gen. William E. Horton.

Includede in the parade will be a new 750-horsepower Army pursuit airplane, mounted on a float.

Overhead, weather permitting, pilots of the General Headquarters Air Force will circle the city and then put on an aerial shown in front of the stands. Regulations prohibiting flying over the city have been lifted temporarily for the Texas Police Spring Trap On Hamilton

'Bad Man' Surrenders Meekly; Faces Death in Electric Chair.

By the United Press.

Dallas, Tex., April 5.—Raymond Hamilton, notorious killer and former partner of the late Clyde Barrow, was recaptured late today in the freight yards at Fort Worth.

The bragging little bandit, who escaped from the death cell at the Huntsville Penitentiary last July 22 while awaiting execution for murder, was captured without a fight.

Fort Worth police and the officers from the Dallas County sheriff's office surprised him as he stood in a Fort Worth freight yard and he put up his hands without hesitation.

Electric Chair Awaits Him.

He was brought immediately to Dallas where he started his criminal career as a child by stealing a playmate's toy wagon.

Officers said he would be returned to the Huntsville Penitentiary, where the electric chair awaits him.

Captured with him was a companion, who said he was Glen Allen, of Springfield, Ill.

Officers located him on information received from a 19-year-old youth who said he was Noland Alred, of Tripola, Miss. The boy was arrested in a Dallas taxicab today while allegedly carrying a note from Hamilton to a friend in West Dallas.

Hunted in Southwest.

Hamilton has been the object of an intensive search during recent weeks with Federal agents, county officers and a private manhunter on his trail.

He recently made a foray into Mississippi with an unidentified companion and held up a bank at Prentiss. Near there he deserted three women when pressed closely by pursuers. Since then he was reported in Arkansas and Texas.

He was branded the Southwest's public enemy No. 1 after he broke from the State prison death-house with four other condemned killers in July, 1934. Three of them succeeded in getting over the outside walls.

Hamilton faces prison sentences totaling 362 years as well as the electric chair sentence. He ran the gamut of crime from petty theft to murder before he was 22 years old.

His career was marked by numerous escapes from juvenile officers, city police, sheriffs, State officers, jailers and Federal agents of half a dozen States. He broke jail and prison repeatedly.

Hamilton was graduated from the ranks of petty thieves when he teamed up with the Barrow brothers, Clude and Buck, later slain by police.

German Pianist Wins Permission to Enter U.S.

New York, April 5 (AP).—Mrs. M. Chazen, pianist for Ruth Sorel Abramowitz and George Croke, exiled German ballet dancers, was released from Ellis Island tonight after the Department of Labor had overruled a local inquiry board which excluded her.

The dancers appealed from the local ruling and contended the pianist could not be replaced. The trio arrived yesterday.

The Labor Department ruling permits Mrs. Chazen to remain in the United States until June 1.

Include Negroes in Jury List, Graves Asks Alabama Judges

Governor Suggests Revision, Declares It's 'Patriotic Duty' to Heed Supreme Court Edict in Scottsboro Decision.

By the Associated Press.

Montgomery, Ala., April 5.—A revision of Alabama jury lists to include Negroes was called for today by Gov. Bibb Graves, in view of the United States Supreme Court decision in the Scottsboro case.

The Governor wrote his suggestion to circuit judges and solicitors throughout the State after receiving the official decision and included copies of it.

He also announced he would ask the Legislature, when it reconvenes April 30, for such legislation as may be necessary to cover the dumping and refilling of Alabama jury boxes from which the names of jurors are drawn.

The Supreme Court a few days ago set aside death sentences imposed on two Negro defendants in the Scottsboro attack case, holding that Negroes were "systematically" excluded from jury rolls in Jackson and Morgan Counties with infringement upon the constitutional rights of the accused.

Gov. Graves asserted this meant the names of Negroes must be placed in the jury boxes of the State.

"Holdings of the United States Supreme Court are the supreme laws of the land," the Governor declared. "Whether we like the decisions or not, it is the patriotic duty of every citizen and the sworn duty of every public officer to accept and uphold them in letter and in spirit.

"I have received the Supreme Court's decision in the Scottsboro case, holding in effect that when there is systematic exclusion of Negroes from juries, it is discrimination against the race in violation of the United States Constitution. This decision means that we must put the names of Negroes in jury boxes in every county.

"Alabama is going to observe the supreme law of America."

Saying it was unusual for the Governor to make suggestions to the judiciary on matters particularly within its own field, he asserted he felt it his duty to write "our trial judges inclosing a copy of that (Scottsboro) opinion and saying that I do not assume or in-

Tornado Strikes Texas Valley; 200 Injured, Homes Wrecked

By the Associated Press.

Eagle Pass, Tex., April 5.—The count of the injured in the storm-stricken Quemado Valley passed the 200 mark tonight as troops, sent to establish martial law, patrolled a devastated area of which 500 acres were under water.

No fatalities were reported. Everett Woolridge, at first thought to have been killed was brought here and treated for a fractured skull.

More than 80 homes were destroyed.

Tornadic winds, hail and rain damaged crops extensively.

Dr. E. F. Gates said he attended 77 injured persons and that Eagle Pass doctors had treated more than 200.

Rushed here as fast as they could be picked up and transportation arranged, the injured were treated by physicians in Eagle Pass hospitals.

A baby born at the height of the storm was exposed, with the mother, to the blinding deluge. Both were in a dangerous condition. A family of six, found pinned beneath timbers of a demolished store at Normandy, were treated for serious injuries.

A huge barn on the Teebee Spinach Farm, to which 110 Mexicans fled for refuge, collapsed. Many were injured, three seriously.

$4,880,000,000 Relief Passed With Congress Giving Roosevelt Rule

Child Denies Love for Mother As Sobbing Parent Seeks Care

Broke His Heart When She Divorced Father, He Tells Court.

A pretty, dark-haired young mother sat in a spectator's chair in District Supreme Court yesterday morning. Mrs. Helen Virginia Villapiano was fighting for the custody of her son by a previous marriage.

Her son, a blond little boy of 8, Albert J. Sardo, jr., son of an undertaker killed in an automobile accident two months ago, was on the witness stand.

His mother's lips tightened as she listened to him. She sobbed.

Her attorney, Julian Richards, asked him flatly:

"Do you love your mother, Albert?"

The little boy looked firmly at him and replied:

"No."

Supreme Court Justice Oscar R. Luhring interposed:

"When did you cease loving your mother?"

"When she left my father, and left me with a broken heart," Albert responded.

Mrs. Villapiano divorced the boy's father in Reno, Nev., and two weeks afterward married an Asbury Park, N. J., physician, Joseph Villapiano. She left the boy in the custody of his father. After the father was killed, Mrs. Villapiano moved to regain Albert, jr., who had gone to live with his paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. William Sardo, of Chevy Chase, Md.

As proof that the boy retained his affection for her, the young mother presented a number of letters to her from him. Written in large script, almost a scrawl, they were full of simple loving terms.

The boy admitted writing the notes. He looked at their phrases, "love and kisses" time and again, sketchily drawn hearts with arrows piercing them, as his mother's attorney questioned him.

"Well, I had to say something," he observed.

Then he added that his father, although divorced from his mother, had asked him to insert most of the endearing terms.

Court Queries Power of NRA Regulating Oil

By Felix Bruner.

Still another move to test the constitutionality of the NRA was started yesterday when the Federal Circuit Court of Appeals at San Francisco asked the United States Supreme Court for a ruling on validity questions arising under an oil code case.

This action tended to clinch the movement started Thursday by the Department of Justice and the Recovery Administration for a constitutional test on a case brought from the United States Circuit Court of Appeals in New York.

At the same time, NRA attempts to regulate small business were dealt another blow when the Federal Trade Commission held that the Recovery Administration has no power to enforce code provisions in connection with a company doing business wholly within a State.

In view of the impending expiration of the NRA on June 16 and the expressed desire of President Roosevelt to continue code administration, the San Francisco court sought a prompt determination of two questions, the Associated Press reported.

It asked the high court to decide:

1. Whether standards of the act under which the petroleum code is administered were "sufficiently stated in the NIRA to constitute legislation as a basis for the administrative regulation of such production."

2. Whether the attempted creation of a petroleum code under the NIRA constitutes "the exercise of a legislative function which the Congress can not delegate."

Answers to these questions would constitute a ruling on whether the Government has the power to regulate oil production. The Supreme

Lansburgh Boy Falls to Death Beneath Truck

Thomas, 12, Merchant's Son, Victim of Accident While Skating.

Thomas Lansburgh, 12, son of Mark Lansburgh, part owner of the Lansburgh Department Store, was killed late yesterday when hurled beneath the rear wheels of a large dairy truck in the 2100 block of Wisconsin avenue.

The boy, witnesses said, was on roller skates and clinging to the rear end of the heavy vehicle when the accident occurred. As the truck was proceeding along Wisconsin avenue one of young Lansburgh's skates came off, and he was thrown beneath the wheels, according to witnesses.

Driver Unaware of Mishap.

William Garver, 34, of Frederick, Md., driver of the truck, did not know the boy was behind the truck, he told police. After the accident, he continued to drive until a motorist who had seen the mishap caught up with him.

A passing motorist took young Lansburgh to Georgetown Hospital, where physicians said he had died of a fractured skull. His death is the thirty-third from accidents in the District this year.

Family Awaiting Return.

Garver was ordered to appear at a coroner's inquest today at 11:30 a. m.

"I had no idea the lad was hanging onto the truck," he told police. "I didn't even know the accident had happened."

Roosevelt Will Desert Fish, Speed Back in Next 2 Days

By the United Press.

Miami, Fla., April 5.—President Roosevelt will terminate his fishing cruise either late Sunday or early Monday and head back to Washington immediately thereafter, it was announced tonight at temporary executive offices here.

Decision to bring his sea-going holiday to an end was made today by the President in a dispatch from the yacht Nourmahal, now in Bahamas waters, to White House Secretary Marvin H. McIntyre.

Mr. Roosevelt, it was stated, would proceed to the most convenient port, aboard the destroyer Farragut, and then board his special train for the Capital.

The Farragut for the past ten days has been acting as the escort ship for the Nourmahal on a cruise that has been confined almost exclusively to the Bahamas.

Meanwhile, Mr. Roosevelt began putting affairs in shape to permit him to buckle down without delay to important Administration problems on return. For several hours this morning he worked over mail and other routine matters that were sent out in two Navy seaplanes.

The planes returned to this port several hours later with the completed work.

In his communication to McIntyre, the President reported that he had a fine cruise and that the fishing, which for several days had been poor, was now excellent.

The Nourmahal was off Little San Salvador Island, where the party in the morning will set out in small boats on an excursion for rare tropical fish to be added to the collec-

Senate Adopts Measure by 66 to 13; House Vote 317 to 70.

Silver Question Stirs Up Debate

By Robert C. Albright.

Carrying the largest money powers ever voted one man, the $4,880,000,000 works and relief bill, designed by the President to crush the depression, yesterday was whipped through both houses of Congress.

Passage came on approval of a conference report, after ten weeks of legislative rough and tumble that altered widely the text of the measure, but left substantially unrestricted the President's free hand in relief matters.

Only signatures of the Speaker of the House and the Vice President stand between the bill and the White House. An airplane dash from Washington to the Bahamas, where the President is cruising, is planned to complete action on the measure, automatically throwing into gear the vast works machinery.

News Sent to Yacht.

News of passage was flashed to the President aboard the Nourmahal last night. At the same time, word reached here that Mr. Roosevelt would end his cruise this weekend. In that event, he may decide to sign the measure upon his return.

The Senate vote—66 to 13 for passage—came about 5 p. m., after protests of silverites and others again delayed action. On the final ballot, 55 Democrats, 10 Republicans and 1 Progressive voted for the bill, while 4 Democrats and 9 Republicans voted "no."

Earlier, the House thundered 317 to 70 approval. Joining with 278 House Democrats for the measure were 29 Republicans, 7 Progressives and 3 Farmer-Laborites. Seven Democrats and 63 Republicans voted "no."

Probably never before has any one piece of legislation encountered the setbacks, controversies and intra-party friction that this measure aroused in its history-making course through Congress. Leaders breathed more easily after it passed, steeling themselves for an almost equally controversial program ahead.

For a moment it appeared the battered report would slip through the Senate unchallenged. Senator Carter Glass, of Virginia, chairman of the conferees, moved adoption, and Vice President Garner alertly pounded it through. But Senate Majority Leader Robinson called for an "aye" and "no" vote, and the brief delay gave protestants time to get the floor.

Senator Elmer Thomas (Demo-

Speculators See Holland Off Gold

Traders Pound Guilder in Fear of Devaluation.

By the United Press.

New York, April 5.—Disintegration of the European gold bloc appeared near today as the Netherlands guilder plunged sensationally in world foreign exchange markets.

Anticipating devaluation of the guilder this week-end, traders sold it heavily and the decline gained momentum as small speculators both here and abroad saw a chance for easy money and abandoned commodities and securities for a flier in foreign exchange.

Should Holland follow the lead of Belgium and devalue its currency by 28 per cent, the par of the guilder would be brought down from 68.06 cents to 49 cents. Its parity under the old American dollar was 40.20 cents.

States Object To Utility Rule By U. S. Board

Their Powers Emasculated, Commissions Tell House Committee.

By the Associated Press.

Almost a hundred changes in the utility holding company bill were urged yesterday by State utility commissions in arguing to the House Commerce Committee that the measure would encroach upon the rights of States to control utility operating companies.

The proposals were put before the committee by the National Association of Railroad and Utilities Commissioners, whose spokesmen said it represented 46 States and the District of Columbia.

Testimony by these witnesses brought the hearing into its final stages. On April 15 the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee will open its study of the Wheeler bill, similar to the Rayburn measure before the House Committee. Brief hearings are contemplated.

John E. Benton, general solicitor for the Utilities Commissioners Association, and H. Lester Hooker, chairman of its legislative committee, argued that only the relatively small "gap" of power moved interstate should be placed bodily under Federal regulation.

"The burnt child fears the fire," Benton told the committee, declaring the States did not want to suffer the same experience with utilities they did with railroads when Federal control saw State jurisdiction "become not much more than a shadow."

Hooker defended the State bodies against "inference and inuendo on the ability and effectiveness of the State commissions," and argued against abolishing the holding companies unless "it should first be conclusively demonstrated that it is not possible to regulate these holding companies."

Advance of Reds Checked in China

Loyalists' Counter-Thrusts Avert Kweiyang's Fall.

By the Associated Press.

Hongkong, April 5. — Advices reaching here today said the Communistic armies are continuing their efforts to occupy Kweiyang in Kweichow Province, but that the menace to the city was definitely averted after a vigorous counter-offensive by government troops.

Previous reports had said the Reds had moved toward Yunan.

The Communists are reported to have occupied Shifeng, but made no great progress further toward their goal. They are making a desperate attempt to reach the eastern Kweichow border and the immediate objective appeared to be Kaiyang, to the northeast of Kweiyang.

A hundred bodies were reported strewn on a battlefield betweeen Siuwan and Kweiyang, with the morale of the Communists shaken as a result of the terrible reverses suffered in the last stages of the sporadic fighting in the district around Shihfeng.

From Changteh, Hunan, the national forces of Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek pushed their anti-Communist campaign in both Hunan and Kweichow. There was heavy fighting during the last two days in northwest Hunan. Chinese reported a total of 1,500 killed and 3,000 wounded.

Chicago, April 5 (AP).—Bill Craven, colored porter, walked into the Northern Trust Co. today and tripped over a small fortune. The soft green wad sticking to his shoe turned out to be $10,000 in bills of small denominations, dropped a moment before by a woman customer. Craven pushed the money through a teller's wicket with the remark, "I found this on the floor," and was rewarded with a $50 bill.

Trade Commission - NRA Squabble; Political Parade; 'Damn' and the Boon-Dogglers.

By Raymond Clapper

Now the Federal Trade Commission has cracked down on NRA. Probably no action has given it greater pleasure because the feeling between these two agencies is only slightly more friendly than that between two strange bulldogs.

NRA asked the Federal Trade Commission to proceed against the Purity Ice Co., of Lakeland, Fla. This company, NRA said, had expanded its ice-making facilities without obtaining permission of NRA, thereby violating the ice code.

They should have known better at NRA than to carry the case to the Federal Trade Commission, but they walked in like spring lambs to slaughter. The Federal Trade Commission, after due consideration, reported that the Florida ice company was not engaged in inter-State commerce. Therefore the commission, being a Federal agency, had no jurisdiction. It refrained from adding the obvious inference, that NRA also had no business fooling around that ice plant.

* * * *

The upshot of this is that business men are still further confused. Lower courts, in numerous cases, have held NRA exceeds constitutional powers. Now a rival administrative agency in effect says the same thing. The Administration can't control the courts and it can't control the decisions of a quasi-judicial body like the Federal Trade Commission. But it could do something toward eradicating the glaring conflict between the commission and NRA. Months ago the conflict became clear. Fundamentally the two agencies are working in contradition to each other. The Federal Trade Commission's main job is to break up combinations in restraint of interstate commerce. NRA's main job is to assume the existence of such combinations, and often, where they do not exist, to encourage them—and regulate them, protect them from recalcitrant chiselers who want to cut prices.

Everybody in the Government has known this from the start. The opposing policies have brought the two agencies into sharp conflict embroidered by considerable emotional feeling on both sides.

Yet, at the end of two years of NRA, when the time has come to revise it, there is no recognition of this conflict. It the new NRA bill is passed exactly as the Administration wants it, the conflict with the Federal Trade Commission will stand just where it has been. What kind of planning is that?

Political Parade: Huey Long regards his Senate speech yesterday as the opening gun of his presidential campaign . . . Jim Farley says there won't be a third party, but some prominent Democrats are being bumped for party contributions on the argument that Roosevelt is the only hope of saving the country from Huey Long. They are playing with the slogan "Roosevelt or Chaos," recalling how well it worked for Coolidge in 1924, when the elder La Follette was rubbing the fur the wrong way . . .

It is a numerical impossibility for the Rpublicans to recapture the Senate so that even if they elected a President, they would have a divided Congress. Republicans could take every Democratic seat that is up next year, including a dozen in the South, and still they would have only 44 against 50 Democrats in the Senate . . . The Republican answer is that they could count on the Tory Democrats—men like Glass, Tydings and Byrd to join them in an unofficial coalition, and have better control of the Senate than Roosevelt has now with his huge majority . . .

This is air-castle-building time for the Republicans. They are planning regional conferences, smugly watching the Democrats scuttle their own Administration, and figuring out how Huey Long is going to put them back in the White House by dividing the Roosevelt vote. Even Ham Fish, in a frisky mood, permits himself to be offered for the nomination. Farley is for him. Some Republicans suggest a coalition ticket with an anti-Administration Democrat like Byrd as the vice presidential candidate, but don't make any bets on it . . . Postmaster General Farley says Roosevelt will be re-elected without question, so that's that . . . Frank Murphy, former Mayor of Detroit and Governor General of the Philippines, may be the Democratic candidate for Governor in Michigan next year . . . There was some talk of him running for the Senate against Couzens. That has been discouraged. Democrats do not figure they have much chance of beating Couzens. They won't beat anybody in Michigan if they don't settle their factional quarrels soon . . . Vice President Garner is sympathetic with the Democratic Tories, but he doesn't have to make speeches about it and he won't now that Senator Guffey has announced that the Democratic ticket in 1936 will be "Roosevelt and Garner."

* * * *

Only one "damn" survived out the blue streak which Harry Hopkins let out against the critics of New York white collar relief. He said they were "too damned dumb" to appreciate the finer things of life. Charles Curtis, as vice presidential candidate in 1928, squelched a heckler with the same phrase, and it's still good. . . . Boon-doggling is a new word in the New Deal vocabulary. It means making gadgets like leather belts, weaving baskets, and other handicraft work such as is done by boys and girls in summer camps. They are boon-doggles, and when you make them you boon-doggle. It is an old folk term, origin obscure. In New York, white collar unemployed who are unable to swing picks and shovels are boon-doggling, dancing eurythmically and conducting scientific researches. The scientist, the teacher, the architect and the barefoot-dancing instructor have to line up in these times with the hod carrier and the ditch digger, all victims of a common calamity.

Income Taxes For This Area Up $3,624,793

Maryland and Capital Are Listed in Increase; A.F.L. Pessimistic.

While the Treasury Department made public yesterday figures showing that income taxes paid in every State showed an increase in March, and that the total increase for the Nation was 40 per cent, the American Federation of Labor issued a gloomy forecast of business conditions.

Seven districts, the Treasury Department revealed, increased their tax collections more than $3,000,000 and 13 showed increases of more than 70 per cent. The Maryland-District of Columbia territory was in the $3,000,000 increase class, showing a gain of 61 per cent.

Offsetting these signs of business increase, William Green, Federation of Labor president, in his monthly employment statement, said that the business upturn which started last fall had ended in February and that there is little hope for further employment, except on Government projects, before fall.

Production Decreases.

Production, Green said, was 17 per cent above last year in January, but it dropped to 10 per cent in February and the downward trend is continuing.

"It is clear now that we can not expect this year's spring busy season in industry to bring further progress in putting the unemployed to work," Green said.

"Whatever work is given to the 11,000,000 unemployed will be that furnished on a relief basis through the Government $4,880,000,000 program.

"When nearly one-third of our wage and small-salaried workers must either go without work or accept work on a charity basis, we may expect serious consequences to the morale of our entire Nation."

The business upturn gave employment in January to 639,000 more persons than in the same month last year, but in February the gain had dropped to 519,000.

Seasonal Gains Limited.

A survey of trade union reemployment in March showed a smaller gain than from February to March last year, Green said. Seasonal gains, he said, were limited almost entirely to manufacturing industries. Green estimated that 200,000 went back to work in factories, 10,000 on railroads, 6,000 in mines and 5,000 in agriculture.

These gains, he said, were somewhat offset by loss of 25,000 jobs in the building trades and 12,000 in trade and utilities.

For the first time in many months, the federation made no effort accurately to estimate the number of unemployed. It said such estimates would not be made again until methods of computation are revised.

While workers may not have been more prosperous, income taxpayers contributed 40 per cent more to Government revenue in March than in March of last year, the Treasury Department announced. Every income tax district, except Hawaii, showed increases. Seven districts, including the comparatively small Maryland-District of Columbia territory, showed increases of more than $3,000,000.

Incomes Show Rise.

These districts and the increases are: Third, New York, $10,492,701; Second, New York, $9,401,700; First, Illinois, $5,906,133; Michigan, $5,441,884; Maryland and District of Columbia, $3,624,793; Twenty-third Pennsylvania, $3,513,496; First Pennsylvania, $3,162,395.

Virginia showed an increase of 28 per cent, from $2,439,133 to $3,117,958.

Thirteen districts showed an increase of 70 per cent or more. They are Florida, Montana, Idaho, Kansas, Colorado, Arizona, Oklahoma, Utah, Eighth Illinois, Kentucky, Mississippi, Second Texas and Delaware. The Florida district showed the largest increase, 102 per cent, an increase from $1,462,888 to $2,957,397. The smallest increase, 5 per cent, was in Nevada.

Profiteering In Milk Industry Cited in Report

Farmers in Philadelphia Shed Underpaid, Trade Commission Finds.

Many Eastern dairy farmers are being underpaid for their milk, while distributors receive good profits, the Federal Trade Commission said in a report to Congress covering specifically the Philadelphia milkshed and the State of Connecticut. The Philadelphia milkshed includes eastern Pennsylvania, Delaware and parts of New Jersey, Maryland and West Virginia.

The commission found that while prices received by producers and paid by consumers had fluctuated widely, the profit to distributors had remained substantially the same for five years. It added that while distributors had paid large dividends, dairy farmers in many instances could not pay their taxes and interest on their mortgages.

"Surplus" Price Charged.

Underpayments to producers in 1934 were estimated at $600,000. Dealer companies, it was charged, had paid "surplus" prices for considerable quantities of milk and had resold it in fluid form at the highest prevailing prices.

Rates of return to Philadelphia dealers, it was found, ranged from 13.27 per cent down to 5.22 per cent in 1934.

$187,947 Salary Listed.

The president of the National Dairy Products Corporation, which operates in Washington and Baltimore, as well as in Philadelphia, received a salary and other compensation totaling $187,947 in 1932; $171,099 in 1933, and his salary as of September 1, 1934, was at the rate of $108,000 a year, the commission found.

Commenting on the report, W. A. Wentworth, secretary of the dairy industry committee, said that its effect has been "to indict an entire industry for the sins of a microscopic few."

"It arouses suspicion among all producers because it charges distributors, as a group, with abuses of a few unethical competitors," Wentworth said.

Leads Police a Chase, Autoist Is Fined $15

Charles L. Gear, 25, of Capital Heights, Md., was fined $15 for speeding by Judge John P. McMahon in Traffic Court yesterday when police alleged he led them a 10-block chase when they approached his car at Sixth and L streets southeast.

Gear also faces charges of operating a lottery.

Mellon Art Treasures Worth $19,010,115, Tax Board Told

By the Associated Press.

Pittsburgh, April 5.—The full list of 70 internationally known paintings which Andrew W. Mellon said he intends to place in a National Art Gallery at Washington was disclosed today at the former Treasury Secretary's income tax hearing before the board of tax appeals.

The art treasures, one of the greatest private collections in the world, were acquired at a cost of $19,010,115, according to deeds of gift which accompanied their transfer to the A. W. Mellon Educational and Charitable Trust.

They were introduced in evidence shortly before Mellon finished five days of testimony on the witness stand, and drew from Robert H. Jackson, Government counsel, a challenge that Mellon has not legally established an intention of placing the pictures or other assets of the trust into a national gallery.

Counsel for Mellon claims the financier is entitled to a refund of $139,000 on four of the masterpieces set aside for the gallery.

Frank J. Hogan, chief defense counsel, introduced a letter written by Mellon December 30, 1930, to trustees of the Mellon Trust, in connection with his gift of the Madonna and Child painting by Raphael.

In it Mellon stated:

"I have to express to you herein, without intending to limit or restrain in any manner or to any extent whatever the discretion of the trustees in the disposition of the picture for the public educational purposes for which it is intended, my wish that the painting be held by you as trustees of the trust to be transferred to the National Gallery of Art, for the use of which gallery a building to be situated in Washington is now under contemplation, if and when such a building is completed, or to some other art gallery or museum built for the Government to house the nation's objects of fine art, or, in the event of its sale, if such action is deemed advisable, that the proceeds thereof be used by the trustees of the trust for similar purposes."

At the request of Hogan, who pleaded business, the hearing was adjourned until Tuesday morning.

On June 5, 1931, Mellon had given five paintings that cost $3,241,250. It is on these only that he is demanding a deduction from his taxable income in the tax hearing now under way. The five are:

"Madonna of Alba," Raphael, $1,000,000.

"Toiler of Venus," Titian, $660,000.

"Crucifixion, with Virgin, St. John, Magdalene and Jerome," Perugino, $201,250.

"The Annunciation," Van Dyck, $517,000.

"Adoration of the Magi," Botticelli, $862,500.

On establishing the trust, Mellon presented it with the $800,000 Nicolini "Madonna," by Raphael. This was on December 30, 1930.

In March, 1932, the financier gave other paintings, which include all of the 70 now in the trust. These pictures, last to be disclosed at the hearing, are:

"A Polish Nobleman," Rembrandt, $350,000.

"Lord Phillip Wharton," Van Dyck, $250,000.

"Pope Innocent X," Velasquez, $360,000.

"St. George and the Dragon," Raphael, $747,500.

"Virgin and Child and Two Angels," Memling, $300,000.

"The Lace Maker," J. Vermeer, $400,000.

"Smiling Girl," J. Vermeer, $350,000.

"The Prince of Orange" (William of Nassau), Van Dyck, $55,000.

Ely Culbertsons Lead by 14,640 In Bridge Tilt

Seven of Eight Rubbers Won From Simses in Speedy Match.

By the Associated Press.

New York, April 5.—Mr. and Mrs. Ely Culbertson piled up a new high lead of 14,640 points today during a whirlwind session of their 150-rubber match with the P. Hal Simses.

The Culbertsons won seven of the eight rubbers played, a new record for speed in the marathon match.

Their lead, cut to 7,180 points at the start of today's session, they added 7,460 points by bidding their good hands on the nose and doubling the Simses on weak hands.

At the end of the eighty-eighth rubber the pair standings were:

	Culbertson	Sims
Advantage	14,640	....
Rubbers won today ..	7	1
Total rubbers won	50	38
Total points	78,150	63,510
Total aces held	1,046	1,062
Total kings held	1,042	1,066
Total queens held ...	1,054	1,054

Mrs. Sims, most nervous of the four players, complained about the noise in the large gallery of kibitzers, and one time admitted she was so nettled by the whispering witnesses that she failed to bid the strength of her hand at the cost of a vulnerable game.

After one hand on which he was set one at a four-spade contract, Culbertson complained.

"It's terribly hot in here," he said.

One of the best bids of the afternoon was a four heart opening declaration by Culbertson, a preemptive in their system. The Simses could have made four spades on the hand, but Ely's opening four heart bid shut them out and he made the contract.

Play resumes tomorrow at noon.

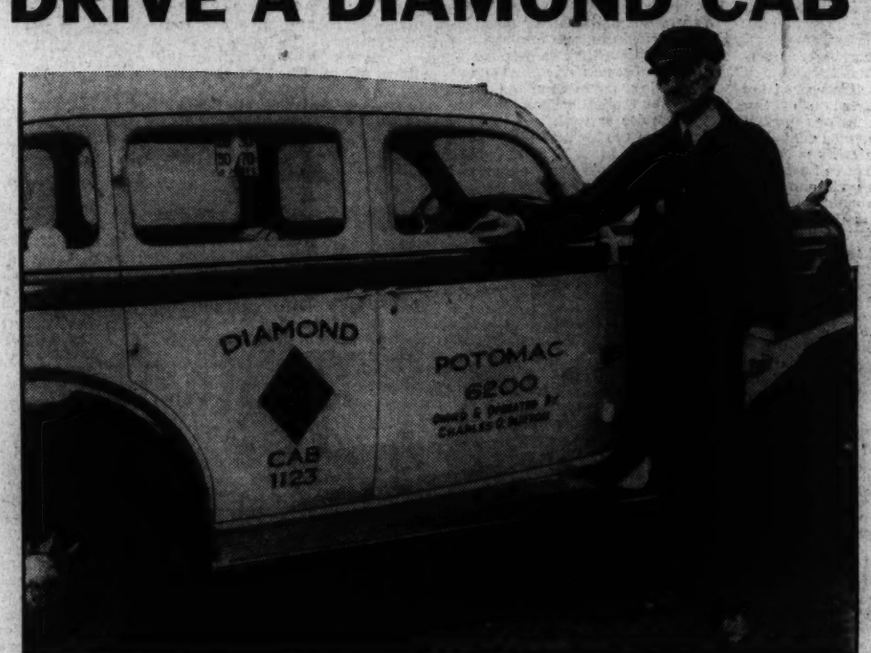
"DRIVE A DIAMOND CAB"



Recommends Frederick C. Dolcater, of 3220 17th Street Northwest

Mr. Dolcater has been driving a Diamond Cab for two years and states:

"I have attained the ripe young age of 65, 'three score and five,' and I am pursuing the vocation of a taxicab driver because of a serious illness which almost totally incapacitated me for over a year. My doctor advised me to try and earn my livelihood in the 'big-out-doors.'

"My former activities over twenty years consisted mainly of banking, auditing, sales managing and promoting.

"I feel confident that I will live to enjoy my 'Golden Wedding Anniversary' in 1946.

"During 1934, I drove a Diamond Cab 35,170 miles, around and about Washington's streets, using 2,613 gallons of gasoline to cover this distance. My records, which I personally have kept faithfully, indicate I made 9,172 trips in 1934, and hauled over 12,000 passengers to their destination without an accident or a single complaint."

Signed by Frederick C. Dolcater

IF YOU ARE UNEMPLOYED, or if you are interested in driving a Diamond Cab, the Members of the Independent Taxi Owners Association, Inc., who own and operate Diamond Cabs, maintain at their Main Office, 1735 14th Street N.W., a Student Instructor, who will assist you in getting started as a taxicab driver.

Tariff Concessions Will Be Withheld, He Warns Other Nations.

By Franklyn Waltman, Jr.

Secretary of State Cordell Hull yesterday forcefully reminded the world again that this counry will withhold tariff concessions under the reciprocal trade program from nations discriminating against American commerce.

The Secretary's attitude was expressed in a statement issued by the State Department undertaking to correct misconceptions arising from the new policy promulgated earlier in the week. In some quarters it has been inferred that Secretary Hull's new maneuver indicated an abandonment of the unconditional most-favored nation principle in international trade.

"Nothing could be farther removed from fact," the statement asserted.

Incidentally, a spokesman for the German government earlier in the week was reported as hailing Mr. Hull's new policy, contending that the American policy was one with that of Germany, which, however, is one of the countries discriminating in commercial matters against Americans.

In Accord With Principle.

Withholding from countries discriminating against the United States concessions given in treaties to other countries is wholly in accord with the unconditional most-favored-nation principle, "the very essence of which is nondiscriminatory treatment in commercial relations."

This Government's policy, which seems to have caused some concern abroad, was laid down in these words:

"This country stands ready to extend unconditionally the concessions granted in our trade agreements to all other countries which give this country nondiscriminatory treatment. Naturally no nation which favors a policy of discrimination—a policy diametrically opposed to the most-favored-nation principle—would expect, or disposed to accept, the benefits of the most-favored-nation-treatment."

Friendly Approach Is Aim.

This policy was described as "the opposite of retaliation" and as one of "respectful and friendly approach to all countries to join us in establishing equality of trade treatment throughout the world."

In this connection this Government has given the French to understand that unless they cease discriminatory action toward American products they will be denied any of the tariff concessions being granted. The matter is under discussion between Maurice Garreau-Dombasle, French commercial attache here, and Dr. Herbert Feis, economic adviser to the State Department.

A decision on whether the French will agree to negotiate a trade pact with this country and meanwhile end discriminatory actions is expected within a few days when French Ambassador Andre de Laboulaye returns from New Orleans.

Revision of Pacts Likely.

Secretary Hull also has under consideration the determination or revision of most-favored-nation agreements this country now has with Italy, Denmark and Portugal. These countries, with Germany, have regulations regarded as discriminatory against Americans. Last October the Germans gave the one-year necessary notice for the termination of our agreement with them.

The State Department pointed out the difficulties of the situation do not consist solely of a country refusing to extend to the United States lowered tariff rates accorded other nations. New forms of trade discrimination which have arisen, it was explained, include quantitative restrictions, such as import quotas and the allocation of exchange.

"In the case of these newer forms of control," the State Department explained, "this Government requires only that foreign countries shall accord our nationals fair and equitable treatment; that quota allocation shall give us such a fair share of the trade as may be indicated by a representative period prior to the institution of the control; and that the exchange allotted to this country shall similarly represent our fair share of the total provided as nearly as may be judged by a previous representative period."

Five to Compose Panel At Town Hall Lecture

Names of five panel members for the Town Hall lecture at the Hotel Shoreham tomorrow night were announced yesterday by Mrs. Richard V. Oulahan, secretary. S. Miles Bouton, foreign correspondent and author, will speak on "The Jigsawed Map of Europe."

Those who have accepted invitations to sit on the panel are Dr. Karl von Lewinski, formerly German consul general in the United States; Dr. Karl Paul Polanyi, lecturer and editor of the "Austrian Economist;" Lothrop Stoddard, writer and lecturer; Franklin Roudypush, head of one of Washington's foreign service schools, and William T. Stone, of the Foreign Policy Association.

Spring Showing Today By General Motors

The spring showing of General Motors products will open today at 1:30 p. m. at the Washington Auditorium, when District Commissioner George Allen formally opens the event. New models manufactured by General Motors, including Cadillac, La Salle, Buick, Oldsmobile, Pontiac and Chevrolet, will be on display.

Music will be furnished by Vincent Lopez and his orchestra, with A. C. Tiesemann, jr., as general chairman of arrangements. The show will be open until 10:30 tonight, and from 3:30 p. m. to 10:30 p. m. tomorrow. Next week it will be open from 10:30 a. m. to 10:30 p. m. each day.

U. S. Trade Unit Rules NRA Out In Ice Code Case

Lacks Enforcement Power Over Intrastate Firms, Says Commission.

Court in a previous decision ruled against the oil administraion, headed by Secretary of the Interior Ickes.

The case in point was an appeal from a temporary restraining order obtained against the Wilshire Oil Co. and four other producers preventing them from producing in excess of allotments fixed by Ickes.

NRA Ruled Out of Case.

The case on which the Federal Trade Commission ruled was that of the Purity Ice Co. of Lakeland, Fla. The company had sought to build an addition to its plant. Under the code by which it is governed, it must obtain NRA permission first.

The case was referred to the Federal Trade Commission, which has punitive authority over unfair business practices. The commission held that the company was not engaged in interstate commerce and that an addition to its producing capacity would not affect interstate commerce.

The ice company contended that the recovery act is unconstitutional, but the commission held that this contention need not be considered as the commission has jurisdiction only over interstate commerce.

Two of the most troublesome problems confronting NRA are involved in the ruling. The first is the question of its right to enforce code regulations against interstate concerns and the second is its relationship with the Federal Trade Commission. There has been an open feud between the two Government organizations since the organization of NRA. There is a feeling that NRA has attempted to usurp some of the duties of the commission. The commission and NRA have widely divergent views on the subject of business regulation.

The question of the extent of the power of NRA to regulate business may be settled when the Supreme Court rules in the Schechter Corporation case, which the Recovery Administration and the Justice Department are pushing. The case will test the constitutionality of the entire NRA setup. It is possible that the case will be argued early in May and a decision reached shortly afterward.

Meanwhile, labor troubles continued. Representatives of the United Textile Workers, who are protesting against an NRA order curtailing production, met for two hours with Donald R. Richberg, chairman of the Recovery Board. They asked that the textile code, the first established by NRA, be reopened and drastic revisions made.

The group calling on Richberg included Thomas F. McMahon, president; Francis J. Gorman, Horace Riviere, John Peel, William F. Kelley and William White.

Other Parleys Planned.

Richberg termed the conference "satisfactory." He said the workers had agreed to present suggestions for dealing with present emergency conditions and for constructive measures which would improve working conditions. He said the board expects to have similar conferences.

"In the meantime," he continued, "we are appealing to labor and management throughout these industries to maintain and to improve their cooperative efforts to meet the needs of the present situation with orderly and public-spirited adjustment of differences."

While Richberg was meeting with the textile workers the Labor Relations Board was notified a temporary order had been issued by the District Supreme Court restraining its decision holding the Firestone Tire & Rubber Co., of Akron, Ohio, in violation of the recovery act.

Scores Firestone Company.

"The Firestone Company does not come into court with clean hands," he said. "Because of its defiance of duly constituted governmental tribunals it has forfeited all claim for governmental protection.

"The action of the Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. in this particular case offers the strongest possible argument in support of the early enactment of the Wagner disputes bill into law."

Wagner Bill Denounced.

The Wagner bill was denounced, as a measure accomplishing the opposite of its intended purpose, in a statement by Herman Fakler, representative of the Millers National Federation, filed with the Senate Labor Committee.

"Employes," he said, "should have the right to bargain collectively without coercion, but this bill gives the employe no guarantee of freedom from coercion, restraint or interference of and by professional labor organizations and organizers."

Two representatives of small business told the Senate Finance Committee their companies were persecuted and oppressed under NRA by dominant concerns in their industries. The witnesses were Louis L. Horen, St. Louis coal dealer, and Nathan Hamburger, lawyer for a Baltimore suit manufacturing concern.

Charges of persecution were denied before the committee by Mrs. Anna Dickie Olesen, Minnesota compliance director. A representative of a Minnesota printing establishment recently testified that his concern had been persecuted. Mrs. Olesen said the company had been ordered to change its accounting system and that she had acted on instructions from Washington.

Vandals Who Looted Crashed Plane Hunted

Riverside, Calif., April 5 (AP).—Department of Justice agents, members of the Army Air Corps and police of the citrus belt region today joined in a search for vandals who looted an Army pursuit plane after it crashed near Colton yesterday when the pilot "bailed out" because of motor trouble.

March Field authorities said the ship's machine gun, radio, instruments and even parts of the wings and tail assembly were stolen. The plane was being flown by Cadet Pilot John S. Wilmartin, of Midway, Ala., who was returning with his squadron from target practice near Muroc Lake.

Alleged Slayer Faces Dangerous Operation

New Orleans, April 5 (AP).—Wracked with pain from a piece of pistol bullet resting against his brain, Hugh A. Cannon, a former race horse owner, accused of slaying two women in a boarding house how, has decided to gamble with the surgeon's knife before the State seeks to hang him.

Cannon is charged with murder. Physicians said the operation to remove the piece of steel would be delicate and dangerous. From his right eye physicians next Monday will attempt to remove the bullet speck that is gradually blinding him.

Mrs. Walker and her family moved from Wes Virginia to a farm at White Oak about ten years ago. She died Wednesday at Georgetown University oHspital following a lingering illness. Her husband, William I. Walker and a son, Warden Walker, survive.

Reed Rebuked For Attacking Administration

Kentucky Bar Association Stirred by Address of Former Senator.

By the Associated Press.

Louisville, Ky., April 5.—Former United States Senator James A. Reed's caustic denunciation of the Roosevelt Administration before the Kentucky State Bar Association last night brought an indirect rebuke from the association at its convention here today.

By a vote of 96 to 63 the association directed its commissioners to prevent politics or controversial questions from entering into future conventions.

Debate Stirred.

The Missouri Democrat, who charged that the policies of the New Deal "are all taken from Soviet Russia" and declared that "the whole colossal machinery which has been set up is tottering to its fall," was criticized and defended in heated debate on the question of rebuking him.

The members compromised by adopting a substitute resolution that did not mention Reed by name.

J. Verser Conner, Louisville, opposing the resolution, contended it would be bad "grace" to invite a speaker to address the association and then to deplore the talk after he had departed.

Remarking he was aware Reed was an invited guest, John H. Chandler, Louisville, termed him the "kind that breaks up the dishes and insults your wife." He added, "I warned them to tone Jim Reed down beforehand or he would repeat what he did to Woodrow Wilson by picking his bones while in the Senate."

Resolution Opposed.

Robert A. Friend, of Irvin, objected to the resolution, saying the association should not restrain "jackasses from braying."

Vandyke Norman, Louisville, and other attorneys raised the question of free speech and "censorship" and contended it would be improper to rebuke Reed.

County Attorney W. E. Proctor, of Morehead, offered a resolution supporting Reed for president, but was ruled out of order.

G.W.U. Committee Flays Proposed Peace Strike

The proposed student strike as a protest against war was roundly condemned yesterday by the anti-strike committee of George Washington University, an organization recently formed.

"District of Columbia students are tired of being made a cat's paw of Communism," the statement said. "We are going to do something about it. While there are only a handful of actual 'reds' within our universities and colleges here, there are many students who are being misled by these few hoodwinkers and disloyalists.

"We are 100 per cent Americans, and do not intend to allow these young rebels, directed and influenced by Moscow agents, to continue their campaign of smearing the United States Government, and its institutions and incidentally all youth who attend these colleges and universities from which red turnouts are mobilized."

Relief Billions Pass Congress By Big Margin

crat), Oklahoma, expansionist leader, questioned the elimination of his silver inflation amendment, and a debate was launched which lasted all afternoon.

With this huge outpouring of more Federal funds than now in general circulation, the President expects within the year to put to work 3,500,000 able-bodied unemployed on nearly every conceivable type of public works project. Indirect work in private plants on necessary materials is expected to employ other millions. The President predicts it will churn hesitant business again into activity and erect a new milestone on the road to recovery. Outspoken opponents of the measure, however, say it is just so much more Federal money "down a rat hole."

The President has announced he will personally direct the expenditure. Directly supervising the program, however, may be Federal Relief Administrator Hopkins, Public Works Administrator Ickes, Undersecretary of Agriculture Tugwell and Rear Admiral Christian J. Peoples, Treasury procurement chieftain. Under a conference amendment, Senate confirmation may be required for these men.

Little Time on Details.

As the measure coasted to passage, there was little discussion of such details, dwelt upon at length during more than two months of bitter debate. Senator Glass, who voted against the bill, but for his own conference report, again questioned the "wisdom" of the appropriation. The money, he said, could come from only one source—the taxpayers.

Senator Thomas wanted to know why his silver amendment was discarded in conference; Senator Bronson Cutting (Republican), New Mexico, asked why his $40,000,000 "earmarking" to keep public schools open was discarded.

Glass informed Thomas his silver amendment would have meant a certain veto for the bill. He said he fought vigorously for every other amendment, including the Cutting proposal, but was overriden.

There was a brief exchange between Glass and Cutting, the latter pointing out that a majority of Senate conferees was opposed to the bill—a charge originally made by Majority Leader Robinson.

"Customary Practice."

Glass retorted that he merely followed the "customary practice" in naming conferees from the ranking committee membership. Conferees, he insisted, were not influenced at all by their known opposition to the measure. Senator Kenneth McKellar (Democrat), of Tennessee, a supporter of the legislation, backed him in this and complimentted him on his fairness."

An hour's debate preceded the House vote. Representative James P. Buchanan, of Texas, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, was critical of Senate delay in passage. He labeled most of the Senate changes in the measure "tommyrot moonshine."

Representative John Taber (Republican), New York, the only conferee who failed to sign the report, was bitter in his condemnation of the bill. The object of the measure, he insisted, is to insure President Roosevelt's reelection.

"It's raw, raw," he said, flailing the air with his arms. "It was a bad bill when it came here, it was a bad bill when we passed it, and it is a bad bill now."

Minority Leader Bertrand H. Snell joined in the attack, and Representative Dewey Short (Republican), Missouri, called the legislation "putrid, rotten and vile."

Argument Concluded In Detroit Bank Case

Detroit, April 5 (AP).—Attorneys for both Government and defense completed their arguments today in the trial of three bankers charged with submitting false reports on the condition of the First National Bank, Detroit.

Judge Ernest A. O'Brien announced he would deliver his charge to the jury at the opening of Federal Court Saturday.

The defendants, John Ballantyne, Herbert L. Chittenden and John H. Hart, listened attentively as they were pictured alternately as principals in a plan to conceal an illegal stock speculation with the bank's funds, and as veteran bankers of highest reputation brought into court to answer an

The appeal, which Attorneys W. W. Smith and Edward M. Keating said would be placed before the Supreme Court in Washington within two weeks, will allege that authorities extorted a statement from the aged defendant in violation of the fourteenth amendement to the national Constitution.

28 Governors Invited to See Civil War Battle Reenacted

V. M. I. Cadets and U. S. Troops to Stage Sham Engagement at Chancellorsville on May 2; Roosevelt Expected to Attend.

Fredericksburg, Va., April 5.—Letters to the Governors of 28 States whose men participated in the famous battle of Chancellorsville on May 2, 1863, were sent out today inviting them to attend the reenactment of the engagement on the anniversary date next month.

The Governors are asked to bring their staffs and to be guests of the Fredericksburg Battlefield Park Association, which is arranging the event.

The reproduction of the notable battle is to be conducted by the cadets of Virginia Military Institute, representing the Confederate forces under Gen. Lee, with a detachment of 600 United States Marines from Quantico taking the part of the Union Army under Gen. Hooker. It is also planned to have a squadron of United States Cavalry from Fort Myer to depict the Southern Cavalry led by Gen. Stuart.

The sham battle is to be held in the afternoon after the cadets retrace the route taken by Gen. "Stonewall" Jackson in his daring march around Hooker's right flank, which resulted in a brilliant victory for the Southern cause, but cost Jackson's life.

Dr. Douglas S. Freeman, Richmond editor and historian, will deliver the principal address, discussing the strategy of the opposing armies.

President Franklin D. Roosevelt is expected to head the list of distinguished guests who will witness the reproduction of the battle.

In the letters of invitation to the 28 Governors, the troops of each State which figured in the battle are designated by regiments, this data having been compiled by research workers of the National Park Service, which is developing the Battlefield Memorial Park, of which Chancellorsville is a part.

Altitude of 129,000 Ft. Reached by Balloon

Moscow, April 5 (U.P.).—An automatic stratostat balloon, taking off from Leningrad in a series of such experiments, reached a height of 129,000 feet, or more than 25 miles, today, landing 125 miles from Moscow. The flight was a continuation of years of experimentation in stratosphere ascensions with miniature balloons, carrying no passengers.

What the Relief Bill Provides In Expenditure of $4,880,000,000

Outstanding provisions of the work relief bill passed yesterday are:

Appropriates $4,000,000,000 for made work and $880,000,000 to complete direct relief activities.

Makes specific allocations for highways, roads, streets, grade-crossing elimination, rural rehabilitation, irrigation, reclamation, rural electrification, housing, aid to professional and clerical persons and education, Civilian Conservation Corps, loans to States and subdivisions for non-Federal projects, reforestation, soil and coast erosion prevention, and flood control.

Permits President to transfer $800,000,000 back and forth between allocations.

Specifies $900,000,000 for loans to States and subdivisions be on a basis of 25 per cent for labor costs, with the President determining the factors.

Provides Senate confirmation of all Federal supervisory officers, and all State works administrators drawing $5,000 and more.

Requires prevailing wages be paid on permanent Federal building projects, and "security" wages elsewhere, if they do not damage the wage scale.

Permits the President to transfer works funds to AAA, for discretionary use in lieu of processing taxes.

Extends life of FERA for one year from May 12; PWA, two years from June 30; CCC, two years from March 30.

Cotton Mill at Penitentiary In Operation, Employing 175

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, Va., April 3.—The cotton mill recently installed at the State penitentiary to weave cloth for State institutions is operating at full capacity, Maj. Rice M. Youell, prison superintendent, reported today.

The mill, comprising 55 looms, provides employment for approximately 175 convicts.

The mill is used to make prison uniforms, sheeting and toweling required by the penitentiary and other State institutions. Workers in the mill also spin cotton yarn which is converted into socks and underwear in the prison knitting mill.

Eleven workshops, providing employment for a majority of the 900 convicts, are now in operation. They include woolen and knitting mills, a machine shop, furniture factory, printing shop, shoe shop, tailor shop, metal shop and a shop in which automobile license plates are made.

NRA Provisions Slow Recovery, Says Economist

Dr. Neil Carothers Urges Return to Gold Basis and Bank Reform.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, Md., April 5.—Dr. Neil Carothers, one of the organizers of the economists' national committee on monetary problems to oppose inflation of the currency, told 300 guests at the annual dinner at the Hagerstown Chamber of Commerce here tonight that all this country needed to come out of the depression is the abandonment of all the major restrictions of the NRA, abandonment of the AAA at the earliest practical moment, restoration of a sound and honest gold standard and, above all, it should abandon any notion it may have that it can squander its way into recovery.

He declared that the country is coming out of the depression and that conditions are set for recovery; that recovery is inevitable, but that it is retarded because of the uncertainty as to the future, uncertainty as to legislation interfering with business, uncertainty as to the Government's ability to swing the budget responsibility it has undertaken, and uncertainty as to the future of the banking system.

"Much of what the Government has done has been fine and absolutely necessary, but in the main the efforts to revive business and hasten recovery by interference have been harmful," he added.

"There is a reason for an optimistic view, for recovery will put an end to blind experiments. The country is still sound and all it needs is a chance for 130,000,000 people to restore normal conditions by hard work and increasing investments and new processes, development of new markets, the only means by which this country has ever recovered from depression.

"But I do believe that recovery will come before any radical inflation is possible," he said.

Presbyterians Plan Drive for Attendance

Chicago, April 5 (AP).—The Evangelism committee of the Presbyterian Church today announced a three-year program for increased attendance at the 10,000 Presbyterian Churches in the Nation and a broader religious education program at colleges and universities. Among committee members attending were Dr. William H. Foulks, Newark, N. J.; Dr. L. V. Buschman, Buffalo, N. Y., and the Rev. Willis McKelvey, Kansas City, Mo.

Nazis Intensify Drive to Clinch Danzig Victory

Hess, Hitler's Spokesman, Exhorts City; Goebbels Speaks Tonight.

By the Associated Press.

Danzig, April 5.—Rudolf Hess, Adolf Hitler's personal spokesman, stirred the Free City of Danzig tonight with an ardent speech lauding Pan-Germanism as voters made ready for elections Sunday deemed highly important to Danzig's future.

The Volkstag, lower house of the city's Parliament, consisting of 72 members, will be renewed for the sixth time since the League of Nations took over the city's guardianship after the World War.

A Nazi decision to wipe out all opposition in the lower house brought dissolution of the Volkstag last February.

Saar Vote Recalled.

Sunday's vote has acquired added significance as a result of the impetus given Germany's expansion program by her victory in the Saar plebiscite in January.

As one Nazi oratorical gun after another boomed demands for Danzig's return to the Reich, Poles, Catholics and Social Democrats expressed increasing apprehension over the outcome of Sunday's elections.

[Poland sent Vice Minister of Finance Lechnicki, a brilliant orator, to Danzig to address the Polish population and, it was reported, assure it that there would be no change at the mouth of the Vistula River and that the status of the Free City would not be affected by the election.]

Virtually everyone in the Free City heard Hess' address.

Goebbels Speaks Tonight.

Despite Hitler's assurances to Foreign Secretary Simon of Great Britain that he was willing to accept Germany's present boundaries for at least ten years, the Fuehrer has sent his most persuasive speakers to tell Danzig residents they must rejoin the Reich. Minister of Propaganda Paul Joseph Goebbels, most eloquent of them all, will wind up the campaign tomorrow night.

Hundreds of former residents of Danzig are arriving daily to vote, in special trains paid for by the Nazis.

A high semiofficial today described as "ridiculous rumor-mongering within the Polish minority" reports circulated here that Poland had protested to the Danzig senate against Goering's participation in the campaign.

It was learned from Warsaw, however, that the Polish Commissioner to Danzig had protested asserted discrimination against the Polish minority and the Polish Jews.

New Revival Urged By Bishop Mouzon

Methodism Challenged at Luray District Meeting.

By the Associated Press.

Luray, Va., April 5.—"Can Methodism do it again?" was the topic of Bishop Edward Mouzon in the principal sermon here today at the meeting of Rockingham District Methodists.

Bishop Mouzon spoke of conditions in the eighteenth century at the beginning of the great revival period and said conditions were practically the same now and that Methodism could and would bring as great a revival.

Dr. H. H. Sherman, of Front Royal, announced a series of religious schools. Dr. Herman Wilson, of Gaithersburg, Md., also spoke.

Closing the session, the church leaders took six ballots before reaching a final decision on the 14 delegates to the annual Virginia Conference in September.

McSwain Bill Set For a Vote Today

"You can amend this bill 100 times, but there is only one way to cure it; just as you cure a mad dog—kill it."

A third amendment adopted would authorize the President to close the stock and commodity exchanges during any war.

Another amendment sanctioned would delay the effective date of the measure until an actual declaration of war instead of upon declaration of an emergency "due to the imminence of war."

Price Ceiling Provided.

Perhaps the most important clause in the bill would empower the President to freeze prices at levels prevailing on the declaration of a war. Representative Wadsworth (Republican), New York, failed in an effort to have the price ceiling apply only to articles the President judged essential to prosecution of a war.

McSwain frankly discussed with the House the possibility that House and Senate conferees could get together on an amendment to provide for taxation of excess war profits.

The Senate Munitions Committee wants to obtain passage of a bill which would heavily tax all wartime incomes of more than 6 per cent of the investment and would ban salaries above $10,000 a year. McSwain reiterated his measure was considered by the Military Affairs Committee and only the Ways and Means Committee can originate taxes.

The Munitions Committee resumed its investigation of warship builders. Much of the day's testimony dealt with the Morro Castle disaster of last fall. Lawrence B. Wilder, a shipbuilder, described the vessel as a "fire trap."

from one end of the frontier to the other.

War Minister Gen. Louis Maurin announced that in addition a force of Moroccan Trailleurs had been moved from Auch to Upper Alsace, on the border, and two battalions of infantry were sent up from Narbonne to Metz.

An official explanation of the reinforcement order said reduction of recruits in recent conscript classes, due to the drop in the birth rate during the 1914-18 World War years, depleted the divisions guarding Alsace-Lorraine, necessitating drawing on units from other sections of the country.

The war office kept the exact number of men involved a secret, but at present the corps number between 5,000 and 10,000 men each. They are skeleton corps, which would be filled up quickly to 50,000 each, in event of war.

Ready for Action.

The strategic value of the maneuver, however, lay not so much in numerical strength at the moment, experts emphasized, but in the fact that these expandable corps have been moved up from the second line of defense into war-time positions between the links in the Maginot fortresses ready for instant action.

The lines of forts, regarded as the last word in defenses, were built after the war at terrific cost, and are believed impregnable. The forts are of thick concrete and steel construction, some underground, and include stout emplacements and protection for big guns, machine guns and riflemen.

Underground roads link the forts into one continuous line of steel-concrete and men.

Bulgaria Considers Rearmament

By the Associated Press.

Sofia, Bulgaria, April 5.—Reports that Bulgaria is seriously considering rearmament in the steps of Germany and Austria spread today as the supreme war council continued in a session started Monday.

An official announcement said the conference was called for the purpose of retiring generals who have passed the age limit, but the length of the session indicated more important business was being considered.

Hearing Set Today For William Rudd

Realty Official Free in Bail on Embezzling Charge.

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, April 5.—A hearing has been scheduled in police court tomorrow for William B. Rudd, 57, secretary of the Virginia real estate commission, who tonight was free under $1,000 bond after being arrested on a charge of embezzlement.

Among those summoned to the hearing are representatives of the State auditing department, which is engaged in auditing Rudd's books. A week has been spent on the audit and probably three more weeks will be required to complete it, State Auditor L. McCarthy Downs said this afternoon.

Mr. Downs said the shortages uncovered so far were "something over $500."

The audit of the secretary's records was a routine matter, Mr. Downs said, and it was only after the study was begun that the alleged embezzlement was revealed.

Removal of Hospital Doubted by Official

Staunton, Va., April 5 (AP).—Belief that the State would not favor moving the Eastern State Hospital at Williamsburg here as an addition to the Western State Hospital, was expressed today by Dr. J. S. DeJarnette, superintendent of the local institution.

He said the Williamsburg unit served a large population in that section of the State and he would recommend that it stay there. It could be moved to a farm outside the city if the Rockefeller interests make that a condition of building a hotel in Williamsburg, he said.

Il Duce Drafts 4-Point Plan Of Allied Action

Copyright, 1935, by the United Press.

London, April 5.—Premier Benito Mussolini was reported tonight to have sent Great Britain a four-point program for united action by Britain, France and Italy against German rearmament.

The proposals, to be Italy's contribution to the conference of these former allies at Stresa, northern Italy, on April 11, were said to include:

Formulation of a joint policy by Britain, France and Italy toward Germany's one-sided repudiation of the Versailles Treaty's military clauses, and the attitude of these powers toward Germany's action. It was suggested the three governments agree on tactics toward the Reich at the coming special session of the League of Nations Council.

United Front Proposed.

Examination of the possibility of a common front of the three powers at Stresa on fulfillment of the Franco-British proposals of February 3 for security in Europe—including an air alliance—taking into account the desirability of enlisting the co-operation of other interested powers.

Discussion of Austrian independence and means of safeguarding Austria's integrity.

Mussolini's proposals were believed acceptable to Britain, and official approval may be given at Monday's cabinet meeting. Earlier action might be taken, particularly if the cabinet meets tomorrow to hear Capt. Anthony Eden, lord privy seal, report on his visits to Berlin, Moscow, Warsaw and Prague.

The proposals indicated a strong Franco-Italian understanding against Germany, from which the British may attempt to remove the acerbity.

Britain's aim at both Stresa and Geneva probably will be to minimize recriminations against Germany and concentrate on efforts for a collective security system.

The fourth proposal presaged an inclination among the three powers to meet at least half-way the Austrian, Bulgarian and Hungarian requests to abolish the military restrictions in their respective treaties.

They would thus display a leniency which so far they are unwilling to grant Germany because of Hitler's abrupt unilateral action.

Meanwhile, recent conflicting reports were definitely clarified when it was revealed that Adolf Hitler had handed a written memorandum to Sir John Simon, foreign secretary, in Berlin last week proposing a 10-year non-aggression pact with the Reich's neighbors—the 10-year "war holiday" reported several days ago.

The British, however, view Hitler's offer as a step backward, since it goes less far than existing agreements, such as the League Covenant, the Kellogg anti-war pact and Locarno. The government definitely refuses to consider Hitler's scheme as a substitute for the projected Eastern Europe pact.

The cabinet foreign affairs committee is scheduled to meet tomorrow to hear Eden's personal report on his trip, which probably will be discussed at a full cabinet meeting Monday.

A spokesman summarized the results of Eden's travels as showing that "Russia and Czechoslovakia favor the Franco-British peace project of February 3, Germany is mainly negative, and Poland is assuming a midway attitude."

Music Leaders Of State Meet In Potomac, Md.

Chevy Chase Club Hostess Group at Tenth Annual Convention.

Holding their tenth annual convention, members of the Maryland Federation of Music Clubs started the two-day session with a business meeting yesterday at the Congressional Country Club, Potomac, Md.

Among many club leaders present at a banquet last evening were Mrs. Frank M. Hoadley, president of the Chevy Chase Women's Club, and Miss Gertrude Lyon, of the District Music Club. The Hostess Club, the music section of the Chevy Chase Women's Club, presented a concert after the banquet. Featured were three Chopin selections by Leah Effenbach, several numbers by the Washington String Quartet and a cantata sung by members of the Chevy Chase Club, under direction of Louis Potter.

Among representatives of Maryland music clubs were Mrs. Paul Criblet, of Towson, Md., president of the Maryland federation; Mrs. Richard Trevaskis, of Cumberland, first vice president; Mrs. Frank Rowe, Cumberland, second vice president; Mrs. Harvey Reinecker, Baltimore, recording secretary; Miss Margaret Benson, Baltimore, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Joseph Byron, Hagerstown, treasurer of the Maryland federation and president of the Capital District of the National Federation of Music Clubs.

The chairman of the hostess club, Mrs. Holland Huntington, was assisted by Mrs. Rolland Whitehurst, Mrs. C. M. Jansky, jr., Mrs Philip P. Gott and Mrs. J. J. Underwood.

Catonsville, Md., was represented by Mrs. George Mohlhenrich, Miss E. Mildred Hope, Mrs. T. P. Loweire and Mrs. John I. Rowe. Hagerstown, Md., sent Mrs. Ammon H. Krider, president of the Treble Clef Club; Mrs. J. Alvey Long, district counselor of the junior music clubs of the State federation, and Mrs. I. M. Wertz, counselor of the Hagerstown Junior Music Club, in addition to Mrs. Bryon. Mrs. S. Lua Sykes, Mrs. Robert L. Crutchfield and Mrs. Thomas L. Popp were delegates from Cumberland, Md.

The program for today is a junior program, under direction of Mrs. Frank Rowe, which will be presented at 11 a. m.

H. N. Spilman, Of Warrenton, Dies in Hospital

Former Real Estate Dealer Survived by His Wife and Brother.

Heywood North Spilman, 46, of Warrenton, Va., son of the late H. Conway and Annie North Spilman, died in Emergency Hospital, Washington, yesterday after a brief illness.

Mr. Spilman was born in Warrenton, and received his early education at Woodberry Forest, Orange. At an early age he entered the employ of the Fauquier National Bank, where he remained until he entered the real estate and insurance field in Warrenton with Maurice C. Pilsen, of Washington.

Mr. Spilman last fall married Mrs. Frances Rodgers, of Pittsburgh, who, with an only brother, Hugh A. Spilman, of Warrenton, survive him.

Mr. Spilman was a member of St. James Episcopal Church, prominent socially and affiliated with the Warrenton Hunt Club, Warrenton Country Club, the Fauquier Club and other civic and social organizations.

Funeral services will be held at the Warrenton Episcopal Church tomorrow at 3 o'clock.

W. S. Hoerner.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Chambersburg, Pa., April 5.—Funeral services will be held tomorrow for William S. Hoerner, 67, attorney and bank president, who died Wednesday at his home here.

Mr. Hoerner, president of the Farmers & Merchants Trust Co., and a former president of the Fort Loudon State Bank, broke his leg in a fall on January 1. Complications developed and he had been seriously ill for the past several months.

He was the last of his family, the nearest surviving relatives being cousins.

Although he had been blind for the last 20 years of his life, Mr. Hoerner, by reason of unusually developed powers of concentration on the spoken word and a retentive memory, had been able to carry on his law practice and administer his varied business activities. His feats of memory are almost legendary in the Franklin County courts.

Rice W. White.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Charlottesville, Va., April 5.—News has been received here of the death, in New York City, of Rice Warren White, son of the late Rev. Robb White, for years rector of Christ Episcopal Church, this city.

Mr. White joined the Georgia Hussars June 16, 1916, for duty with the Cavalry on the Mexican border. He left this command to join the Regular Army in the World War, enlisting with an engineering outfit. He went to Europe and was there transferred to the Tank Corps of the Regular Army, serving in France for the duration of the war.

Mr. White is survived by his wife. He also leaves two brothers, the Rev. Robb White, jr., of Thomasville, Ga., and Fitzhugh White, of New York City; and five sisters, Mrs. Dabney Davis, of Charleston, W. Va.; Mrs. Rice Warren, of Woodberry Forest School, at Orange; Miss Reba White, of Chicago; Mrs. W. W. May, of Washington, D. C., and Mrs. Cheshire Nash, of Savannah.

Mrs. Mary V. Shorter

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Leonardtown, Md., April 5.—Funeral services will be held tomorrow morning for Mrs. Mary Virginia Shorter, 96, who died Thursday morning at her home in Benedict.

She is survived by one son, Thomas A. Shorter, of Benedict; two daughters, Mrs. Alice Brady and Mrs. Ada Majannier, both of Washington, D. C.

Herman R. Hanna.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Staunton, Va., April 5.—The Rev. W. C. Jamison, pastor, conducted services at Hebron Presbyterian Church yesterday afternoon for Herman Robert Hanna, 43.

Mr. Hanna is survived by his wife, Mrs. Mattie Totten Hanna; eight children, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. A. Hanna, Renick, W. Va.; three sisters, Mrs. Omega Totten, Roceverte, W. Va.; Mrs. Zella Russell, Kieffer, W. Va.; Mrs. Maggie Duncan, Renick; two brothers, Louis and Mack Hanna, both of Renick.

Rudolph C. Lewis.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Cumberland, Md., April 5.—The body of Rudolph C. Lewis, 46, World War veteran, who died at Allegany Hospital from a self-inflicted wound in the head early yesterday, was taken to the home of his father, Isaac H. Lewis, Doreas, Grant County, W. Va., whence the funeral will be held tomorrow with burial in the family graveyard.

Mr. Lewis, who conducted a grocery store at Ridgeley, W. Va., opposite this city, had been in ill health. He was a member of Troop K, Sixteenth Cavalry, and was one of four brothers who served in the World War. Previously he saw service on the Mexican border.

Mr. Lewis was proprietor of a hotel at Ravensford, N. C., before locating here.

Robert H. Seabury.

By the Associated Press.

Petersburg, Va., April 5.—Robert Hamilton Seabury, 61, prominent Petersburg manufacturer and member of an old Virginia family, died at his home on Market street here late yesterday after a brief illness of pneumonia.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon at 4:30 o'clock at the grave in Blandford Cemetery.

Harvey J. Troxell.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Frederick, Md., April 5.—Harvey Jacob Troxell, 65, of Creagerstown, died at the City Hospital yesterday following an operation. He was a native of this county and had been a resident of Creagerstown for 35 years.

For 12 years he was an employe of the Western Maryland Railroad at Port Covington, Baltimore.

Besides his wife, Mrs. Emily Catherine Ramsburg Troxell, he is survived by two daughters, Miss Goldie Troxell, Hagerstown, and Mrs. Everett Stull, Creagerstown, and one son, Gordon Troxell, Creagerstown.

Funeral services will be conducted Sunday at the Creagerstown Lutheran Church.

T. J. Patterson.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Cumberland, Md., April 5.—Thomas J. Patterson, 75, who served as master electrician in the Signal Corps of the United States Army, died here yesterday. During the World War he was in charge of the aviation supply depot at Richmond, Va.

Mr. Patterson also served in the Spanish-American War and during the Philippine War he was stationed at Manila. He was later transferred to Juneau, Alaska, where he managed the laying of the first cable to Port Angeles, Wash., and sent the first message over it. Paralysis caused his retirement about 15 years ago.

Mrs. Grace Dyer - Smith to Be Buried in D. C.; Died in England.

Funeral services will be held here today for Mrs. Grace Dyer-Smith, widow of Frank Birge Smith and a former resident of Washington, who died March 23 in her home at Sevenoaks, Kent, England.

The services will be held at 2 p. m. from the residence of Mrs. Dyer-Smith's niece, Miss Quincy Smith, 3110 Woodland drive. Burial will be in Oak Hill Cemetery here.

Mrs. Dyer-Smith had lived in Washington since girlhood, until she moved to England eight years ago to be near her son, P. S. Dyer-Smith, of Hildenborough, Kent, England, who is in business there. She was 79 years old. Death was attributed to a heart attack.

Mrs. Dyer-Smith was the daughter of the late Col. George W. Dyer and Mary K. Dyer, originally of Calais, Me. She leaves, besides her son, a sister, Emily Dyer, of Ventnor, N. J., and two brothers, Frank L. Dyer, also of Ventnor, and Leonard H. Dyer, of Campobello, New Brunswick.

Mr. Dyer-Smith and his eldest daughter, Barbara, are coming to Washington for the services. Friends have been requested to omit flowers.

Locatelli Dies Of Pneumonia; Noted Cardinal

Pope Pius' First Selection to Sacred College Was Vatican Diplomat.

By the Associated Press.

Rome, April 5.—Achille Cardinal Locatelli, first of the sacred college to be created by Pope Pius XI, died tonight of pneumonia. He was 79 years old.

The disease swiftly seized the aged churchman. Yesterday he attended the public consistory. He was stricken immediately afterward.

Cardinal Locatelli passed almost 40 years in the diplomatic service of the Vatican and had represented the Pope in nine countries.

Native of Seregno.

He was born in Seregno, in the Milan diocese, and studied in the seminary of Monza and the Roman seminary. He was ordained to the priesthood in 1880 and entered the Academy of Ecclesiastical Nobles in Rome. In 1884 he was nominated the secret chamberlain to Pope Leo XIII and was sent to Spain as a sublegate. Two years later he went to Monaco as auditor of the nunciature. Then he went to Brussels, Paris and Vienna.

In 1899 he became an attache to Pope Leo's secretary of state. During this incumbency he went to Spain on the occasion of King Alfonso's marriage, bearing papal gifts.

In 1906, under the papal reign of Pius X, Locatelli became a titular archbishop and was sent to Buenos Aires as internuncio. He remained there ten years, then went to Brussels as internuncio for Belgium, Holland and Luxemburg. In 1918 Pope Benedict XV appointed him apostolic nuncio to Portugal.

Early Friend of Pius.

In the first consistory of Pope Pius XI, Locatelli was elevated to the cardinalate. The Pope and Locatelli both were natives of Lombardy and were friends when the Pontiff was Mgr. Achille Ratti.

The death of the cardinal leaves the Sacred College with but 50 members, an extraordinarily low number, compared with the maximum of 70. Foreign cardinals now are in the majority.

Cooks Point Is Sold.

Cambridge, Md., April 5 (Spl.).—Cooks Point, one of the most productive agricultural and wild fowl sections of Dorchester County, has been sold to W. W. Groves, of Hills Point, by Frank du Pont, son of the late United States Senator T. Coleman du Pont, of Wilmington. The tract is in excess of 1,000 acres.

Lithuania Sends Berlin a Protest In Interference

Asks Von Neurath to Halt 'Propaganda' on Radio and in Press.

By the Associated Press.

The note, sent to Foreign Minister Konstantin von Neurath, asked Germany to halt press and radio propaganda against Lithuania.

It protested demonstrations before the Lithuanian Legation in Berlin and consulates throughout the Reich, also mentioning the manifestation at Tilsit in East Prussia, where windows of private homes and stores were broken.

A wave of demonstrations against the Baltic country swept Germany last week after the conviction at Kaunas of 91 Nazis on charges of plotting to seize the former German territory of Memel, now held by Lithuania, for Germany.

Four of the Memel Nazis were sentenced to death while 67 received prison terms. They have appealed to the Lithuanian Supreme Court.

Funeral Planned For Mrs. Seeley

Former U. S. Employe Was Takoma Park Resident.

After a long illness, Mrs. Maud Estelle Seeley, of 21 Denwood avenue, Takoma Park, Md., died yesterday at Sibley Hospital. She was 41, and a lifelong resident of the Washington area.

Mrs. Seeley was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse C. Johnson. She married Harold J. Seeley in 1924 shortly after resigning her position as a superintending clerk in the Treasury Department. Before entering Government service during the World War she had graduated from the old Business High School.

Survivors include her parents, her husband, a brother, Jesse C. Johnson, jr.; four sisters, Mrs. Blanche L. Thompson, Mrs. Geneva Plummer and Mrs. Dorothy V. McGowan, all of Washington, and Mrs. Jessie A. Reitnauer, of Yonkers, N. Y.

Funeral services will be conducted at the S. H. Hines funeral home, 2901 Fourteenth street northwest, Monday at 2 p. m., the Rev. Allen A. Stockdale officiating. Interment will be in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Rural Power Project Planned in Virginia

Richmond, Va., April 5 (AP).—A conference will be held by the State corporation commission and engineers tomorrow morning to initiate a nonprofit corporation to supervise construction and operation of a $7,000,000 rural electrification program for Virginia, which the Commonwealth will ask the Federal Government to finance as soon as President Roosevelt signs the $4,880,000,000 relief bill, Chairman Thomas W. Ozlin announced today.

The expansion program, designed to carry electricity to 25,000 farm homes now without it, will be based on a survey made under direction of the commission in February by Allen J. Saville and Leonard A. Blackburn, Richmond engineers. Prof. C. E. Seitz, dean of the V. P. I. School of Agricultural Engineering and an expert on rural power, cooperated in the survey.

D. C. Paves Way To Remove Car Tracks on Ninth

Street to Be Cleared North of K by Rerouting at That Intersection.

Way for abandonment of street car tracks on Ninth street, north of K street northwest, was paved yesterday by the Public Utilities Commission, which ordered construction of turns at that intersection.

Elimination of these tracks was proposed at rerouting hearings by John A. Beeler, who made a rerouting study for the commission, and Fred A. Sager, chief engineer of the commission.

At instance of civic groups, however, the commission will delay physical removal of the tracks until a thorough test has been given the new routing.

It is proposed to route over Seventh street all cars which formerly used Ninth street. Some of these would be routed directly to the wharves and others could be routed west at Seventh and K streets, to serve the Georgetown or Potomac Park areas.

The commission's order will eliminate the present straight crossover at the intersection. Another order requires construction of turns at Ninth street and Pennsylvania avenue for cars bound for the Bureau of Engraving and Printing and the Southeast area.

These cars may now be routed over the existing tracks from Eleventh and E streets to Ninth street, and south to Pennsylvania avenue. This will elminate the proposed turn at Pennsylvania avenue and Eleventh street.

Changes ordered are estimated to cost $275,000.

driving winds and the crowd surged to the other end of the hall, but the roof and walls crumbled and several were cut and bruised.

Portions of a main highway through the region were under water tonight. Five hundred acres of fertile land also was inundated.

Prisoners were hurt badly when the jail at Piedras Negras, across the border from Eagle Pass, collapsed. Among the injured was Rafael Dominguez, held for the slaying of a United States customs inspector at Del Rio last year.

Radio Tower Toppled.

It was impossible immediately to estimate the damage generally. The number of destroyed homes alone was placed tentatively at 80.

George W. Power, former editor of the Quemado Sun, received broken ribs and his face and arms were cut by hail as he lay helpless beneath fallen timber.

Normandy, a new development south of Quemado, was all but blown off the map and the damage from the rain was heavy to surrounding farms. Del Rio, 38 miles north of here, was cut off from outside communication until midmorning, with communication lines leveled by the wind.

5 Injured as Tornado Strikes in Arkansas

Joiner, Ark., April 5 (AP).—Five Negroes were injured when a tornado struck a tenant farm district a half-mile east of here this afternoon during a heavy rainfall. The Negroes were treated by a physician at their homes.

The tornado swept through an area about 100 yards long and destroyed or badly damaged three houses and several outbuildings. Several mules were killed.

A number of Negroes escaped injury by running from their homes into the field when they heard the approaching storm, Mitchell said.

Wire Electrocutes Martinsburg Man

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., April 5.—Claude Shields, 27, power company lineman, was electrocuted when he came into contact with a wire carrying 6,900 volts while at work on a pole near Dam No. 5, along the Potomac, near here this afternoon.

While climbing a pole he is believed to have stepped on an iron bar and while touching this, his head hit the wire.

Acting Coroner J. D. Smith was making a preliminary inquiry tonight but had not scheduled an inquest.

Shields had been working with the company about six years. He made his home here.

Accident Victim's Widow Loses Suit

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., April 5.—A jury in Federal Court here last night denied Mrs. Florence Keedy damages in her suit for $10,000 against Ragor Charlton, trading as Charlton Bros., in the fatal injury of her husband, C. C. Keedy, by a truck last May.

Judge W. E. Baker agreed to hear argument on a motion for a new trial.

Keedy was sweeping in front of his downtown store here when killed. The driver, Herman Wolford, said he swerved his truck and accidentally struck Keedy in an effort to avoid striking another person.

Mr. Roosevelt will return to the White House well sun-tanned and rested from his brief respite from long hours behind his desk. While he has done considerable fishing, he spent several hours of each day in complete relaxation under the awnings of the broad quarter-deck of the Nourmahal.

It was assumed that one of his first big tasks on his return to Washington would be that of putting the finishing touches to the setup he has in mind for administering the $4,880,000,000 works relief program.

Messages from McIntyre informed Mr. Roosevelt of the House action today on the works relief measure, but no reaction was forthcoming from the yacht.

Transfer of the President from the Nourmahal to the Farragut was expected to be made in the neighborhood of San Salvador or Cat Island. The destroyer, newest and fastest in the Navy, will be able to bring him to port within a few hours.

Drowning Victim Still Not Found

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Staunton, Va., April 5.—Twenty hours of almost ceaseless dragging of Middle River, in the vicinity of Fort Defiance, has failed tonight to recover the body of Charles Early, 24, drowned when the motor in his home-made boat balked last night, and the frail craft was carried over the spillway of a mill dam by swoolen, fast-moving waters.

Raymond Harner, in the boat with Early, his brother-in-law, also was carried with the capsized craft, but managed to grab a fish ladder and cling to it until assistance reached him. He was rescued without being injured. It is believed that Early struck his head in the 10-foot plunge over the spillway, probably on a rock in the river bed and was knocked unconscious.

Early, employed in Waynesboro, and Harner only recently completed the boat and had used it only a few times. The boat did not reappear for nearly an hour after the accident. The body was sighted a half mile below the dam, but the only person who saw it was unable to reach it.

Early is survived by his mother, Mrs. Florence Coffman Early, of New Hope; two sisters, Mrs. Raymond O. Harner and Mrs. Herman Padgett, of Waynesboro, and two brothers, Frank and James Early.

Says Stepfather Hit Him.

Repeatedly Albert insisted he bore his mother no love. He said he didn't think his stepfather, Dr. Villapiano, loved him. Dr. Villapiano, he said, had once struck him.

"Do you say yours prayers?" Justice Luhring asked him.

"Yes," the boy answered.

"Do you ask the Lord to bless your mother?"

"No; because I don't love her."

The two sides finished their arguments, Ringgold Hart speaking for the grandparents. Justice Luhring said he would like time to consider the case before deciding whether the mother or the grandparents shall take the boy.

The boy left the courtroom. His mother tried to attract his eye. He made no gesture of reply. She sat there weeping.

Governor to Sign 'Yellow Dog' Bill

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Cumberland, Md., April 5.—Gov. Harry W. Nice yesterday notified State Senator Robert B. Kimble, of this city, that the latter's "Yellow Dog" bill, passed by the Maryland Assembly, will be signed at 11 a. m. Saturday, April 13, with ceremonies at Annapolis to be attended by a number of national labor leaders.

Maryland is the first State to pass a duplicate of the Federal bill, although similar measures have been enacted by 14 other States. It is regarded as a potent weapon for labor groups to prevent injunctions in labor disputes, the formation of company unions and other actions termed as discriminatory against union members.

A delegation from the Allegany Trades Council here will also attend the ceremony.

Gold-Seekers Invade Rockies In New Rush for Bonanzas

By the Associated Press.

Denver, April 5.—Spring and a new gold rush have brought an army of prospectors—like bears around a honey pot—to the silver and gold stores of the rugged Rockies.

Back in the hilly country—where prospectors find adventure and sometimes wealth—they're talking tonight of the "big, new boom."

From Silver City, N. M., to the northern Montana fields about Landusky, the sourdoughs are on the tramp again, hoping to find some more of those bonanzas that gild the romantic history of the West.

For the first quarter of this year, even while the high mountain mining regions were snow clogged, miners poured $15,485,074 in yellow treasure into the mint vaults. It was an increase of 61 per cent more than the first quarter of 1934.

The rise of silver has been even more spectacular. The mint received $451,520 worth in the first quarter of this year—an increase of 81 per cent more than the same period in 1934.

In the La Plata region at Durango, where the gold rush started with a "bonanza" discovery two years ago, seven mines are operating. Twenty-two others soon will resume work when snow melts.

At Leadville, where H. A. W. Tabor and a score or more of other one-time multimillionaires made their wealth, 12 mines are operating, shipping 2,000 tons of ore a month, compared with 1,000 a year ago. Eight hundred men are working in the district, an increase of 35 per cent within a year.

In Boulder (Colo.) County, 1,500 men are working in gold mines. There are 375 mines operating, officials of the Boulder County Metal Mining Association estimated.

The United States Bureau of Mines said ore shipments from Idaho Springs, Black Hawk and Central City in the region where gold first was discovered in Colorado, have increased greatly.

In the Cripple Creek region, gold production is at the rate of $6,000,000 a year, and more money is on deposit in the bank there than at any time in the camp's history.

Gov. Nice Takes Action to Speed Lyddane Case

Orders Attorney General to Act; Political Angle in Alleged Plot Hinted.

Lyddane emphatically shook her head.

"It is a lie," she said. "I never saw Davis before in my life."

"I was very busy with election work at the time. I can account for almost every minute I spent. It would have been impossible for me to have made such a trip."

Davis, who has not been charged formally and merely is held for investigation, denied yesterday he ever had any intentions of committing murder.

"I just wanted to 'bleed' her," he said, referring to Mrs. Lyddane.

"I had no intention of killing anyone."

He was arrested in his rooming house in the 400 block of Pennsylvania avenue late Thursday night by Detective Sergts. Robert J. Barrett and Paul Ambrose and transferred to Rockville Jail.

Charge Suspect Was Paid.

Officers said Davis was given $36 by Mrs. Lyddane, and made several trips to her Rockville home.

Harry Thomas, another well-known police character, is being sought by officers. Two other men have been arrested for investigation and are being held in Rockville with no formal charges against them.

Detective John F. McAuliff, of Rockville, said yesterday that when he arrested Mrs. Lyddane she had in her possession $775.

"She offered me an explanation for this," McAuliff remarked last night.

Plaintiff Drops Power Stock Suit

Test Case Likely to Be Filed in Equity Court.

By the Associated Press.

Warrenton, Va., April 5.—The case of R. L. Pearson versus Virginia Public Service Co., a suit brought to force payment of six shares of preferred stock, came to an abrupt end today when the plaintiff, through his attorney, William H. Gaines, took a non-suit.

This action was taken after Judge J. R. H. Alexander had ruled for the motion of defense counsel to strike out the plaintiff's testimony. Counsel for the utility was Leo P. Harlow and Henry Anderson, of Alexandria, and R. A. McIntyre, of Warrenton.

The suit attracted interest because it was a test case and other stockholders were awaiting the decision. Suit will again be filed by Pearson, he announced, probably on the equity side of the court.

Hampden-Sydney Officers Elected

Student Body Picks Slate for Next Year.

Hampden-Sydney, Va., April 5. The student body of Hampden-Sydney College today elected the following officers for next year:

William Price, of Roanoke, was named president of the athletic association; Carroll McKann, Petersburg, vice president, and Robert Kincaid, Huntingdon, W. Va., secretary. Carlton Mayes, of Churchroad, was chosen head cheer leader, and Thomas Wilkinson, Kenbridge, assistant.

Student Council officers will be A. L. Jones, New Canton, president; E. C. Griffith, Hague, vice president, and Jack Bishop Washington, secretary.

Elected for the Student Christian Association were W. E. Oradoff, Albin, president; Day Carper, Lewisburg, W. Va., vice president; James Lipscomb, Bellefontaine, Miss., secretary, and J. R. Woody, Charleston, W. Va., treasurer.

Driver of Stolen Car Killed in 40-Ft. Plunge

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, April 5.—Baltimore police tonight were seeking to identify the body of a young man killed when the stolen car in which he was riding plunged from a bridge 40 feet into the Patapsco River at Elkridge near here.

There were no marks of identification on the body, that of a man about 21, 6 feet in height and dressed in a light brown suit and a white shirt. Investigation by Baltimore police showed that the automobile was stolen last night from Dr. C. C. Neese, of Wilmington, Del.

Democracy Periled, Ritchie Tells Academy

Philadelphia, Pa., April 5 (AP).—Adherence to the American "spirit and practice of self-government" was urged tonight by Albert C. Ritchie to hurl back a challenge of Fascism and Socialism.

The former Maryland Governor, leading Democrat, came here to preside at a session of the American Academy of Political and Social Science. Ritchie said that out of the recent economic upheaval had emerged definite threats of Fascism and Socialism and that the prevalence of either would defeat the "American theory of democracy."

School Closing Days Set.

Frederick, Md., April 5 (AP).—June 12 has been set as closing date for all white schools and the Lincoln High School of this county. Negro elementary schools of the county will be closed May 15. Closing day programs are being arranged by the schools.

Druggists to Meet.

Chestertown, Md., April 5 (AP). The Upper Eastern Shore district of the Maryland Fharmaceutical Association will meet here April 11 to discuss drug legislation enacted by the recent General Assembly. A sightseeing tour also is scheduled for the delegates.

60,000 to March In Washington To Honor Army

show. A hundred planes, led by Brig. Gen. H. C. Pratt, commander of the second wing o fthe headquarters force at Langley Field, Va., will take part.

A threat of efforts to disrupt the parade came yesterday from the central strike committee, a group organizing the antiwar strike in colleges and schools set for next Friday.

"We condemn the Army Day parade as a militaristic display by those forces who by arming are bringing America to the brink of a greater and more horrible world holocaust under the guise of patriotism," the group announced in a statement.

"The high school cadets and the R. O. T. C. corps at Howard and Georgetown Universities have been asked not to participate in the Army Day activities. Leaflets have been distrbiuted to such groups carrying the slogans 'don't parade today.' Efforts have likewise been made to get students to break ranks at points of mobilization."

Honor for Peace Aids.

While the parade is going on, three men who led the opposition in Congress in 1917 to America's war declaration will be honored in the Capitol. Wreaths will be placed in Statuary Hall on the busts of the late Senator Robert M. La Follette, sr., of Wisconsin, Speaker Champ Clark, of Missouri, and Representative Claude Kitchin, of North Carolina.

One of their colleagues in congressional opposition then, former Representative Jeannette Rankin, of Montana, will be present. Sons of the three men will attend. Two are Senators today, Robert M. La Follette, jr., of Wisconsin, and Bennett C. Clark, of Missouri. The other is Mills Kitchin.

Other angles of the day's activities will include public inspection of Bolling Field, according to an announcement yesterday from Maj. M. F. Scanlon, field commander.

The annual Army Day banquet will be held at 7:30 p. m. in the Mayflower Hotel, under the auspices of the Military Order of the World War. Senator Morris Sheppard, of Texas, will be the chief speaker.

In charge of parade arrangements is Maj. Edward S. Bettelheim, jr.

Fort Washington Unit Too Much in Parade

Fort Washington's full battalion of 350 men, led by Lieut. Col. James G. Ord, commander, will be in the Pennsylvania Avenue parade. The University of Maryland will send its "Pershing Rifles," a company of 40 men from the Reserve Officers Training Corps unit, led by Cadet Sergt. John Allard.

Woodside Asks Library Levy

Civic Group Approves 2-Cent Tax Proposed for Support.

The levy of a 2 cent tax in the Silver Spring (Md.) area by the Montgomery County Commissioners for the support of the Silver Spring ublic Library was indorsed by the Woodside Civic Association last night.

The association is the first to voice its sentiment on the levy of the tax since the enabling bill giving the commissioners power to set up a taxing area for this purpose was passed by the Maryland General Assembly. G. A. Billings was appointed to represent the association at meetings of the Silver Spring Library Council.

The extension of Sixteenth street is being pushed by the association with a committee composed of Ira C. Whitacre, G. A. Billings and C. E. Senseman appointed to work with neighboring organizations on the matter. County authorities will be asked to use the next available funds for this project.

A reduction of adjustment in telephone rates for the subscribers in the Silver Spring area is also being sought by the association.

The group also favors the construction of a sidewalk on Second avenue from A street to North Woodside for the use of children going back and forth to the school.

Chicago Launches War on Gambling

Police Warn Underworld Gaming Must Stop.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, April 5.—Ward on the underworld was proclaimed in earnest today.

Chief supervising captain, Daniel Gilbert, veteran crime fighter with the hammer of Thor in either hand and an established reputation as a "gang buster," assumed his duties as de facto head of the police department by attacking the richest source of illegal revenue—gambling.

He ordered the lid clamped on the gaming industry and warned it must be riveted down. His announcement spread fear of raids among the city's handbook operators, but none was immediately closed.

Gilbert was selected by Mayor Edward J. Kelly to unify the anti-crime activities of all Chicago's law enforcement branches.

Your Cue, Throttlebottom!

Such is the elegant and artistic description attributed by Harry L. Hopkins to those who fail to recognize the social values in certain New York relief projects—such as the preparation of an isothermic map of the Mediterranean basin as it was in Roman times.

Of all the unmitigated tripe dished out by members of the Administration in two highly loquacious years, this blurb by Harry, in favor of the farcical New York "white collar" work relief projects, is about the most ridiculous. That it could be seriously uttered by a responsible official of any but a comic opera government would seem incredible. It sounds more like a cue for Vice President Throttlebottom to take the stage.

Mr. Hopkins' thesis, so far as one can be detected, is that the unemployed intelligentsia must be directed by the State to projects like the study of semasiology so that they need not "sit at home and wait for their basket of groceries." Such abstruse forms of "work relief," he holds—and seemingly believes—are really preferable to direct relief.

Mr. Hopkins, of course, is completely and categorically wrong. He is wrong because anyone competent in semasiological research (yes, the word is in the dictionary) will do so on their own, provided they are at all interested and their physical needs are cared for. He is wrong, further, in his assumption that it is the function of our Government to induct its citizens into activities of this character. And he is wrong, finally, in assuming that there is either excuse, warrant, or justification for the expenditure of public funds on projects of this sort.

Close to $5,000,000,000 is now about to be turned over to the Administration for work-relief projects beside which the grotesque projects flourishing in New York may pale into insignificance. Constructive suggestions for the expenditure of this sum are in order. Why not a thorough psychoanalysis, by a committee of unemployed psychiatrists, of those responsible for FERA policies?

Vermont Snicker.

A certain Vermonter, now unhappily passed from this world, would assuredly have found some slight flicker of humor in the controversy over the naming of Washington's newest school buildings. After some deliberation, during which citizens argued fervidly pro and con, the Board of Education has decided to give official sanction to "Anacostia" as the name for the Southeast's new high school. Originally, the board had agreed to name the school for former President Coolidge. This name has now been tentatively reserved for the proposed Manor Park High School.

We must confess to a sympathy for the "Anacostia" advocates. It is not that we love the former President less, but that we love the interests of posterity more. With no thought of detracting from the particular name and fame of Mr. Coolidge, we submit that, in general, history has too often washed away the luster of certain political lights whose brilliance in the murk of the minute seemed everlasting.

There appears to be no good reason for attaching presidential cognomens to schools anyway. A school by any other name will teach as well.

Granddad Of The Forums.

An august progenitor of all the many forums and discussion groups now regularly filling every auditorium is holding court in Philadelphia. Delegations from scores of organizations from the United States and abroad are met today for the second day's session of the annual meeting of the American Academy of Political and Social Science. The general topic under consideration is "Socialism, Fascism and Democracy."

In December, 1889, when the academy was first organized, the world was a comparatively simple place. In this country, Benjamin Harrison had recently been inaugurated, choosing James G. Blaine as his Secretary of State. There was no fear of war; no world depression; no drought or crop reduction; no treaty abrogations; no monetary uncertainty; no communism; no fascism. Looking back, it must have been somewhat difficult to find things to talk about.

Today—dismally—there is no dearth of subjects. And a legion of students of public affairs the world over will turn to the next issue of the academy's Annals for a report on the discussions, it being an outstanding source-book in the study of current trends and events. For 45 years the academy has devoted itself to considerations of world problems with particular reference to the United States. It stands today as a repository of clear thought and reliable information on these highly complicated matters. Accurate, unopinionated and thorough, it plays an important part in the tactical conferences of the Nation's chart rooms.

A Test At Last.

Immediately following President Roosevelt's induction into office, Congress passed various emergency laws with little discussion or understanding of their far-reaching economic effects. Questions concerning the constitutionality of the extraordinary grants of power conferred upon the Federal authorities by various experimental recovery measures were virtually ignored except by a few individuals, looked upon with disfavor at the time as trouble-making obstructionists.

After nearly two years of experimentation with hastily conceived legislation, questions of constitutionality can not longer be thrust aside on the plea that an emergency still exists. The recovery act, which expires next June, is no longer regarded by those who seek its prolongation as a temporary measure. Meantime, numerous decisions upholding or denying the validity of various provisions of the act have been announced by the lower courts. But so far the United States Supreme Court has not had an opportunity to pass judgment upon its constitutionality. The status of the recovery act is in fact as uncertain as it was on the day of its passage.

The Administration has been patently reluctant to hasten a final test of the validity of this law, and its attitude was at least understandable so long as the legislation was regarded as temporary. With Congress now being urged to revise the law it would be inexcusable for the Government to evade a final test of its constitutionality. Congress should know how far it may go in authorizing Federal control over industry under codes of fair practice, and the extent of its right to regulate hours and wages under Federal law.

At last the Government has acknowledged this necessity, possibly because of a fear that Congress may otherwise let the recovery act expire. After dismissing its appeal from an unfavorable decision denying the constitutionality of certain provisions of the lumber code, the Government has decided to press for a speedy decision in a case involving the poultry industry. The Department of Justice maintains that the Belcher lumber case might be decided on technical grounds, which would not provide a test of the constitutionality of the recovery act. Moreover, the recovery administration is dissatisfied with the lumber code and does not wish to defend it.

Apparently the poultry case offers a more acceptable and more clear-cut issue as to the extent to which Congress may, through codes of fair practice, regulate a local business alleged to affect interstate commerce. It will also afford a rather acid test of the right of the Federal Government to regulate the wages and hours of workers whose occupations are confined to a single State.

As Donald Richberg says, it will require a series of decisions to elucidate the problems involved in the numerous codes, but the poultry case ought to clear up many of the present obscurities. Delay in securing a definition of the constitutional limits of Federal regulatory powers has already seriously hampered the enforcement of existing codes.

Apart from disaffection because of these impediments to effective administration of the recovery act, the public is becoming increasingly concerned about alleged usurpation by Congress of powers which the Constitution vested in the several States. Consequently, a speedy decision determining the validity of the recovery act will be welcomed, not only as an essential preliminary to intelligent revision of the law, but as a safeguard against an insidious undermining of political institutions based upon the Constitution.

Identify The Lobbyists.

Lobbyists are one of Senator Black's chief aversions. Even before the New Deal began distributing "recovery" funds on a wide scale the Alabaman was a tireless foe of influence racketeers. Lately he has emerged as the Senate's most persistent anti-lobbyist crusader.

A little less than a year ago the Senator was fighting for an amendment to the bill authorizing direct loans to industry through the RFC. The history of money-lending by the Government, he contended, shows that individuals who are able to command political influence obtain the benefits. He asked Congress to make it unlawful for political committeemen and other politicians to solicit funds from the RFC. Needless to say, the amendment was killed before the bill went to the White House.

Now Senator Black is making a modest effort to restrain the horde of lobbyists expected to descend upon Washington as soon as the $4,880,000,000 work-relief bill is finally enacted. His bill would require paid lobbyists who seek to influence Congress or executive officials for the benefit of individuals or corporations to register and report their compensation. Certainly that is very little to ask. It would not in any way bar lobbyists from the Capitol or the executive departments. But it would identify them as such, thus eliminating the lobbyist's pretense of being an impartial adviser.

The shortcomings of the bill are immediately apparent. Only those who lobby for pay would be required to expose their connections. Since members of Congress are the most persistent pleaders for projects in their home districts, it is too much to expect that the Black bill, if enacted, would eliminate the influence of politics in the distribution of the work-relief fund.

So far as the proposed measure goes, however, it is a constructive step. The attitude of Congress toward this very moderate attempt to keep the public works program free from insidious influences will help to define the character of the unparalleled experiment which the Administration is about to undertake.

End Of The Circle.

In every stage of the legislative process, except the initial rubber-stamping by the House, the work-relief resolution encountered a stalemate. The Senate Appropriations Committee pondered over the nebulous provisions of the measure without arriving at a clear-cut decision. The Senate found it unsatisfactory and sent it back to committee. Even after it emerged a second time the Senate debated the measure at length without finding out what it would really authorize. In conference the measure struck another dead center. Distracted congressional leaders finally arrived at a compromise which pleases no one. In this form the resolution was accepted by the House and Senate yesterday chiefly, it appears, to avoid further befuddlement and weariness.

A few weeks ago the Senate was tied into a knot by the McCarran amendment designed to compel the payment of prevailing wages on work relief projects. After a long struggle this provision was forced out by the President on the theory that work benefits should be distributed to the largest possible number of jobless breadwinners. In the last squabble before the confused legislators came to an agreement the Administration insisted, with almost complete success, that it be given authority to use this fund for projects requiring a relatively small outlay for labor.

The George amendment injected into the hodgepodge resolution during its last minutes in the Senate would authorize use of the "job-creating fund" to pay farmers for not working and for denying work to thousands of farm hands. Neither consistency nor logic seems to have had any part in the procedure. Congress went forward with its farcical performance only because the President had asked for power to spend $4,880,000,000.

As a matter of fact, no one can tell whether the amendment which caused this recent tumult is essential or not. For no one knows how the President intends to spend this fund. Congress has been debating in circles, trying to give some form to a measure that has no outline.

Crusoe's Isle.

An accusation of literary sacrilege has been launched against the latest Chilean land law. That country's minister of colonization lately decreed that the Island of Juan Fernandez shall be opened to the public use. His critics have been predicting immediate subjection of this South Pacific Eden to the tender mercies of the squatter, not to mention ultimate surrender to the civilizing influence of the real estate operator.

Now, Juan Fernandez, you need scarcely be told, was the scene of Alexander Selkirk's long and solitary exile. And Alexander Selkirk, as even the London Times egregiously reminds its erudite readers, "is thought to have been the prototype of Defoe's 'Robinson Crusoe.'"

Fortunately, however, the grief of the sentimentalists is wasted. The phrase "opened for public use" is an inexact rendering into English of the Spanish text of the decree. Chile has in mind no such desecration as that with which she is so facilely credited.

The Chilean minister of colonization, it appears, is also minister of public lands. In the present instance, this official proposes the reverse of a homestead rush; he proposes to prevent one. The Island of Juan Fernandez has been taken under federal care so that it may be preserved in its primitive condition—or, rather, restored thereto—as a national park, in some sense a memorial to Selkirk, and perhaps even as a monument to Robinson Crusoe.

No matter how little the average man may know about operating his own business, there are two things he's certain he could run perfectly: The Government, and any newspaper.

"If you'll work hard 16 hours a day the future won't worry you," some old-timer asserts. Maybe not, but the present would worry us terribly.

Imitation Pages.

From the Charleston (S. C.) News and Courier.

Whether or not a newspaper should have an editorial page is debatable. Saying things sometimes costs a newspaper money and, in the eyes of newspapers, lawyers, plumbers, manufacturers, and occasionally of preachers, the making of money is a high calling.

No reasonable person should object to the omission of an editorial page by a newspaper that compensates for it by other "features," but why do so many gazettes print an imitation of an editorial page? A page that has type set in the form of editorial matter and that is pale, meaningless, thin, dull nothing? If a newspaper sets up as "leading" why does it not lead?

Two-thirds of the newspapers in South Carolina could eliminate editorial pages and substitute "comics" (made in Chicago) for them, thereby not only saving money but notably increasing profits.

Curiously these newspapers are on the one hand afraid to say anything in their editorials and on the other afraid not to seem to say something—so they insert the imitation pages. . . .

The Post welcomes letters from its readers. All communications must be signed with the writer's name and address. Upon publication initials or pen names will be used if requested. Letters are subject to condensation, and in no case should they exceed 250 words.

April Fool?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Thank God (with all reverence) there is someone on that foolish paper you are serving with a sense of values as well as humor.

I have twice in the past six weeks tried to discontinue The Post, but The Post-Impressionist column of April 1, even without its polite comment on my old friend, Mr. Birchell, reconciles me to parting with a dime and a nickel every Friday evening to a polite little boy who tells me if I want the paper discontinued that I must write the office and tell the reason why.

The reasons, like the other articles on the old-time sales bill posted in the rural offices and country stores of Lancaster County, are too numerous to mention. Lady Isabella Howard once told me on an interesting occasion that "there are other things in life than leaving cards."

I trust the Baroness von Neurath may live long enough to acquire her British sister's social philosophy. Anyhow, I am keeping on with The Post, hoping to find continued entertainment from the right-hand column of a once famous editorial page of a great newspaper.

Southern Attitude.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A letter appearing in your paper April 2, attacking the Catholics for interfering with Mexican affairs instead of correcting the existing evils in the Negro prison camps and chain gangs of the South, has prompted me to express myself openly

Mr. Bessemer is evidently a man whose knowledge of the Southern conditions is limited to what his servant or good colored friend has told him. He might have read sentences from "Uncle Tom's Cabin" for his information. The treatment Negroes, as well as whites, receive in this "wretched South" would seem a heaven surrounded with roses, if compared with some conditions in the south of Rio Grande territory, Mexico.

Mr. Bessmer should go South and spend some time studying this condition instead of expressing himself on this imaginary subject of his. I'm a Southerner and feel frank in saying that the Negroes and whites are on much better terms there than in Washington and north of there. Mr. Bessemer thinks the South i prejudiced against the Negro. That is where he is wrong.

Generally speaking, the South "does unto others as they would have them do unto it." Mr. Bessemer would best express himself on some evils in Washington instead of looking into other people's affairs, such as he has accused the Catholics of doing. G. G. WARREN.

Washington, April 2.

The Passing Of Mr. Priest.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: There has recently passed away in Washington one who has our admiration—Edgar Priest, organist of the Washington Cathedral.

Edgar Priest came to us with unique distinction. A character dominant, direct, sincere, permeated by a gentle, human touch, with unswerving sense of loyalty, duty, accomplishment; with artist gifts and profound musicianship, he had won affection and respect. The Cathedral, through long years, has been faithfully served.

One summer when I was in England, studying and comparing church services, it was my pleasure to visit 17 cathedral towns, from the Castle-Cathedral of Durham, in the north, to Salisbury, exquisite in Gothic proportions, in the south.

This observation, casual and visible, impressed: the bishops, after passing, were given elaborate effigies of marble or bronze in the cathedrals; the organists frequently were remembered only by obscure tablets in shadow.

It would be a gracious act for those in present authority at the Cathedral to give recognition to Mr. Priest of appropriate and significant appeal. The building of a cathedral is not only from its exterior. The vibrations which linger from beautiful music, like incense in nave, choir, transepts, are a spiritual force tenderly felt, but unseen. And so Mr. Priest has given this and it will spread as the Cathedral unfolds in completion.

Still, He Likes Pictures.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I don't suppose this letter will be published, as it criticizes the newspapers—not so much the newspapers as those in the press service who are out to get pictures for the press. I like newspapers, and I like pictures, but there are some things I would not do to get them.

Saturday evening I attended a meeting in the United States Chamber of Commerce Building, where Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt was among the speakers.

Mrs. Roosevelt appeared on time, and all arose as she entered the room. She was seated for a short while before Dr. Kendall Emerson introduced her. She had barely entered upon her speech when a set of four or five press photographers came forward like a pack of hungry wolves, and from a distance of less than 8 or 10 feet, let go their bulb flashlights directly in her face from the front and side as she stood there, blinking and blinded by such uncalled-for actions!

I have never seen such discourtesy to any public speaker during my over half-century stay in this city.

Many about me appeared to be as shocked as I was. It was an indignity which I trust I may never see again. I have taken thousands of photographs, but I would never pay such a price for them.

H. B. BRADFORD.

Sorting the Archives.

Washington correspondents shed a tear for Robert D. W. Connor, who they say has the dustiest job in the New Deal. His is the task of sorting an accumulation of public documents estimated to fill 4,000,000 cubic feet of space and file the papers worth keeping in a new building specially built to house Federal archives.

Tons of documents will be thrown away by Archivist Connor, but the collection reduced in size will be more valuable for its availability and for the reason that the papers retained will be worth shelf and vault space.

In general, there are two kinds of collectors. One goes in for mass accumulation, prizing sheer, awe-inspiring bulk. The other collector strives to maintain worth-while items readily accessible. Uncle Sam is ready to change his tactics and Archivist Connor has been selected to turn the trick and raise the dust.

(Champaign-Urbana Evening Courier.)

On Drunken Driving.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In his article on "Drunken Driving" in The Post of March 27, William Lyon Phelps shows lack of exact knowledge of the subject he was discussing.

He refers to Henry Ford's support of prohibition on the ground that we are living in a machine age and adds "the moment one steps out of one's house one is in danger of death or accident," persumably from drunken drivers. The record of 1934 shows that 33,000 persons were killed in accidents in the home and almost the same number in automobile accidents on the streets and highways. Therefore, one is in just as much danger from accidental death in his own home as on the streets or highways, notwithstanding Mr. Phelps' inference that the drunken drivers are a terrible menace to public safety.

We can all agree with Mr. Phelps that the drunken driver should be severely punished.

There is a very persistent prohibition propaganda that drunken driving has greatly increased deaths from automobile accidents since the repeal of the eighteenth amendment. This propaganda is refuted by the United States Census Bureau records, which show that in 86 cities having a population each of 100,000 or more, and a combined population in excess of 37,000,000, there were 8,984 deaths from automobile accidents in 1930, 9,120 in 1931, 8,001 in 1932, 8,215 in 1933 and 9,042 in 1934. The 1934 death record is lower than that of 1931, and only slightly higher than that of 1930.

With reference to Henry Ford, there appeared in the Pictorial Review of September, 1929, an article under his name, entitled, "Let Prohibition Begin at Home." In this article Mr. Ford said: "For myself, if booze ever comes back to the United States, I am through manufacturing. I wouldn't be bothered with the problem of handling over 200,000 men and trying to pay them wages which the saloons would take away from them. I wouldn't be interested in putting automobiles into the hands of a generation soggy with drink."

Following repeal, Mr. Ford did not quit manufacturing. Instead he increased the speed of his cars to 85 miles an hour and all other manufacturers followed suit. Notwithstanding the greatly increased potential speed of automobiles and repeal of the eighteenth amendment, there has been no increase in accidental deaths from automobiles so far as the Census Bureau records have been compiled.

In fact, in most of the large cities the number of persons killed in automobile accidents from 1928 to 1931, inclusive, was much higher than in 1934.

The record of Detroit, Mr. Ford's home city, is especially interesting. It shows that fewer persons were killed from automobile accidents in 1934 than in any of the preceding ten years. The number killed in 1934 was 320; in 1933, 327; in 1932, 334; in 1931, 386; in 1930, 404; in 1929, 405; in 1928, 379; in 1927, 419; in 1926, 425; in 1925, 375; in 1924, 332.

What They Believed.

Post Office, Saturday.

"HITLER and Stalin must retreat from the front page"—so Mr. Grover W. Ayers writes us—"when the Free-Thinkers of America, Inc., sue New York's Trinity Church for alleged fraud because, they say, that church sells cards falsely representing George Washington as a fervent Christian."

We should think so! This legal action raises a mighty flock of questions.

* * *

There is the new question of how such lovers of freedom as free-thinkers can ever bear the restraint of incorporation.

There is the old question why free-thinkers so seldom want anybody to be free to think any way except the way free-thinkers think.

There is the broad question of the religious opinions of all America's founding-fathers: already a lot of unincorporated free-thinkers are making free with that question . . .

And there is, to be sure, the general question of whether indeed Washington was a hypocrite.

* * *

Anent the third of these inquiries, Mr. Ayers continues:

"Several years ago, when I was doing some research work on the life and times of Washington, I consulted the authorities of the Library of Congress concerning the creeds of the Signers of the Declaration of Independence. The best account of the Signers' religious affiliations I found in the Magazine of History, Vol. XXIX (1926), Extra Number 113-116. Interested readers should also consult The Religious Background of American Culture, by T. C. Hall (Little Brown & Co., 1930). I attach a memorandum from the Library."

* * *

MEMORANDUM.

To the Librarian of Congress:

From Supt. of Reading Room.

Request of Mr. G. W. Ayers, 1800 K Street Northwest.

Subject: Whether any of the Signers of the Declaration of Independence were atheists, agnostics, or deists . . .

Episcopalian	34
Congregationalists	13
Presbyterian	6
Baptist	1
Quaker	1
Catholic	1

Several of the Signers, however, had fairly liberal theological views.

Respectfully submitted,

SUPERINTENDENT OF READING ROOM.

July 28, 1932.

* * *

Appended to this terrifyingly formal communication is what one might describe as the religious roll-call of those Signers. An analysis of it proves not uninteresting.

* * *

Of the 34 Episcopalians, two represented Delaware, two Georgia, three Maryland, one Massachusetts, one New Jersey, three New York, three North Carolina, eight Pennsylvania, four South Carolina and seven Virginia.

Four Congregationalists sat in the Connecticut delegation, one in Georgia's, two in Maryland's, two in Massachusetts', three in New Hampshire's, one in Rhode Island's.

The Catholic was Charles Carroll, of Carrollton, Md. The Baptist, as the Post-Impressionist has good reason to know, was John Hart, of New Jersey. And the Quaker came not from Pennsylvania, as might have been expected: he was Stephen Hopkins, who represented his native Rhode Island.

* * *

It seems odd that William Penn's Quaker colony should have sent to Philadelphia no member of the Society of Friends—should have sent, instead, eight Episcopalians and one Presbyterian—that even her John Penn should be assigned to the Anglican communion. Nevertheless, we "state but the facts"—according to the Library of Congress memorandum.

On the other hand, Virginia's and both the Carolinas' delegation were solidly Episcopalian. All of Connecticut's representatives were Congregationalists and all of New Hampshire's.

* * *

The best remembered Presbyterians were Thomas McKean, one of Pennsylvania's most famous governors, and, of course, New Jersey's Scotch-born John Witherspoon. The Congregationalists included the two Adamses—Samuel and John—that other John who was surnamed Hancock and Robert Treat Paine (all of Massachusetts), with Oliver Wolcott, of Connecticut. As for the Episcopalians, the Congressional Library's list groups with them Elridge Gerry (Mass.), the elusive Button Gwinnett (born in England, but representing Georgia), Benjamin Harrison and both the Lees (Francis Lightfoot and Richard Henry) of Virginia, New York's Morris as well as Pennsylvania's, Pennsylvania's Dr. Benjamin Rush and Delaware's Caesar Rodney . . .

* * *

But, about George Washington: Wasn't he something of a F. & A. Mason over in Alexandria? And wasn't he a vestryman in an Episcopal church?

Probes By Congress Check Government

By Edward A. Williams.
Special Correspondence of The Post.

WHEN Chairman Warren of the House Accounts Committee recently stated that he feared we were "on the verge of another investigation orgy," and that most congressional investigations "do not amount to anything," he drew a loud "Amen, Brother!" from American taxpayers. Many citizens believe that congressional investigations are usually politically inspired and manned by headline-hunters. Political experts agree, however, that on the whole congressional probes have been worth the candle.

The first congressional investigation, in 1792, probed the disastrous defeat of Gen. St. Clair by the Indians of the Northwest. Out of this inquiry came a decided improvement in the organization of the War Department. Civil Service was born largely as the result of congressional investigations, and the Federal Printing Office was the direct result of many inquiries into printing done for the Government by private concerns.

The most sensational investigation of all, that of the Teapot Dome oil scandals, saved the Government millions of dollars. If Senator Black is even approximately correct in claiming that his recent air-mail investigation netted the Government $10,000,000, this one probe has paid for most of the more than 400 congressional investigations that have been held.

The most effective check on the executive branch is the ever-present threat of a congressional inquiry. After Capitol Hill passes a bill and authorizes the money necessary to carry it into effect, the administration of the act becomes the task of the White House. Congress may ask departmental chiefs or the President for voluntary information from time to time, but this can seldom act as a check upon inefficient or corrupt officials. In England the administration must answer questions on the floor of the Commons, but here the legislators' only recourse is to fling out the dragnet of a congressional investigation.

AS Woodrow Wilson stated exactly 50 years ago in "Congressional Government:" "It is the proper duty of a representative body to look diligently into every affair of government and to talk much about what it sees. It is meant to be the eyes and the voice, and to embody the wisdom and will of its constituents. Unless Congress have and use every means of acquainting itself with the acts and the disposition of the administrative agents of the Government, the country must be helpless to learn how it is being served; and unless Congress both scrutinize these things and sift them by every form of discussion, the country must remain in embarrassing, crippling ignorance of the very affairs which it is most important that it should understand and direct."

It must be conceded that these investigations sometimes leave much to be desired. Much that is irrelevant is dragged before the public's gaze, and often these fishing expeditions are conducted solely for political purposes and to embarrass the opposition. In other cases the investigation may produce no tangible result because the committee enters upon the inquiry unprepared and without adequate information on the subject to be probed.

Despite these shortcomings, however, the investigations are essential. It is often forgotten that the Cabinet consists in reality of a group of chief clerks, each of whom has no more than a faint knowledge or interest in what his fellow members are doing. Since the Cabinet keeps no records of its meetings, and Cabinet members are seldom fully aware of what is going on even within their own departments, Congress must step in. This was brought out clearly by the oil lease scandals of the Harding Administration. The oil leases were apparently never considered by the Cabinet as a whole, and members who had not been directly involved later testified that they had not considered the leases to be their responsibility in any sense.

• • • •

BESIDES the departments headed by Cabinet members, we now have highly important New Deal agencies, many of them spending far more public money than the older departments. Despite efforts at coordination, many of these new agencies are really a law unto themselves. Personal integrity and the fear of a congressional investigation are the only safeguards against raids on the Treasury.

The really important investigations have, almost without exception, been carried on by the Senate. Right here lies the chief criticism of the proposals of Senator Carter Glass to restrict debate in the Senate. In that chamber, even a small minority can ordinarily get an investigation started. Debate is unlimited, and unlike the situation in the House, any member can freely air his views. If necessary, a Senator can carry on a filibuster or otherwise inconvenience the Senate until action is taken.

The House of Representatives, however, especially when dominated by the political party of the President, is practically useless as an investigating body, since the House minority is tied hand and foot by the easily-applied House rules for shutting off debate.

The case of Daugherty, President Harding's Attorney General, illustrated this difference between the two branches of Congress. A large proportion of House members wished to investigate Daugherty, but could not budge the resolution from the committee which had pigeonholed it.

AN important fact seldom understood by the public is that the major work in these investigations is done privately, long before the public hearings start. The facts have usually all been placed in the hands of the committee by research assistants before a single witness takes the stand. The public hearings only occassionally bring out facts not already known to the investigators.

There is a justification for forcing witnesses to recite publicly on facts already known to the investigating committee. Were Congressmen to present their findings in the form of a single written report, wide public notice would not be gained for it. The public hearings of investigating committees, however, provide a very useful sounding-board. A well-staged congressional inquiry is crammed with news value, and makes it comparatively easy to rally public sentiment in support of remedial legislation.

These factors make the congressional investigation an indispensable tool of government. It secures vital facts, acts as an ever-present brake on the Executive, and has sufficient drama to focus the eye of the public on existing evils.

Doing Their Best.

THOSE farm leaders of the drought stricken areas who angered Henry Wallace because they criticized the New Deal apparently have not been reading the papers. Because if they had they would know that Henry is one of our most conscientious New Dealers, the most conscientious one, in fact. And it makes no difference whether his plans work or not. As long as he is doing his best and is so conscientious there can be no grounds for complaint. Henry is what might be termed our most conscientious wrong-doer of the New Deal, which is to say that next to the NRA there is hardly anybody who does more wrong and who is more conscientious in doing it.

BARGERON.

What the farm leaders should have said when Henry asked them if the New Deal had not helped them was "Oh, yes, indeed. It has helped us so much that we are back again for more help." After all, that is the fact. If the New Deal were not so helpful it is a cinch there would be no need of people coming here seeking help.

Instead of admitting this, however, some of the leaders made it plain they did not consider the New Deal any bargain at all. Naturally this made Henry mad, not mad to the point of uttering an epithet, but to the extent of his weariness over people and things being increased.

• • • •

There is one thing that farm leaders and leaders of other groups may as well realize right now and that is that there has been a revolution in this country and by revolution we mean, for one thing, that in the future they must have a different approach. They can't be coming here criticizing public officials as they did in the past. They must come here with hat in hand and bearing in mind that the question of whether the officials are doing or pursuing the right policies is never in point. The thing always to be kept uppermost in mind is that they are doing their best. Their best may not be so hot, in fact, it seldom is but to be judged on the fact they are doing their best is their cardinal demand.

It was a demand they exacted before they took over the job. One may recall some of the earlier utterances of Mr. Roosevelt to the effect that he did not always expect to be right, but believe him, he would certainly do his best.

• • • •

The difference between the old order and the new, you see, is that the Republicans did not do their best. Mr. Hoover and his associates who worked pretty hard and tried a thunder of a lot of things may dissent from this contention but its acceptance is utterly necessary if we are to admire the New Dealers.

The great departure from the past becomes manifest. It involves such fundamentals as the attitude of mind. For 150 years in this country we judged our Administrations by the worth of their accomplishments. We kicked them out and we kicked them in on this standard. But in the future we must judge them not on this, but upon whether they are doing their best. For this reason the Administration's propaganda has always stressed what long hours they work. If they work long hours and try to solve problems it makes no difference whether they solve them or not.

• • • •

It is the acceptance of this attitude by the people that has made Mr. Roosevelt well-nigh invulnerable.

"The things he is doing do look screwy," the people agree, "but he is better than Hoover because he is doing his best. Regardless of what he does it is what he thinks is right."

Of course, the Republicans used to do what they thought was wrong. That is the difference, the New Dealers doing what they think is right and the Republicans doing what they thought was wrong. If they think we want to return to any such old order as that they are as crazy as galoots. One of the first things their Kansas City meeting had better do is to promise they, in the future, will do only what they think is right—and the best they can.

Spring Ushers In Annual Horse Show; Mistinguett and Chevalier Team Up; Oldest Man Studied.

By Andre Vulliet,
Special Correspondence of The Post.

Paris, March 28 (By mail).

FOR the first time in many years, the sun, sky and the first official day of spring—March 21—did themselves proud simultaneously, enabling Parisians to launch their most glamorous season with real zest.

A surer sign of spring, however, than the quality of the atmosphere, is the opening of the annual Paris horse show. Despite depression and rumors of war, the Grand Palais has seldom stretched its spacious sides to accommodate a larger crowd. The sixty-fifth inauguration of the longest horse show in the world went down on the calendar of Paris' social season as a gala event.

Three weeks' display of Beauty and the Beast gives real momentum to social functions in the French capital. Belle Baruch, of New York and Pau, has several mounts entered and is an intrepid rider. The betting is high in her favor.

The Black Squadron from the famous cavalry school of Saumur, whose figures and escapades on horseback rival the liveliest antics of a Ziegfeld chorus, will, as usual, be the highlight of the show. The Black Squadron itself is clad completely in the color whence it takes its name, and serves as a perfect background for the prewar splendor in gowns and jewels that blossom in the tribunes.

THE million-dollar legs and the million dollar smile are rumored to be on the verge of a combine in Paris, meaning of course, that Mistinguett and Maurice Chevalier have declared a truce, buried the hatchet and decided to give the theater-going public a treat such as it has never had before. The vivacious sexagenarian's toe is still as light and fantastic as it was when she first danced in vaudeville, with the youthful swain whose "teeth for two" have brought him fame and fortune.

"Why shouldn't we play together?" says the galvanizer of torpid livers and the warmer of cold feet. "Maurice has been too long in America already, and it is time he smiled at his own country for a while," she concluded, announcing that neither time nor place for their act had yet been decided upon definitely but several were under consideration.

PUCCINI must surely heave a sigh beneath the sod—a sigh of contentment and appreciation—for the Opera Comique has just given its 800th performance of his famous "La Tosca," which he composed 34 years ago. Paris audiences have listened to the music of this opera for more than 30 years with never a waver in enthusiasm. It is, in fact, one of the six most popular operas ever given in this historic theater. The others being "La Boheme," another of his masterpieces; "Manon" and "Werther," by Massenet; "Carmen," by Bizet, and "The Tales of Hoffmann," by Offenbach.

Thus far only the skulls, crushed and broken by the weight of earth above them, have been brought to Paris for examination, but what the rest of the bones make when finally put together will reveal whether or not the missing link be truth or fiction!

It is Prof. Boule's belief that it will take him two years to reconstruct each of the four skeletons whose bones have been found. But if, or when, he has put together his "Perfect Caveman" the shades of Darwin will no longer rest peacefully in their shroud.

Saint Guirec's nose was first made of wood, but it lasted such a short time that he was refashioned in more durable stuff. Now in granite, the sturdy nose can withstand as many as 300,000 pin-pricks per year, and a trust fund has been established to assure the kindly saint enough noses for a number of years to come.

Monsieur Pierre Laval can always be counted upon to enliven the corridors of the Chamber of Deputies if the day is dull or dreary. His latest story is a short conversation between two inmates of the penal colony on Devil's Island.

"I'm Kahn," said the banker, and they shook hands.

Sixth Of April

By
Wm. Lyon Phelps

ACCORDING to his own account, it was in the sixth of April, 1909, that Peary stood at or on the North Pole. Although his proofs were accepted by many American societies and he was rewarded by Congress and received honors from many foreign groups, there is certainly widespread doubt as to whether he did actually reach the Pole. Books and magazine articles have been published positively denying his claims while some scientists and publicists content themselves with expressing dubiety.

• • • •

However this may be, he was very far north; and to me one of the moct interesting results of his expedition was his deep sea sounding, in the general vicinity of the Pole. His longest line failed to reach bottom. We know, from his expedition and the voyages over ice and through the air by other explorers, that the North Pole is in an immense open ocean of tremendous depth; whereas the South Pole is on land and in the neighborhood of vast mountains about a mile high.

Thus the South Pole is in the midst of some of the most romantic scenery of the globe; and perhaps it does not look so very different from the imaginary description of it given by Jules Verne in "Twenty Thousand League Under the Sea." His Capt. Nemo reached the South Pole in a submarine; Amundsen and Scott reached it on foot, and Admiral Byrd through the air. Will any one ever invent a submarine good enough to travel hundreds of miles under the ice? Probably.

• • • •

It was on the sixth of April, and, by a terrible irony, Good Friday, in the year 1917, that the United States entered the World War. On that day I listened to "Parsifal" in the Metropolitan Opera House in New York; and the contrast between the scenes of that music-drama of consecration and the evening papers was certainly dramatic.

Another dramatic contrast had happened in the week when the World War broke out in Europe in 1914. While all the papers were naturally full of it, and the mass of people all over the world talked of nothing else, Amundsen sailed away toward the North Pole, to be gone for years. The contrast between the boiling heat of Europe and the frozen silence whither he was going, needed no emphasis.

League Studies Third Major War Problem

Failing In Manchuria And Chaco, Geneva Faces Appeal In Italo-Ethiopian Crisis.

By Stephane Botchev.
Special Correspondence of The Post.

Geneva.

THE Italo-Ethiopian conflict, which began as the result of frontier incidents last December, is entering a decisive phase with its inscription on the agenda of the next session of the council of the League of Nations. As a matter of fact, the council, acting on a request by Abyssinia, has already discussed the question once, at the beginning of January. However, at that time the departure of regular Italian troops for Africa had not yet begun and there was still a shadowy hope of direct solution of the conflict through diplomatic negotiations; thus the council, by a resolution of January 19, could dismiss the Abyssinians from Geneva, advising them to reach an agreement directly with Rome. But it is now clear that these negotiations have not led to any adjustment of the basic points of divergence between Rome and Addis Ababa.

In these circumstances, and faced with the continuing transfer of regular Italian troops, the government of the Negus has decided to return to Geneva and place the settlement of the affair once more in the hands of the League of Nations, under Articles 10 and 15 of the covenant. Thus, the league, after its failures in Manchuria and the Chaco, is confronted with a new test: preservation of "the territorial integrity and existing political independence" of Abyssinia.

The events which are now taking place in eastern Africa may be considered from three different points of view. Besides the league aspect, there are the direct political repercussions which the Ethiopian incident may have in Europe, and particularly in Central Europe. In the third place, there is what one might call the colonial viewpoint, which is certainly not the least interesting of the three.

The Italians have certain territorial claims in the south of Ethiopia, that is, around Italian Somaliland, where the frontiers are not clearly marked. It is here that the incidents which set off the conflict happened. However, the principal Italian ambitions are not in this district. A look at the map will show, indeed, that the region along the edge of Somaliland, where these incidents occurred, is nothing but desert, sprinkled with a few rare oases, which are certainly not worth the sending of two Italian divisions. Italian territorial ambitions are, rather, along the border of their colony to the north of Ethiopia—Eritrea. It is not generally known that certain regions relatively close to Eritrea, in the vicinity of Lake Tana, are much more fertile and more widely cultivated than southern Abyssinia, whose southernmost part is a veritable desert. Besides, in these same regions near Lake Tana, there are natural resources such as forests, coal and gold, which interest Italy.

• • • •

IT is noteworthy also that the concentration of Italian troops is taking place not in Somaliland, where the frontier incidents occurred, but in Eritrea. An Italian move from Eritrea would not only be directed toward the real objectives of Italian ambitions in Abyssinia, but would also be much easier than an advance from Somaliland, not only because of the formation of the terrain and the more bearable climate, but also because of the proximity of Italy. It is generally admitted in Geneva that if Signor Mussolini does not succeed in obtaining satisfaction these thorough-going preparations will not have been in vain, and Italy will then engage in an important action against Ethiopia, especially in the direction of Lake Tana.

It must be said, however, that, aside from her partly territorial ambitions, Italy has another objective much more general in its effect: a protectorate. In fact, she has already made one attempt to realize this objective, at the end of the last century. Thanks to intervention in the internal difficulties of Abyssinia, Italian activity succeeded at that time in obtaining a treaty which instituted an Italian protectorate over the Empire of the Negus. But when it came to putting this treaty into practice the Abyssinians refused to submit, war broke out, and there followed the Italian disaster of Adowa. Ethiopian independence was recognized, but the Italians did not forget the objective which they had set themselves.

At the present moment the question for Italy is not only that of limited territorial aims, but also the general objective of a protectorate. Naturally, Rome is not proposing this time to set up a formal protectorate; it is only a question of opening Abyssinia to Italian economic penetration, with the construction of railroads and highways, etc., in the Italian sphere of influence. On the road to this economic influence Italy runs counter to Japan, and is upheld by France as agreed in the Rome accords; England does not look upon the Italian action with a very favorable eye, yet prefers it to the specter of the installation of Japan in Ethiopia.

IN this affair it is certainly not the league which appears as the principal obstacle before Signor Mussolini. All that the Geneva institution can do, at the most, is to make a resolution. And that is not very much. One may regret it, but in fact the league has, at present, only slight political importance. What might give pause to Mussolini before he throws his troops into decisive action are the technical difficulties of the enterprise and the complications which might arise in the meantime on the European international horizon.

The latter possibility, which is the third and most important aspect of the conflict, is certainly the greatest danger of action in Ethiopia, for, whatever the official Italian communiques may say, a serious military move in Africa would necessarily lessen the weight of Italy in Central European affairs, and render the Anschluss a much less dangerous temptation for Germany. It is from this direction that the gravest difficulties for Italy and the greatest dangers to European peace may come.

This, then, is the general aspect of affairs at the moment when the Italo-Ethiopian conflict enters the mechanism of procedure under Article 15 of the covenant.

2 Choirs Unite For Cathedral Sunday Service

St. Paul's of Baltimore Will Assist in Presentation of 'The Crucifixion.'

For one of its outstanding Lenten musicals the Washington Cathedral Choir will be augmented tomorrow by the choir of St. Paul's Parish in Baltimore. The ensemble will give a public performance of Sir John Stainer's cantata, "The Crucifixion," at an evensong service at 4 in the Great Choir.

This will be the first time since the Great Choir was opened for public worship that two choirs have united in the presentation of a noted choral work. The Cathedral Choir will go to Baltimore Wednesday night to join with St. Paul's Choir in a performance of the Stainer composition.

Canon Anson Phelps Stokes, of the cathedral staff, will deliver the sermon at the celebration of the Holy Communion at 11 a. m. tomorrow in the Great Choir. Early celebration of the Holy Communion will be at 7:30 a. m. in Bethlehem Chapel.

St. John's Episcopal Church, Sixteenth and H streets. The Rev. Oliver J. Hart, D. D., rector. The Right Rev. James E. Freeman, D. D., Bishop of Washington, will visit St. John's Parish for the 11 a. m. service to administer the Apostolic Rite of Confirmation. Bishop Freeman will preach. The Rev. Hart will preach at the 7:45 p. m. service on "The Challenge of Life."

St. Luke's Episcopal Church, Fifteenth and Church streets northwest. The Rev. J. E. Elliott, rector. The rector will celebrate Holy Communion at 7 a. m. Sunday School will convene at 9:30 a. m. Success.

WE ONCE had helpful magazines that preached the gospel of success; they taught young people in their teens how to achieve their highest guess. They told fine tales of wealthy men who started out in life like bums; and now they took a fountain pen and signed pink checks for gaudy sums. There was no sense in being poor, the world looked down with much disdain on people sleeping on the moor, without a shelter from the rain. And any youth who would subscribe, and read and read the uplift mag, would surely ornament his tribe, and be its glory and its brag. The test of all success, it seemed, was nailing all the dimes in sight; no normal springald ever dreamed of any other goal by night. The rich man basking in his lair, with checkbooks all around him flung, he was the model everywhere, the great example for the young. I looked some old back numbers o'er, to while away a drowsy eve; the great men of the days of yore, how they must gnash their teeth and grieve! For most of them are busted flat, the gorgeous rolls they had are gone; they lack the coin to buy a hat, their meerschaum pipes are all in pawn. How smug they look as they're portrayed in Jimpson's Get There Magazine! And now their wad has been mislaid, and all around the gills they're green. There's still success a youth may reach if bravely, earnestly he tries; but that old sort they used to preach does not appeal much to the wise.

Model sketched, 157.50

"A Westinghouse Refrigerator never needs oiling." Its hermetically sealed mechanism is guaranteed until 1940 for a $5 charge included in the price. See "WILLY VOGALITE," the almost human Westinghouse robot, smoke, [illegible] he's marvelous.

The Inside Story

If space is important, you'll want the refrigerator that uses the back of the door for extra shelves. If quick action is essential, you'll like one with four separate temperature zones (it freezes faster than any other refrigerator made). If you use a lot of steps to get from table to sink to stove, you'll go for the ice box with the handy tray attached to the door. (It lifts off for service, folds when not in use.)

But when it comes right down to making your choice, you couldn't go wrong on a single one of them. These six are the top!

What Religion Means to Me

Dr. Bowen contributes this week's article to The Post's series of informal discussions on the everyday benefits derived from religion.

By W. Sinclair Bowen, M. D.

Let us define what we mean by religion. First: Religion is our relationship to our Heavenly Father who made us. Second: Religion is the soul of God in the heart of man. Third: Religion is the spiritual conception of life. Fourth: Religion is not a hearse to carry out the dead, but a golden chariot in which the living may ride on to victory both in this world and in the world to come.

This last definition is given for the benefit of those who seem to think that religion is a doleful thing to make one sad. But these people, unfortunately, have hold of a wrong kind of religion, and not the kind that is related to our Heavenly Father.

The need of the human soul is for reality; for a religion that can stand the acid test of adversity; for a God who cares, for a Christ who is willing to walk along common roads with common men. Many men have reluctantly abandoned the conception of God that they held in their childhood, and so often have found nothing to take its place.

When we contemplate what religion means to us, the church comes at once into consideration, for after all, the church is organized religion and the two can not be separated.

The church stands for clean living, decent government, Christian principles and business, Christian education, salvation, corporate and individual, edification and spiritual enrichment through sacraments and worship; and for comprehensive religious service. The church has been left in our care, in years and mine, and this is the season of the year when it especially behooves us to ask the question "Are we faithful caretakers?" If we support the church financially and personally, we support the best influence of our community.

The church is the most salutary influence and the most valuable institution in America. Any man who loves his country ought to support the church by his presence. This is a valid reason for church attendance, though a very subordinate one. The far deeper consideration is that men ought to go to church for the public and personal worship of God and for the corporate experience which comes to those who meet together to proclaim their faith in God.

The church is the place where the word of God is preached, the power of God is felt, the spirit of God is manifested, the love of God is revealed and the unity of God is perceived. It is the home of my soul, the altar of my devotion, the hearth of my faith, the center of my affection and the foretaste of heaven.

Ban on Liquor At Old Point Hotel Is Argued

By The Associated Press.

The operator of the new Chamberlin Hotel at Old Point Comfort, Va., fought yesterday for the right to keep his liquor bar while Virginia pleaded for a Federal law that would permit the State to close it.

The question was aired before the House Military Committee, which deferred action on the Byrd-Bland bill to give the State jurisdiction over that part of Fort Monroe, Va., military reservation on which the hotel is located. The committee's next scheduled meeting is Friday.

J. Wesley Gardner, the hotel's general manager, told the committee he doubted the hotel could be kept open unless it has the bar as an attraction.

Emphasizing throughout his talk that the hotel has not violated any law which applies to the Federal reservation, he informed the committee the Chamberlin had failed twice financially in the seven years since the present structure was built.

Bill Declared Unfair.

"The Chamberlin is off the beaten track," he said, "and there are only two classes of persons to draw from—the Army and Navy crowd and the tourists who want especially to go to our hotel."

The bill, he said, is unfair to the hotel, because he claimed that any one of three other commercial enterprises at the fort might commence to dispense liquor and would be outside jurisdiction of the bill. The measure would apply only to the Old Point Comfort hotel.

Virginia, represented by Senator Byrd and Attorney General A. P. Staples, argued that the same laws should apply to all hotels within the State and pointed to the State law which prohibits sale of liquor except by State stores.

The Old Dominion, Byrd asserted, has the right to make its own liquor laws and those laws should apply all over the State, even on the Government reservations within its borders.

Dern's Plan Discussed.

Staples discussed the proposal of Secretary Dern that instead of the Byrd-Bland plan the Federal law should be amended to make State criminal statutes apply to Government reservations within the States. Such a law is in force for State laws passed before June, 1933, a date prior to passage of the Virginia liquor control act.

Staples said such an amendment would be helpful but he expressed the view it did not go far enough. He said there is a question whether the liquor control act would be considered in the class of laws to which the Federal amendment would apply.

Gardner said he preferred Dern's suggestion to the Byrd-Bland bill.

Dern has flatly disapproved the Byrd-Bland measure on the ground that it would set up dual authority.

Along the Tri-State Trail

The Post State Editor.

Although the Deep Run Hunt Club races are commanding the attention of the Virginia sporting classes today, tradition will be represented when the members of the Warrenton Hunt hold their annual meeting Monday in Fauquier County. The Warrenton Hunt, which was organized in 1887 and whose master of the foxhounds is Amory S. Carhart, is one of the oldest active hunts in the country.

Washington County, Md., is still determined to close its many moonshine stills. Federal investigators in the Mount Briar section continued the drive this weeek when they destroyed two camps with liquor manufacturing equipment. Although a large quantity of mash and whisky was confiscated, the camps were unattended when the agents arrived.

Nathan L. Smith, of the Maryland State Roads Commission, said yesterday that the famous "Gold Mine" double-decked bridge over the Susquehanna River is nearing the end of its usefulness.

The old structure earned its name when it was privately owned and returned huge dividends to the backers. It is one of the few double-decked bridges in the country.

A Roman helmet 2,000 years old and a Persian helmet 500 years old are the latest additions to the collection of Virginia Military Institute antiques. They are lodged in the Frances E. Smith Memorial Rooms. The battlefield of Philippi, where Brutus was killed, is said to be the location where the Roman helmet was found.

The Dollar Abroad.

London, April 5 (AP).—The Netherlands Bank rate, raised 1 per cent yesterday to check the outflow of funds from the Netherlands, did not relieve anxiety in the foreign exchange market today regarding the Dutch guilder which was freely offered and depreciated sharply with other gold currencies, and the United States dollar weakening in sympathy.

A check at midday, followed by further easing, accompanied unconfirmed reports from Paris regarding gold from the Netherlands, made the market close practically the lowest of the day.

The United States dollar lost 1¼ cents to the pound as compared to the overnight New York rate, closing at 4.86¼ to the pound. The New York rate overnight was 4.84¾.

The guilder closed at 7.38½ to the pound as compared to yesterday's close of 7.20½. The French franc closed at 73.70 as compared to yesterday's close of 73.20.

Paris, April 5 (AP).—The United States dollar gained .0055 cent to the franc today as compared to the overnight New York rate, closing at 15.17 francs (6.592 cents to the franc). The New York rate was 6.5975 cents to the franc. The Paris opening was at 15.185 francs (6.584 cents).

Berlin, April 5 (AP).—The United States dollar sold today at 2.492 marks (40.13 cents to the mark) as compared to yesterday's price of 2.49 marks (40.16 cents).

Sen. Dickinson To Be Keynoter At G.O.P. Rally

Virginia Leaders to Meet at Roanoke Today for Banquet.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Roanoke, Va., April 5.—Republicans from all sections of Virginia are expected to attend a rally here tomorrow which will be climaxed by an address at the Hotel Roanoke at 8 p. m. by Senator L. J. Dickinson, of Iowa, the temporary chairman and keynote speaker at the party's national convention at Chicago in 1932.

Senator Dickinson has chosen as his subject "The Democratic Donkey Ain't What He Used to Be." His will be the principal address of the day. The public is invited to hear him.

The Republican meeting will begin at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, but Senator Dickinson is not expected until later in the day. He will motor down tomorrow from Washington and will be accompanied by Mrs. Dickinson.

The meeting has been arranged by the women's western division of the Republican State Organization, which division is headed by Mrs. Felix K. Parker, of Roanoke, vice chairman of the Republican State Central Committee. Prominent Republican leaders, both men and women, from many points in the State, are expected to be in attendance. Among those expected, are Mr. and Mrs. Maurray Bocock, of Keswick; Mrs. George H. Whitten, of Keswick; Mrs. H. E. Page, of Norfolk, and Philip Campbell, of Arlington County. Mrs. Bocock is Republican National Committeewoman and Mrs. Page is vice chairman of the Republican State Committee and chairman of the eastern division, which includes the First, Second, Third and Fourth districts. Campbell is a former member of the House of Delegates from Kansas, but for some time has been residing in Arlington County.

Besides these, the State central committee will be represented by the following: H. B. McCormac, chairman, of Winchester; R. O. Crockett, vice chairman, Tazewell; H. L. Lawson, treasurer, Roanoke, and Clarence R. Ahalt, secretary, Clarendon.

The conference is scheduled to last until about 5 o'clock, when a recess until 6:30 p. m. will be taken. At 6:30 there will be a banquet in the ballroom of the hotel, at which Senator and Mrs. Dickinson will be the guests of honor.

The public meeting in the ballroom is scheduled to begin immediately after the conclusion of the banquet. Senator Dickinson will be introduced by T. X. Parsons, chairman of the Roanoke Republican city committee.

Better Pay for Highway Police Advocated by Director Rhodes

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, Va., April 5.—Better pay for Virginia's 100 State highway officers—who include 70 college-trained men—was advocated today by John Q. Rhodes, director of the State division of motor vehicles.

Fifty additional policemen are needed, but any additional appropriation which the next General Assembly may grant should be used primarily to increase the pay scale of the present force, he said.

Virginia patrolmen now are paid $100 per month, with sergeants receiving $125. Officers should receive not less than $150 per month and sergeants at least $175, Mr. Rhodes held.

"I want them to have more money because they are earning it," he said. "Furthermore, I know we are going to lose our best men at a very rapid rate unless the State can pay them more.

"I believe Superintendent H. B. Nicholas and his force constitute the finest State police, individually and collectively, in the United States. The 100 men are required to do work that would occupy the full time of more than 150 ordinary men, and the State properly is proud of them. I am sure the Assembly will be willing to take them off the depression scale of pay so we can hold the high-calibered personnel of the force and encourage the men in the many-sided and very valuable work they are doing for the State."

Twenty-one of the 100 men, it was pointed out, are college graduates.

Sears, Roebuck Report 29.7% Gain in Sales

Chicago, April 5 (AP).—An increase of 29.7 per cent in total sales for the second period of 1935, February 27 to March 26, over the same period for 1934 was announced today by Sears, Roebuck & Co. The figures were: For 1935, $29,007,986; for 1934, $22,362,353.

The firm reported a 22 per cent increase for the two periods January 30 to March 26, with $52,155,052 for 1935 in contrast to $42,759,940 in 1934.

Foreign Exchange.

By the Associated Press.

A wide open break in Holland guilders featured foreign exchange markets yesterday.

The British pound sterling, principal beneficiary of the nervousness surrounding gold currencies, continued firm in New York where it was 1 cent higher at $4.86⅜. In earlier dealings in London the dollar lost more than a cent, closing at 4.85¼ as against the overnight New York rate of 4.86¼.

French francs and other gold currencies dipped sympathetically with the guilder but sufficient support was in sight to hold the losses within a comparatively narrow area. The French unit lost .01½ cents in New York at 6.58½ cents, and in earlier dealings in Paris the dollar was boosted to an equivalent of 6.592 cents to the franc as against the overnight New York rate of 6.597 cents.

Belgian belgas declined .04 of a cent to 16.93 cents, .02 of a cent under its new gold parity, and Swiss francs yielded .04 of a cent to 32.20 cents. German marks and Italian lira were only slightly changed. Canadian dollars advanced a trifle to 99 11-16 coincident with strength in sterling.

D.C. Leaders Throng Fete For Artists

Diplomatic and Official Sets Greet Sisters at the Pelenyis.

Capital society turned out in large numbers yesterday for the reception given by the Minister of Hungary and Mme. Pelenyi in honor of the two young artists, Mlle. Bertha de Hellebranth and Mlle. Elena de Hellebranth, from 5 to 7 o'clock. Sharply at 5 o'clock the steady stream of limousines and taxis began to arrive at the door of the handsome legation at the corner of Eighteenth and R streets.

Inside, the high-ceilinged, paneled rooms were bright and made one forget the gray and damp day. Mme. Pelenyi, attired in a becoming shade of soft blue crepe made on flowing lines and with a shoulder corsage of orchids, received in the long, brown, cream and gold drawing room. With her were the guests of honor, Mlle. Bertha, wearing a spring print in small flowers and a large black, glossy straw hat, and her sister wearing a print in shades of beige with a small close-fitting hat to match. They each had corsages of gardenias.

The large rooms were lighted by crystal chandeliers and were decorated with large bowls of tulips and snapdragons in pink, blue and yellow. The tea table had a beautiful centerpiece of orchid tulips and white snapdragons and was lighted by tall shell-pink tapers.

The minister was the perfect host, going from one room to another, mingling with the guests and chatting. Among those seen in the broad hall at the head of the stairs were Mrs. Harold L. Ickes, wife of the Secretary of the Interior, who wore a smart costume of dark blue with touches of red. Near her was Mrs. William Phillips, wife of the Undersecretary of State. Mrs. Robert W. Imbrie was wearing a suit of rust wool with a hat to match. Mrs. Henry Morgenthau, jr., wife of the Secretary of the Treasury, wore a frock of dark blue with a scarf of the blue and white polka dot tied about her throat. Her tailored hat was of dark blue trimmed with white. Mme. Prochnik, wife of the Minister of Austria, wore a printed silk frock in black and white with touches of green.

Mme. Tchomakoff Attends.

Mme. Petroff Tchomakoff, wife of the Charge d'Affaires of Bulgaria, had on a becoming frock of brown and cream printed crepe, with which she wore a brown hat. In the dining room the guests lingered beside the temptingly laden tea table to partake of the refreshments and to chat with those they met there. Mrs. Walter R. Tuckerman was costumed in black velvet with small, close-fitting hat of the velvet and a platinum fox scarf. Mme. Troyanovsky, wife of the Ambassador of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, had on a brown ensemble with a small hat of matching felt. Mrs. Harry Baxter, daughter of the Secretary of War and Mrs. George H. Dern, who are in Florida, wore a suit of green with a tailored hat of black straw.

Miss Vera Bloom, daughter of Representative and Mrs. Sol Bloom, was wearing a printed frock of black and white with a medium-brimmed hat of black rough straw.

The Ambassador of Mexico was accompanied by Senora de Castillo Najera, who was attired in chic black, with a small hat made on fitted lines, and with a brief nose veil. With them were the Counselor of their Embassy and Senora de Campos Ortiz, the latter wearing an ensemble of bright spring green. Mrs. Emil Hurja was costumed in black, relieved with touches of white, with which she wore a black lacquer straw hat. Mrs. Edward Finkenstaedt had on a black crepe frock, fashioned with a drapery effect which was faced with soft dust-pink crepe.

Mrs. Swanson Present.

Others observed were Signora Livia Coppola Viola, wife of the Military Attache of the Italian Embassy, who was costumed in black with a handsome scarf of silver fox; Mrs. Claude A. Swanson, wife of the Secretary of the Navy, who was wearing black satin; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Norment, the latter in black crepe fashioned with a scarf of white, which crossed at the neck and fell along the sleeves. The Minister of Iran was accompanied by Mme. Djalal, who wore a smartly tailored suit of black with a white blouse and a silver fox scarf. Her small rimmed hat was of black.

Former Solicitor General J. Crawford Briggs was accompanied by his wife, who wore a suit of pale green, trimmed with collar and cuffs of mink and a large stitched hat of cocoa brown. Commander and Mrs. John Roper, son and daughter-in-law of the Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. Daniel C. Roper, were chatting with some friends near the punch table. Mrs. Roper was wearing a bright green coat and hat. Not far away stood Gen. William E. Horton.

Among those seen in the drawing room were the Minister of Venezuela and Senora de Arcaya, the Minister of Switzerland, Mr. Marc Peter; M. and Mme. de Hellebranth, father and mother of the guests of honor; Mme. de Hellebranth, wearing a gown of black satin trimmed with touches of cream-colored rare old lace.

Music Lovers Await Recital

Distinguished Audience Will Hear Martini-Swarthout Recital Tomorrow.

A distinguished gathering of Washington music lovers is expected to attend the last major recital of the season at Constitution Hall tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock, when Nino Martini, leading tenor of the Metropolitan Opera, and Miss Gladys Swarthout, leading mezzo-soprano of the same organization, will appear in a joint recital. It will mark Mr. Martini's recital debut in the Capital, although Miss Swarthout has appeared here previously.

One of the delightful features of the Martini-Swarthout program will be two operatic duets in which the two artists will most effectively blend their voices. The first of these duets is the "Ma chi vien" duet from Ponchielli's "La Gioconda," while the other is the "Ai nostri monti" duet from Verdi's "Il Trovatore." Additionally, Mr. Martini will open the program with Donaudy's "O del mio amato ben" and will contribute such selections as Mattei's "Non e Ver!", the "O Paradiso" aria from Meyerbeer's "L'Africaine," Watts' "Blue Are Her Eyes," Rachmaninoff's "In the Silence of the Night" and Padilla's "Princesita."

In addition to her appearances with Mr. Martini in the two duet numbers, Miss Swarthout will sing the "O sole, Fernando" aria from Donizetti's "La Favorita," the recitative and aria—"Lescia ch'io pianga"—from Handel's "Rinaldo," Strozzi's "Amor dormiglione," the old Irish "Parting of Friends" and other songs.

Among those who have taken box seats and orchestra reservations for the Martini-Swarthout concert are Miss Moira Archbold, Col. H. H. Baily, Mr. John S. Beach, Mrs. John C. Breckenridge, Mrs. Paris Brengle, Mrs. Elizabeth Northrup, Miss Mabel Crissey, Mrs. J. Edward Chapman, Mrs. Charlotte Lippitt, Mrs. Joseph H. Vocational Expert Advises Training in More Than One Job to Increase Opportunities

Constant Shift Of Occupational Fields Is Cited

Let Youths Select Careers, Dr. Adelaide Baylor Tells Parents.

By Virginia Lee Warren.

ANY SQUARE PEG can be rounded down enough to fit comfortably into a round hole. No one vocation and no one person belong irrevocably to each other. The person who is a success in one line of work would have been a success in several other related lines.

These conclusions have been reached by Dr. Adelaide Baylor, authority on vocational guidance, after years of advising boys and girls how to go about choosing their life work. In addition to her interest in vocational guidance, Dr. Baylor has been chief of the United States Home Economics Education Service for the last 11 years. At the recent Midwest conference on homemaking, held in Chicago, she was one of the chief speakers.

Dr. Baylor believes the person who trains for only one vocation is cutting down his opportunities of making a living.

Secondary Vocation Urged.

"Everybody," she said yesterday, "should train for a secondary vocation closely related to the primary one. The person who has learned to do only one thing is likely to find himself in an unfortunate position in times of depression. Even in times of prosperity there is a constant shifting of occupational fields. Yesterday there was a demand for school teachers and nurses. Today the supply in those two fields far exceeds the demand.

"And so it goes. Fertile vocational fields become barren. Sometimes barren ones become fertile again. The wise person is prepared to shift his activities so he can take advantage of the shift in vocational fields.

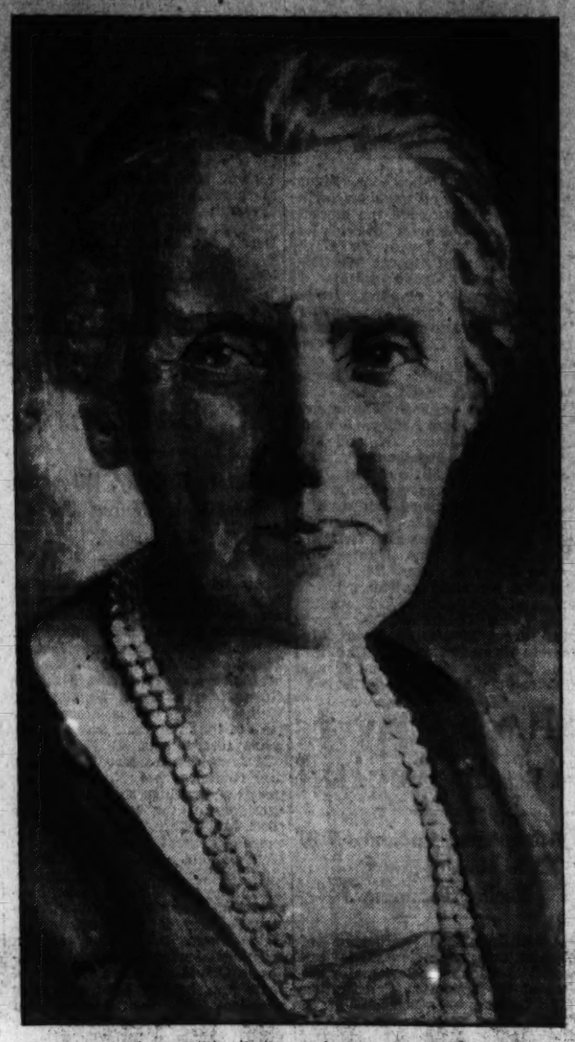
"This isn't as hard as it sounds. The nurse, if her training has been sufficiently broad, can adjust herself to taking care of children, to being a companion. The architect can branch out into home management, into contracting and carpentry. Every line of work is closely related to several other lines.

"Specialization still has its value. Although it is less important now than it was several years ago it undoubtedly will assume considerable significance again.

Period of Integration.

"I believe in Spencer's philosophy of differentiation and integration. We are now going through a period of integration. Not long ago we had differentiation or specialization. It was during this period of differentiation that the home, previously considered as a whole, was broken into a dozen sections. Suddenly we had persons devoting all their time to the furnishing and decorating of the home, to food to be served in the home, to the care of persons living in the home. In fact, we had special consideration given to every possible phase of home life.

"Now we have swung back to the former method of considering the home as a whole. This doesn't mean we've discarded all the things we learned when we were specializing on each particular phase. What we've done is to integrate all the things we learned during that period. And some day we'll tear the whole thing up again so we can study each little section by itself. That's the way with all vocations."



Two vocations are better than one, believes Dr. Adelaide Baylor, above. She has learned the best insurance against unemployment is training in more than one line of work.

Parents who attempt to select their child's vocation for him usually do more harm than good, Dr. Baylor believes. She thinks parents can guide the youth's interests in different lines of work but they must be subtle about it.

Better Method Suggested.

"The best way," she said, "is for the parents to help the child cultivate persons who may be able to influence him. The father and mother who are convinced their son has a talent for law should see that the boy meets successful, interesting lawyers. The lawyers will influence him much more than members of his own family."

And if the youth has decided ideas about what he wants to do in the way of a career, his parents will do well to let him have his way, Dr. Baylor believes.

"I remember a boy," she said, "who had a great fondness for machinery. But his father was a merchant and insisted upon the son going into the mercantile business. The boy never got over his love for machinery. He forced himself to be a merchant until he was middle-aged. Then he started a factory. You see he was determined to work with machinery. But he had waited too long. The factory failed. The man lost all he had made in his years of grubbing in the mercantile business. If his father had allowed him to choose his own vocation when he was young he undoubtedly would have been a success. At least, he would have been happy. And that's something."

This BUSINESS of LIVING

Mother With Small Means Would Like Cast-Off Garments to Make Over.

By Mary Haworth.

DEAR MISS HAWORTH: Your helpfulness in "This Business of Living" leads me to think you may be able to help me in what I am about to write. This may be entirely out of your line and if so, just ignore it.

I have often wondered what the wealthy people of Washington do with their cast-off, out-of-style clothing. We are a family of small means and I do all my sewing for myself and a 12-year-old daughter.

• • • •

I feel almost sure there are folks who would be glad to dispose of some clothing they do not want that I could make into useful garments. If I could just get in touch with them!

Do you know of a lady or ladies in Washington who would have clothing to dispose of? I would gladly pay postage on anything sent and also pay something for the clothing, providing it isn't too much.

• • • •

I have never seen a letter of this kind in your column and have hesitated to write, but when I read, "Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems," I gathered courage. Thanking you for any favor you may obtain for me, I am, very truly yours,

MRS. E. L. G.

Any Volunteer Donations?

DEAR MRS. E. L. G.: While I do not know, at this particular moment of writing, of any Washington women who have useful but out-of-style clothing to give away, surely there must be any number of women who are in that category.

Perhaps some of them, reading your letter, may take the initiative in communicating with you through this column. I hope so. To date, there have been no appeals of just this type made through this column, but that doesn't mean such appeals are unacceptable. M. H.

Mrs. Greenway Sees Security As Vital Issue

House Member Addresses Democratic Women's Conference.

TALKING INFORMALLY to delegates to the conference of the Woman's National Democratic Club at the noon meeting yesterday, Representative Isabella Greenway, of Arizona, stressed the idea that the greatest thing in the world is the emotional experience of living in security.

This means "an adequate roof over one's head," she said, "enough to eat without having to work too hard, a real education, enough leisure so one can become a real factor in his community, and adequate provision for old age."

Wearing a mulberry crepe dress trimmed in flesh-colored embroidered collar and cuffs, and a brown hat pulled low over her iron-gray hair, she was, as usual, a striking picture as she stood before her audience and identified herself as representing the Democratic women of Arizona at the conference. Prefacing the more serious part of her talk with some of the witty remarks for which she is noted, she reviewed a few of the amusing incidents of her last four campaigns when she had "seven opponents in one year."

Discusses Responsibility.

Then, in a more serious vein, she launched into a discussion of the responsibility of those in power today. "This power," she said, "promulgates silence rather than talk, particularly when the world is fogging along, trying to find its way out. Nothing dumber was ever said than that 'the way of right is easily found.' To find the right way today one must face problems seriously and prayerfully. For so long as we keep our heads and are not arrogant and cocksure, just so long will we keep our power and have the opportunity to fulfill the trust that has been placed in us."

Along this line, Mrs. Greenway pointed out that "power is an opiate that should be administered by the doctor of self-restraint."

Mrs. Jenckes Speaks.

Discussing some of the problems now before those in power, she drew comparisons between the "stable East" and the "frontier West" and pointed out the great differences between problems arising in different parts of the country. Yet all of these must be solved, she said, and will, for the most part, be solved when "we have four more years after 1936 to work on them."

Representative Virginia Jenckes, of Indiana, also scheduled to speak after the luncheon, spoke before and welcomed delegates to the convention. Because of pressing duties "on the Hill," Representative Caroline O'Day, also invited to speak, did not appear. Representative Mary Norton, whose name also appeared on the program, was not present because of illness.

D. C. Socialite Writing An Expose of Pitfalls

MRS. CLARENCE CRITTENDEN CALHOUN, former social leader, who is now writing a book that will delineate the pitfalls of Washington society, throw the searchlight of truth on certain sore spots in the Capital, and relate an amazing chain of incidents, involving numerous political, social and legal figures. The book will be called "The Strange Story of a Sap," by the Sap.

IT IS ONE THING to be an easy mark for the machinations of unscrupulous persons, another to admit it, and still another, to write about it.

Yet a former Washington society leader, Mrs. Clarence C. Calhoun—who writes under her maiden name, "Daisy Breaux"—is now working on a book which, she says, will explain how and why she has been the target for "countless blackguards and predatory prowlers" within the last five years.

Designed to "throw the searchlight of truth on certain sore spots in Washington," the book will be a sequel to the author's first published volume, "The Autobiography of a Chameleon," that appeared in 1930 and attracted much attention for its colorful material and smooth style.

But while the book she is now working on continues the history of her life, it is being written in an entirely different vein, Mrs. Calhoun said yesterday.

"It will be called 'The Strange Story of a Sap,' by The Sap," she explained, "because that is exactly what I have been. Since the last chapter of that first book was written, I have been prey for many of the scoundrels and racketeers that infest Washington. And at last I have decided to tell the story exactly as it should be told."

Further emphasizing her purpose in writing "The Strange Story of a Sap," Mrs. Calhoun read her preface to the book, which presents the aim in pungent phrases and sprightly passages, and reviews many incidents that were told in detail in "The Autobiography of a Chameleon."

Tracing briefly the life history of Daisy Donovan O'Donovan from the time of her birth, through her social career in New Orleans, where she made her debut as the Southern belle, "Daisy Breaux" (taking the name of her step-father), the preface follows her through her years as Mrs. Andrew Simonds, mistress of the famous home she built in Charleston, S. C., the Villa Margherita. It also mentions briefly her years in Princeton as Mrs. Barker Gummere, hostess of Rosedale, and her life, later in Washington, where her two homes were social centers—The Might, on New Hampshire avenue, and Rossdhu Castle in picturesque Braemar Forest in Chevy Chase.

As a leader in civic and social activities in Washington, as founder of the Woman's National Foundation and the Woman's Universal Alliance, Mrs. Calhoun was much in the Washington spotlight.

"Which has been the root of much misfortune that has come to me in recent years," Mrs. Calhoun said. "After building Rossdhu, it seemed my husband and I became easy marks for an unbelievable number of knavish designs and fraudulent schemes that virtually demolished the family fortune.

As she humorously related some of the more revelatory events she will present in the book, Mrs. Calhoun's appearance was quite out of keeping with the "sap" she described herself to be. Attired in a trim gray coat and a hat that matched her silver hair, she looked much the fashionable hostess. Despite her long career in society, she insists she enjoys writing much more than the social whirl.

"Writing is much more satisfying," she said, "particularly when you feel you are exposing the pitfalls of Washington society. As the preface explains, I am putting my pen lance in tilt to charge away at criminals and knaves of all classes—political, social and even legal. And even though, like Don Quixote, I find I am but fighting windmills, I hope to lead the way for some more powerful person to take up the lance from my weaker hand with better effect."

Mrs. Calhoun said she had recently received many requests for another edition of "The Autobiography of a Chameleon," and that she was planning to bring it out again, at the same time "The Strange Story of a Sap" is published.

The latter is her third book. Her second is a biographical account of Lafayette, called "The Loves of Lafayette," based on annals and letters to which she had access. It is now in the hands of a Boston publisher and will be brought out first in a de luxe edition to be sold to subscribers.

Women Voters Will Convene May 7 to 10

Issues of Public Service and Tax Reforms to Be Discussed.

WITH A PROGRAM emphasizing the urgent need for better trained personnel in public service and for immediate reorganization of antiquated tax systems the general council for the National League of Women Voters will meet May 7 to 10 in Washington. Sessions will be held at the Hotel Washington.

A hundred leaders from 38 States will participate. Program plans, which include executive meetings on the league's program topics in their relation to current governmental problems, are being drafted by a committee comprised of Miss Anna Lord Strauss, New York City; Mrs. Augustus M. Roan, Atlanta, Ga., and Mrs. Quincy Wright, Chicago.

The council meeting is a biennial gathering, alternating with the league's national convention. The council attendance is limited to two representatives from each State league organization.

Beta Sigma Phi Meeting.

ALPHA CHAPTER, Beta Sigma Phi, national sorority, held a meeting Monday in the palm room of 2400 Sixteenth street northwest. Miss Alice Flynn, vice president, presided.

The chapter had as its guest Miss Elizabeth Erwin from Oklahoma. Among those present were Mrs. Logan, the sponsor of the chapter; Harriet Bentley, Kathleen Cagney, Helen Marston, Margaret McDonald, Eula McVicker, Bertha Thomason, Relda Roos and Wilma King.

Miss McVicker gave a talk on "Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt" and the chapter received a personal message from Mrs. Roosevelt in the form of a slogan—"Give in order that you may receive."

Miss McDonald led a discussion on "Decorative Textiles and Hangings."

Mrs. Logan will speak on "Rosa Bonheur" at the next meeting of the chapter April 18 at 2400 Sixteenth street northwest.

St. Patrick's Alumnae Mass.

ST. PATRICK'S ALUMNAE Association will hold its annual communion mass at 9 o'clock tomorrow at St. Patrick's Church. Following the mass, breakfast will be served at the Occidental.

Mrs. Annie Leapley Spates, a charter member of the alumnae, will be the principal speaker at the breakfast. A program will be presented by Miss Pauline Gallagher, Miss Hilda Peacock, Miss Dorothy Offutt and Miss Louise Lafitte.

Miss Gladys Carroll is chairman of arrangements. She will be assisted by Miss Elizabeth Dunnington, Miss Nellie McCormick, Miss Louise Brew, Miss Rita Woods, Miss Beatrice Deeds, Miss Ann O'Leary, Miss Verna Rittenmeyer, Miss Margaret Conlon, Miss Elizabeth Conlon, Miss Mary Ready, Mrs. H. Winship Wheatley, jr., Miss Hannah Curtin and Miss Gene Donnelly.

Dr. William Manger, of the Pan American Union, will address Beta Chapter, of Phi Delta Gamma, graduate professional women's fraternity of George Washington University, at its monthly meeting and tea at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in Columbian house. His topic will be "The Political Situation in South America."

Miss Mary Pearce, hostess for the tea, will be assisted by Mrs. Dorothy Graf, Miss Virginia Kinnard, Mrs. George Plitt, Miss Arleta Ahrends, and Miss Sara Branch.

Gamma Chapter, Beta Sigma Phi Sorority will give a "rush" tea from 4 to 6 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at 2400 Sixteenth street northwest. Mrs. Alicegene Carver and Mrs. Marjorie Soper will act as hostesses.

The wives of the members of the 72nd Congress will meet at 12:45 o'clock Monday at the Roosevelt Hotel. From there they will go to Normandy Farms for luncheon.

Mrs. Brent Spence is president of the club and Mrs. Wesley Disney is secretary.

Mrs. Frank Wilkins will speak on her recent trip to India before the Washington branch, American Association of University Women at a luncheon at 1:15 o'clock today at the clubhouse, 1634 I street northwest.

Accurate Diagnosis.

South was able to fulfill a very dangerous three notrump contract on the hand below by brilliantly dropping a doubleton Queen. He was able to do so because he knew his right hand opponent and knew that player in all probability needed that Queen to make his opening bid a sound one. The play of the entire hand and the reasoning which led South to make his accurate diagnosis is recounted below.

East, Dealer.

	♠ 10 7 ♡ 7 4 ◇ Q 8 5 ♣ K J 9 6 4 3
♠ J 8 3 ♡ A J 10 8 3 ◇ 10 4 ♣ 8 5 2	N W E S	♠ A Q 6 4 ♡ Q 6 ◇ K 9 6 3 2 ♣ Q 10
	♠ K 9 5 3 ♡ K 9 8 5 ◇ A J 7 ♣ A 7

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
1◇(1)	Dbl.	1♡	3♣
Pass	3NT(2)	Pass	3NT(3)
Pass	Pass	Pass

1—A shaded opening bid according to most standards. East used a point count to decide upon his opening bid and rigidly adhered to this point count. Seemingly it added up to enough, but it was this very point which later caused South's undoing.

2—Slightly optimistic but justifiable in view of North's free bid.

3—An overbid. North, having bid two clubs freely, should have made the semi-sign-off bid of three clubs, giving partner the option of passing without definite additional values.

West opened the diamond ten, which was properly covered by dummy's Queen, and East's King was topped by declarer's Ace. South stopped and took stock. He had six possible club tricks if the Queen could be picked up, two certain tricks in diamonds and a potential ninth trick in either spades, hearts or diamonds. South was still not certain whether East's opening bid was legitimate or psychic.

To temporize and pick up a ninth trick, South at trick 2 led out a low heart up to dummy's seven. He knew there was no combination of cards with which the opponents could run more than three tricks in that suit immediately, with his own holding of four to the King-nine-eight. West, using caution, won the low heart lead with the ten and continued with another diamond. This lead gave declarer a third trick in that suit. South decided to postpone playing clubs until he found out a little more about the situation. He consequently laid down the nine of hearts. West played the Jack (a high card wasted but costing nothing) and East was forced to overtake with the Queen. East then cleared the diamond suit.

At this point the declarer was reasonably certain East's opening bid was legitimate. That player had a sure entry card in the spade Ace. South therefore knew he could not afford to try to set up another heart but had to take six club tricks immediately. He played the Ace, on which East dropped the ten, and then continued with his low club.

South went into a long huddle. He remembered that East had shown up with only a five-card diamond suit headed by the King-nine. East also was marked with Queen high in hearts and in all probability had the Ace and Queen of spades and possibly the Jack. These cards alone would not have given East an opening bid according to that rigid player's point requirements. South knew the point count on which East woodenly judged his opening bids, and felt certain an additional Queen was needed to make the opening bid sound. That Queen had to be in the club suit and South decided it would be ridiculous to finesse the Jack of clubs even though he knew East would have dropped the ten just to deceive him with the ten and one club. The club King was played from dummy, and when the Queen dropped, South claimed three-odd.

Girlish Styles Bring Inevitable Cape

Short, Attached Garment Effective for Wear in Daytime.

WHEN FASHIONS began to go girlish and to yield to the Regency influence, capes were inevitable. For shortening figure and giving it a childlike appearance there's nothing better than the romantic dash of the Regency period; a long cape is just the thing.

The little-girl fashions show unmistakable signs of being with us until fall, at least. This makes the short cape a really important part of the smart wardrobe.

One of the best ways to hop on this particular fashion band wagon is to have a dress with a cape attached. Separate capes are very much in the running, especially after dark. Fluffs of tulle or net are posed at the top of formal clothes, making the damsels inside them look like glorified Pierrots.

But for daytime it's a good idea to have the short cape match the dress. And it should be circular, by all means. This circular business permits it to swing freely from the shoulders in youthful abandon. It also makes it possible for the cape to hug the throat in the manner of a little round collar on a kindergartner's frock.

The frock beneath the cape is likely to be quite simple. To contrast with the fluttering movement of the costume at the shoulders, it will snuggle close to the waistline, cling to the hips, and then likely as not, flare slightly at the knees.

This silhouette is usually accomplished through gores or through a slight circular cut. But no matter how it is brought about, the skirt is sure to stop several inches above the point where skirts have been stopping for the last few seasons.

In addition to swinging higher above the ground, the hemline of your new cape dress is likely to be uneven. For several weeks the leading designers have been making their evening gowns shorter in front than in back. Now they're using the same idea for daytime things.

The up-in-front movement in street and afternoon things, however, is only big enough to put the skirt safely within the youth movement. Remember when you were a little girl and your frock always hung a bit longer in back? Well, it's the same effect the present-day dresses for grown-ups are trying to achieve.

A radical departure from former styles is the fashion this spring of wearing big hats with capes. Always before, close-fitting headgear has been the rule with this sort or shorter. This, too, shortens the of costume. But now wide-brimmed figure and heightens the little-girl hats are topping cape ensembles, effect every woman is toying with providing the capes are waist length this season.

A flock of the season's highest fashion points are gathered together in this spring costume. First there's the cape, then the up-in-front skirt, then the big hat, and last, but certainly not least, the bunch of field flowers at the throat.

What TODAY Means

"Aries."

IF APRIL 6 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10:30 a. m. to 12:30 p. m., from 1:30 to 3:30 p. m. and from 8:30 to 10:30 p. m. The danger periods are from 8:30 to 10:30 a. m., from 4:30 to 6:30 p. m. and from 10:30 p. m. until midnight.

Sociability is a very advisable thing to indulge in on this date, for it is likely to be the medium through which a pleasant surprise will come to you. Snobbery will create enemies on this date, so do nothing that would enable anyone to charge your being guilty of it.

A situation may present itself that will require a good deal of tact being used, if embarrassment is to be avoided, so be ready to rise to the occasion.

If a woman and April 6 is your birthday, if you will judge the value of a gift you probably will receive, not by monetary appraisal, but by the amount of love which has prompted its bestowal, great should be your gratification. You have the happy faculty of inspiring deep affection in all with whom you come into close contact.

If a man and April 6 is your natal day, your ability will be recognized, sooner or later, and gain you the complete confidence of those with whom you are associated. Poetry and prose, educational work, theology, as well as politics, may provide the medium by which your talent can be best expressed.

Scotch Tweed Odor Instilled Into Perfume

By Ruth Anne Davis.

THE PLEASANT, smoky odor of Scotch tweed has been translated into a perfume. It is a daring departure from the usual conception of perfume but it is refreshing, exhilarating, and truly interpretive of heathered moors and misty glens.

The creator of this delightfully different perfume confesses he was inspired by a woman who expressed her wish for a perfect fragrance. "Something wildly free, yet subdued," she had murmured, "something poignantly tender, yet strong with life."

Straightway he set to work and finally brought forth this divine essence of the out-of-doors. His own analysis of this daring perfume speaks of it as infused with simple candor and brimful of zest, an escape from the tedious and the monotonous. It is a hearty fragrance of the sort that is so rare it never tires. To its wearer it brings an outlook as fresh and invigorating as itself.

Resembles Odor of Cut Log.

It is a composite scent of many delightful but unusual things. First of all it suggests the tang of tweeds and woolens. To many its penetrating clean scent, only faintly fragrant, reminds them of the breeze-swept stretches of heather in Scotland and France. That clean scent, just slightly sharp, is somewhat like that aromatic scent of freshly cut wood.

Of course this is the sportswoman's own perfume, either a scent she chooses to wear always as an index of her type or one that she reserves for those out-of-door hours spent in healthy vigorous exercise. Men respond at once to its subdued but pleasant tone, and use it without qualm on their handkerchiefs and other linens. It revives their suits from that dull lifelessness they acquire after long hanging in closets, giving them a perky breeziness that is so essentially masculine.

A New Toothbrush.

The answer to healthier gums, stronger teeth and prettier smiles lies in a new tooth brush which has round end bristles. With this brush you can massage the gums until they glow with the warmth you feel when the body is rubbed with a rough towel, and without any danger of piercing or scratching the tenderest of gums.

The idea is to brush your gums as well as your teeth. It is necessary that they be massaged to stimulate the circulation and bring the blood to the surface in order that the gum tissue bay be nourished. Gums which are not exercised by brushing and chewing the proper foods become soft and inflamed. This leads to an unhealthy condition of the mouth. The bristles of this brush have been ground and smoothed so that there are tiny invisible balls at the ends, which are most effective in treating the gums without discomfort or pain. The teeth, as well, are thoroughly cleansed and polished by the tufted bristles which penetrate every crack and crevice.

The bristles are securely sealed in the handle so they won't come out and there are tifted tips for getting at those rear molars which are so difficult to reach.

The handles of the round-end bristle tooth brushes are gayly colored in eight different shades so that each member of the family can readily distinguish his own brush.

Spring Fever in the Skin.

Scientists today tell us that "spring fever" is simply Nature's way of reminding us that for the past few months we have let ourselves get into winter habits of thinking, living and eating. With the warmer weather, what we really need is not sulphur and molasses but a change—a break in the routine that will give us new pep and energy.

The same thing is true of our skins. You may have had the lure of all Egypt in your face the rest of the year, but now suddenly your complexion may lookimpossible. It may be sallow, sluggish, dull, lined, or extremely dry. However, it is not because you have added a number of birthdays during the winter! It is only the skin's way of asking for a tonic—a stimulating, purifying beauty treatment to refresh and brighten it up after a long weary winter.

So just to make it easy for you a certain nationally known beauty expert has packed a spring tonic treatment and some bright cheerful make-up into an attractive little "beautility" kit, handbag size, in red or black alligator leatherette with Scotch plaid lining. It contains pasteurized face cream to cleanse and soften the skin, beauty grains to dissolve any pore-clogging substances and enliven the complexion; skin clearing cream to clear the skin and give it a healthy radiance; and skin toning lotion to refine the texture and firm the tissues. For the dry skin, there is also "youthifying" tissue cream to nourish and correct wrinkles or lines. In addition, the bountiful little kit contains eyelash grower and darkener (now luxurious and silky it makes lashes!) and hand lotion to soften and beautify hands. There is also lipstick and rouge in a bright springy red coral tone and peachbloom powder.

The kit is offered as an Easter special with an attractive price reduction; formerly $5, it is now $3.75.

Wrap Around House Dress Convenient for Mornings

Pattern No. 692.

ALONG with spring cleaning and summer slip covers come thoughts of new house dresses. And when they are as simple to make and to get into as the one shown here, every woman might well have a plentiful supply. It also serves as an apron, but with the graceful shawl collar and the little sleeve caps (cut in one with the dress) it makes an ideal wrap-around to slip into of mornings. The sash draws through a slash in the right side of the front. Cut in sizes 34 to 48. Size 40 requires 4⅝ yards of 35-inch material for the apron and 1⅛ yards of contrasting fabric for the collar.

Rhubarb Recipes Offer Ideal Suggestions for Spring Menus

By Dorothea Duncan.

THIS WEEK'S Post recipe contest for rhubarb dishes brought in a flock of suggestions that will be ideal for warm weather menus. First prize, $3, is awarded Mrs. James McClure, Apartment 206, the Cordova, for her recipe for rhubarb soup or summer cocktail. Second prize, $2, goes to Mrs. J. R. Bullis, 717 Boundary avenue, Silver Spring, Md., for cherry blossom freeze, and third prize, $1, to Mrs. Lillian Boswell, Waldorf, Md., for preserved rhubarb.

Honorable mention is given Mrs. Katherine V. Cissel, 14 R street northwest, for rhubarb fluff pie; Mrs. Orville May, 214 Raymond street, Chevy Chase, Md., rhubarb roll de luxe; Miss Agnes McNeilly, Lyon Park, Clarendon, Va., cheese and rhubarb salad, and Mrs. Charles C. Kennon, 3120 Thirty-eighth street northwest, rhubarb jam.

The recipes follow in the above given order.

Rhubarb Soup or Summer Cocktail.

Enough pink rhubarb to yield one quart of juice
Two cups of sugar
½ teaspoon of arrowroot

Use only pink rhubarb, cut finger length, do not peel. Cook in ½ cup of water until tender. Let cool. Strain through cheesecloth. To 1 quart of juice add 2 cups of sugar. Cook in double boiler 20 minutes. Add ½ teaspoon of arrowroot. Cook until clear. Let cool. Serve in small glasses over finely crushed ice with salted crackers as an accompaniment.

Cherry Blossom Freeze.

1 quart cubed rhubarb
⅛ teaspoon salt
Red cake coloring
1 pint whipping cream
2 cups sugar
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
¼ cup orange juice

Wash the rhubarb and cut into small cubes without peeling. Put in an enamel sauce pan or double boiler, add the salt and orange juice, cover and cook until the rhubarb is mushy, remove from heat and force through a coarse sieve. Return to same pan and add sugar and nutmeg and cook until smooth and jelly like, then add enough red cake coloring to make the rhubarb a lovely rose color. Cool. Whip the cream, not too stiff, fold it into the cold rhubarb, pour into freezing tray and freeze without stirring.

Preserved Rhubarb.

Rind of 1 lemon
4 pounds sugar
1 ounce whole ginger

Make a sirup of the sugar with just enough water to keep it from burning and add the lemon and ginger. Cut the rhubarb into two-inch lengths and cook in the sirup gently to prevent breaking. It is better to cook a small quantity at a time. Place the fruit in jars as soon as tender. Boil the sirup rapidly until it is thick. Pour over the fruit and seal.

Rhubarb Fluff Pie.

2 tablespoons butter
2 eggs
1¾ cups rhubarb sauce
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
Grated rind 1 lemon
1¼ cups sugar
2 tablespoons flour
½ cup crushed pineapple
1 tablespoon chopped candied ginger

Cream butter and sugar; add egg yolks, stiffly beaten; beat thoroughly and add flour. Then add remaining ingredients.

Fold in 2 stiffly beaten egg whites. Turn into pastry lined plate and bake for 45 minutes. Have a hot oven (450 degrees Fahrenheit) for the first 10 minutes and lower to a moderate oven (350 degrees Fahrenheit) for the remainder of the baking. Serve with or without whipped cream as desired.

Rhubarb Roll De Luxe.

2 cups flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
4 tablespoons butter
2-3 cup milk
2 cups sugar
2 cups rhubarb (finely chopped)
1 cup sugar
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
2 tablespoons flour
2 tablespoons melted butter
1 cup water
1 teaspoon vanilla

Make a dough as for biscuits using flour, salt, baking powder, butter and milk. Roll into a rectangle about 7x10 inches. Mix the chopped rhubarb, sugar, nutmeg and flour and spread on the rolled dough. Roll up like jelly roll, and cut into six slices. Put the melted butter in a square pan and put the slices in the pan cut side up. Boil the sugar and water together for five minutes, add vanilla and pour over the rhubarb rolls. Bake in a hot oven (450 degrees Fahrenheit) for 30 minutes. Serve warm or cold with cream.

Cheese and Rhubarb Salad.

2 cups juice from cooked rhubarb
1 tablespoon gelatin
4-ounce package cream cheese
¾ cup sugar
2 tablespoons cold water
Lettuce.

Heat rhubarb juice. Add sugar (if rhubarb is unsweetened) and gelatin that has been softened in cold water. Take half of the mixture and fill individual molds half full. Let this harden. Place a layer of the softened cream cheese on this. Pour the remainder of the gelatin mixture on top. Chill. Serve on lettuce with cream mayonnaise dressing.

Rhubarb Jam.

3 cups rhubarb
3 cups strawberries
4 cups granulated sugar.

Wash and cap strawberries, mix fruits and sugar, let stand several hours. Place in preserving kettle, let cook gently until clear and thick. Place in sterilized jars, cover with a thin coating of paraffin.

Object—Not Matrimony

By Lillian Barker

On her eighteenth birthday, Katrina Harman finds that her fortune has been lost, also that wealthy young Tazewell Bronson, whom she loves, returns her affection but has no intention of marrying anyone. In her confusion, she agrees to let him pay for some dresses she has bought and gives him her I. O. U. for the sum involved. Next morning she decides to return the dresses instead, but finds he has already paid for them. She leaves all her friends, determined to find a way of earning her own living. Her money is soon gone, as she has been unable to find work. At last she finds an advertisement for a companion to an elderly woman.

FROM the elevator down to Suite 2235 on the twenty-second floor of the Waldorf Katrina tore, unmindful of the leisurely pace of hotel guests walking up and down the corridor or that "What's your hurry?" look in their eyes as she scurried by.

No, her one and only thought was on that job she was so frantically after. Twenty-five dollars a week and expenses! Before her graduation from the exclusive girls' school two weeks ago that would have seemed like a mere pittance. And now, with three lone dollars in her purse, a nickel having gone into a subway turnstile, such an allowance seemed like a fortune. How quickly and how radically her altered circumstances had altered her viewpoint about money!

But here blinking at her in the sunlight was Suite No. 2235. Her heart expectantly pounding, Trina pressed in the push button and a prim, bespectacled nurse in white uniform, flung open the door.

A Cold Greeting.

"I——came in answer to the—— to the ad in this morning's paper. I mean, of course——the add for a companion."

"And you thought you could fill the bill?" The nurse smiled at the preposterousness of the idea. "But since you are here you may as well come in, I suppose. Step into the foyer and I'll ask Mrs. Fremys-Dillon if she can see you. There are several applicants ahead of you, however. The 'invalid' sarcastically inflected. "is talking with one now in her bedroom. So, in any case, you will have to wait, no telling how long, I may as well warn you."

"Thank you. I am willing to wait as long as necessary." Katrina entered the foyer, mauve-carpeted and well filled with mauve-upholstered chairs and mauve-upholstered sofas, all of which were occupied by the applicants referred to. Only she hadn't dreamed there would be so many, for instead of the four or five she'd expected to see here were—well, at least 20.

Many Were Ahead.

Twenty job-hunters ahead of her! Twenty-one, indeed, including the applicant being interviewed. Would it ever come her turn to go into the bedroom? Too bad she hadn't spied the ad sooner.

Plagued by regret, Katrina watched an inner door, one from living room into foyer, open. Through it came a stooped, tired-looking gray-haired woman in shabby brown dress and brown hat even shabbier—the applicant who'd been in session with Mrs. Fremys-Dillon, evidently.

The next moment the bespectacled nurse, as if there wasn't a moment to lose, ushered in another applicant, also gray-haired but erect, springhtly, smiling and much, much better dressed in a lavender print and lavender hat almost strikingly becoming.

Doubt, fear, hope possessed Katrina by turns. Her poor harassed mind, not even enough money left to meet next week's room-rent, to say nothing of additional expenses! It was hope, though—hope born of desperation—that put a sparkle into her eyes and a spring into her step when she at last, led by the nurse, traversed the living room, all impressively "Early American" in its mahogany furnishings, and crossed the threshhold of the bedroom beyond.

Room Was Impressive.

This room, the bedroom, was impressive, too. In quite another way, however, with its fancy gilt bed, gilt tables and chairs and the old-rose-and-gold chaise longue on which a woman nearing 60, in incongruously youthful petal-pink neglige, lace-befrilled and accordion-plaited, was reclining. A woman with snow-white hair, marcelled and bobbed, eyes large and violet-colored, nose straight and perfectly proportioned; and with a mouth that must have been pretty before age or illness or sorrow—Katrina wondered which—had given it a cynical sag. And this creature so surprising and so anything but sickly looking was Mrs Fremys-Dillon.

"Why, whatever brought you here?" asked the unquestionable beauty-of-other-years, who still had more than mere remnants of beauty, as she surveyed Trina from the crown of her nutshell hat—and the crown was just about all there was to it—to the toes of her blue pumps. "I advertised for a mature, settled woman and here you, a child, have presumed to come. Or possibly 'presumed' isn't just the word. I have an idea you didn't read my ad carefully."

"I . . . I thought I did."

"How could you have thought such a thing? You are neither mature nor settled. How old are you, though? Sixteen or 17?"

Invited to Stay.

"Eighteen. I was 18 two weeks ago and I . . . I feel quite grown up, really. And settled."

"I suppose so." Mrs. Fremys-Dillon smiled amusedly. "Eighteen is terribly old, isn't it. But do sit down, over there in that chair near the window. No, better still, bring the chair up beside my chaise longue. You're such a pretty little thing I would like to look at you close, even if you haven't the requisites of a suitable companion. I want you to tell me about yourself. From your accent I believe you're Southern. I've traveled a great deal in the South—New Orleans, Palm Beach, Aiken, Mobile, Atlanta."

Katrina comfortable in the chair beside the chaise longue, or as comfortable as she could be with the interview starting off so inauspiciously, said:

"I am from Atlanta. I was born there and my aunt and cousin, the only near relatives I have, live in New Orleans."

"Is that so? Well, what are you, a slip of a girl doing up here? Came for a career, I guess. Like lots of career-struck youngsters nowadays, I daresay you figured working in New York would be a marvelous adventage packed with thrills. Right, am I?"

A Long Story.

"No, no," Trina corrected her. "I came up to school. For four years I attended Mme. Jaquemart's School on the Hudson, till I graduated three weeks ago and I'd . . . I'd planned to go back home and make my debut but . . . oh, it's such a long sad story, Mrs. Fremys-Dillon, I don't want to bother you with it . . ."

"I want you to bother me with it. You see, I've just listened to so many unsolicited 'sad stories' from all those applicants ahead of you; from women whose husbands had deserted them for younger and lovelier rivals and so on and so on. Now let's have yours. It's bound to be different."

Blushing, hesitating now and then, Katrina told the old lady in the youthful negligee about the bank failure which had determined her to stay in New York where she had hoped to find work without delay.

Too Inexperienced.

"And here you are still looking—after two weeks! I'm not surprised either. Conditions are so bad, so unprecedented. In these trying times for a young, inexperienced girl to start out to find work! Now just because you seem so misguided and helpless I'm going to give you some gratuitous advice, Miss—what did you say your name was, though?"

"I didn't say, Mrs. Fremys-Dillon, but it's Katrina Harman."

"Well, the place for you, Katrina Harman, is with your aunt." Mrs. Fremys-Dillon adjusted a platinum lorgnette through which she studied her "subject" more carefully.

Trina, embarrassed by the scrutiny and the gratuitous counsel, replied: "I thank you for your advice even if I can't follow it. In conscience I simply can not go to New Orleans.

Might Change Mind.

"You're resolute, aren't you, for all your childishness? You do show character, however, I'll have to give you credit. "If I should change my mind—I'd virtually engaged one of the applicants preceding you, the attractive middle-aged woman in lavendar—and decide to give you a trial do you suppose you could become a capable and dependable companion? I travel considerably, as I told you, and I must have someone I can count upon. Could I count on you, do you think?"

"I know you could, Mrs. Fremys-Dillon. I know you could."

"All right," sinking back wearily on a pile of boudoir pillows, "I'll think the matter over and you'll hear from me soon, day after tomorrow at the latest. Write your address . . . there's a note pad on the dresser . . . and then run along, child. I'm absolutely exhausted from so much talking."

Katrina jotted down her address and returned to the Morton street cubicle. Perhaps tomorrow or next day she'd be leaving that miserable makeshift of a "home" for the Waldorf-Astoria and the job as companion to Mrs. Fremys-Dillon.

Perhaps!

Spring Salad Recipes to Win Three Prizes

IT IS TIME for an advance showing of spring salads. The market is full of suggestions. Here are just a few of the fruits and vegetables that will help add a freshness to your salads; strawberries, pineapple and rhubarb, spring onions, new cabbage, asparagus, greens and radishes. Enter your spring salad suggestion in The Post's recipe contest next week. It may win a prize.

Remember that freshness is the keynote. The dressing must be a smart accessory, but never smother the salad. Perhaps it is a bit of Roquefort cheese that will give that desired piquance to your dressing and so change the character of your salad from winter to spring. Include this important feature in your recipes.

Three prizes will be awarded, $3, $2 and $1. Send your recipes to Dorothea Duncan, Home Economics Editor of The Washington Post. Only one recipe from each contestant will be considered.

Type recipes if possible. If not, write them neatly in ink. Check for omissions. Name and address should appear on each sheet.

All recipes should be received on or before Thursday of next week.

Air Curtain to Curb Odors From Kitchen

It will soon be possible to cook corned beef and cabbage, cauliflower, and other odoriferous foods in the kitchen without letting the rest of the house know what is going on. This will be brought about through a curtain of air which will serve as a door at the kitchen entrance, preventing all odors from leaving the room in which the food is cooked.

The curtain of air type of door has already proved successful on the new streamline trains. When it is installed in homes the air will be forced through narrow slits in both sides of the door frame directed toward the center and deflected slightly toward the kitchen. Above the door on the kitchen side will be an exhaust ventilator to draw out this air and any fumes or odors from the kitchen.

Cutter Discusses Heart Resuscitation

Revival Sometimes Is Possible if Failure Is Accidental.

By Dr. Irving S. Cutter.

IS life extinct or can the individual be revived when breathing has stopped and the heart has ceased to beat? Many of us have witnessed demonstrations of artificial respiration. By this means a flow air can be maintained into and out of the lungs, but what about the heart? What about the brain?

The only type of resuscitation that should be considered is that which will probably be followed by the continuance of life. If death has occurred as a result of some wasting disease or of an intense toxemia that has destroyed the power of the organs of the body to function, even though the effort to restart the heart is successful the circulation would be revived for but a few minutes or at most a few hours.

On the other hand there are some conditions that may bring about stoppage of the heart in which extreme resuscitation measures must be used. In these cases there is no degeneration of the several organs and if we can but tide over the few minutes necessary to eliminate the particular poison that has brought about heart failure life may be saved.

Accidental failure of the circulation, particularly as a result of anesthesia, is far less frequent than it was in the period when only chloroform was used. Furthermore, during an anesthetic it is now the rule that the anesthetist shall keep constant watch of the blood pressure, as any rapid fall indicates failure of the circulation.

How long after the heart has stopped can it be restored to normal function? There is one report in which the heart was revived in a man aged 70 more than half an hour after all signs of activity had ceased. Another writer tells of a patient who was successfully revived 20 minutes after stoppage of the heart. In another case a child was resuscitated 12 minutes after apparent death. A. S. Hyman records the case of a man 36 years old whose heart stopped while on the operating table. Epinephrine (the internal secretion of the adrenal glands) injected into the heart 11 minutes after brought about prompt recovery.

When the heart stops the blood pressure falls to zero and, after a few feeble gasps, respiration fails also. If at this point epinephrine is injected directly in the heart (preferably the right auricle), and if artificial respiration is begun, the heart may start beating. Hyman believes that the mere prick of the needle may be sufficient to start the contractions. Several hundred cases have been reported in which resuscitation has been attempted by this method, with success in about 25 per cent. He also reports restoraration of the heart beat through the use of the electric current that is introduced into the heart muscle by means of a puncture needle. Mild electric shocks are thus thrown into the muscle itself in waves varying from 30 to 120 per minute.

Massage of the heart has been attempted in certain cases. With the abdomen open the surgeon may reach the heart with his gloved fingers by pushing up the diaphragm. A similar effect may sometimes be produced by rhythmic pressure on the chest wall in the vicinity of the heart, or by striking light blows on the chest over the heart area.

In this connection it should be pointed out that as circulation fails in the brain certain cell changes occur which, if they are not rapidly restored through renewal of the blood supply, may lead to cell damage. G. Perceval Mills, of the General Hospital, Birmingham, England, calls attention to the anemia of the brain resulting from cessation of the circulation and to the fact that many of these patients survive only a few hours. Revived patients, therefore, may show signs of brain irritation, such as unconsciousness, and behave similarly to persons who have suffered severe head injuries.

Apocryphal stories said to be related by revived individuals describing their journeys over the River Styx with the pilot Charon and the countenances of deceased relatives are figments of the imagination or the result of suggestion.

Wright Gets Post of State Police Head

Baltimore Lawyer Named to Reorganize Department.

Will Serve Until Oct. 1 Without Pay; Road Bond Bill Signed.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Annapolis, Md., April 5.—Gov. Nice today announced the appointment of J. Purdon Wright, Baltimore lawyer and former assistant attorney general, as superintendent of the Maryland State Police, a newly created office.

The appointment was made in accordance with the act passed by the recent session of the Legislature, providing for the reorganization of that department, transferring it from the commissioner of motor vehicles department, and placing it directly under the Governor.

Mr. Wright, who will fill the post until October 1, will take charge of the organization of the department, and will serve without pay during the period. June 1 is the date fixed for the new act to become fully operative.

Nice's Chief Adviser.

Mr. Wright has been one of the Governor's chief advisers in financial matters and otherwise, since he assumed office early in January. He has been practicing law since 1908, and for four years, 1920 to 1924, he served as assistant attorney general.

In making the appointment, the Governor issued a formal statement calling attention to the importance of immediate organization, to the end of promoting efficiency. He said Mr. Wright had accepted the post, though realizing it would mean considerable sacrifice of time from his profession.

Road Bonds Bill Signed.

The Governor today signed the bill empowering the State roads commission to issue $2,500,000 debenture bonds. The loan will extend over a 15-year period and will be serviced from revenue received from truck licenses.

During the day the Governor gave hearings to delegations interested in several local bills. Hearings on measures which precipitated controversy will begin Monday and extend until April 12, after which the Governor will take final action. There are more than 550 demanding consideration.

Nice Is Asked to Veto Ban on Sunday Beer

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Cumberland, Md., April 5.—A number of Allegany County residents have protested the bill passed by the Legislature prohibiting the sale of light beer on Sunday. The protest was made in the form of a number of telegrams sent to Gov. Harry W. Nice, asking him to veto the bill.

It is claimed that a ban on the sale of beer with lunches on Sunday may make it possible for illegal sale of such beverages in "speakeasies." A number of clubs and organizations joined in the protest.

They contend the milder beers are not intoxicating.

2 Virginians Vote Against Aid Bill

Byrd, Smith Oppose Work Relief Report.

By the Associated Press.

One Senator and one Representative from Virginia voted yesterday against adoption of the conference report on the $4,880,000,000 work relief bill.

Byrd in the Senate and Smith, of Alexandria, in the House, cast the negative votes.

Senator Glass, Appropriations Committee chairman and one of the conferees on the measure, voted for its adoption, as did Representatives Bland, Burch, Drewry, Flannagan, Robertson and Woodrum.

When the rolls were called some weeks ago on final passage of the measure, both Glass and Byrd voted "no."

In the House, Bland, Drewry, Flannagan and Woodrum voted for the measure and Darden, Robertson and Smith against it. Burch and Montague were absent on account of illness.

Darden was in Southampton County at the bedside of his father and Montague was in Middlesex County recuperating from a recent illness.

By the Associated Press.

Chesterton, Md., April 5.—Persons riding in the ambulance of the Chesterton Volunteer Fire Department in the future will pay 25 cents a mile for the privilege.

The ambulance has been under repair for some time due to damage resulting from excessive usage and was placed back in operation this week only with the understanding that the charge would be paid. Free service will be given only to patients unable to pay.

Dairy Session Is Interrupted By Auto Crash

By the Associated Press.

Westminster, Md., April 5.—An automobile accident resulting in one severe injury today forced a group of prominent dairymen of the Keymar and Lewistown sections of Carroll and Frederick Counties to call off a conference they had arranged with the State public service commission at Baltimore.

Harry Hessong, of Lewistown, was cut and bruised on the head in the collision of the dairymen's car with a small truck of Frank Lambert, Westminster, at the intersection of the Baltimore boulevard and Cedarhurst road. The others were badly shaken up and they decided to cancel an engagement they had with the public service commission to discuss a milk transportation problem.

They came here to testify before Magistrate George E. Benson at a hearing for Lambert, who was fined $15 and costs on charges of reckless driving and failing to stop before driving into a boulevard. Lambert said his brakes failed to hold when he drove up to the Baltimore boulevard from the Cedarhurst road.

Dr. W. C. Stone, Carroll County health officer, chanced to pass the scene of the accident and gave emergency treatment to the injured. In the dairymen's group, in addition to Hessong, were Marshall Bell, of Keymar, owner and driver of the car; Raymond N. Stull, James E. Smith and Z. V. Siror, of Lewistown.

Head Allows U. of Virginia Peace Strike

Consent by President Discounts Threat of Outbreaks.

Unit of Liberty League Refuses to Join Demonstration.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Charlottesville, Va., April 5. With the sanction of President John Lloyd Newcomb, the University of Virginia will join the nation-wide student strike against war set for April 12.

Plans formulated yesterday at a meeting of the undergraduate leaders and the student anti-war committee call for a mass meeting in the university's McIntire Amphitheater on the morning of April 12, when talks will be made by members of the faculty, students, and a representative of national movements for peace.

It is expected that more than half of the 2,400 students will take part in the demonstration, the first of its kind in the South.

Violence Threats Heard.

J. B. Matthews, of New York, representing the American League Against War and Fascism, will be the principal speaker, joined by Dean Ivy F. Lewis, Prof. Robert K. Gooch and Prof. Scott Buchanan. Murat Williams, of Richmond, retiring editor of College Topics, student newspaper, will preside.

Just before yesterday's meeting, members of the anti-war committee conferred with President Newcomb and Dean Lewis to obtain administrative approval and work out plans for a peaceful demonstration. Some threats of violence had been heard, but with the president's consent to the meeting, no disturbance is expected.

The peace group is asking fraternities, societies, dormitories and boarding house groups to join the strike. Several fraternities signed the agreement yesterday.

Liberty League Stays Out.

The anti-war committee is composed of representatives from the Jefferson Society, debating and literary organization founded during the lifetime of Thomas Jefferson; Madison Hall Student Y. M. C. A. and the National Student League.

The University of Virginia Student Chapter of the American Liberty League, established several weeks ago, has refused to join the movement.

The committee declares that its object is an "active demonstration against war."

Four Heirs Named In Wallace Will

Judge Bequeathed His Estate to Relatives.

By the Associated Press.

Fredericksburg, Va., April 5.—Four relatives were named heirs to the fortune of Judge H. Lewis Wallace by the terms of his will, admitted to probate in corporation court here yesterday.

A sister, Mrs. W. Taylor Smith, of Annapolis, Md., was bequeathed $50,000 and a half interest in the residue of the estate. A niece, Miss Ellen Knox, of Fredericksburg, was left $25,000 and the remainder of the residue.

The document directed other portions of the fortune should go to Mrs. Lucy Decker, daughter of Mrs. Smith, and J. Armistead Lewis, of King George County, a cousin. Mrs. Decker was willed $25,000 in trust, the principal of which she will receive upon reaching 25 years of age, and Mr. Lewis was left $5,000.

Judge Wallace, former jurist and banker, died suddenly last Saturday night following a heart attack.

Bread Lines in the Past, Soviet Citizens Jostle for Papers.

Soviet Correspondent Is Journalists' Guest at W. and L.

By the Associated Press.

Lexington, Va., April 5.—The Soviet Union has successfully done away with all kinds of bread and food lines, but eagerness for news and a shortage of papers has created "newspaper lines," Vladimir Romm, Washington correspondent for Izvestia, of Moscow, told Washington and Lee students here tonight.

Even "bread cards" used to regulate the food supply in the U. S. S. R. for a number of years have disappeared, he said, and part of the population instead waits in line to purchase daily newspapers. This difficulty in getting a paper, however, was attributed only to those who are not regular subscribers.

Romm, first correspondent from the Soviet Union to be stationed at the American Capital, spoke to Washington and Lee journalism students and other members of the student body and professors. His appearance was sponsored jointly by the department of journalism and Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalistic fraternity.

"Our press," the Soviet newspaperman said, "is not simply a means of distribution and circulation of news. It is a powerful factor for organization and education for large masses of people in new forms of work for a collective consciousness, gradually replacing the old individualist mentality."

Tracing development of newspapers in the U. S. S. R., Romm said 6,775 papers were published in 1932 with a yearly circulation of 38,800,000 as compared with 1,260 papers in 1929 with a circulation of 20,300,000 and with only 859 in 1913 in old Russia, when circulation was 2,700,000.

Crime stories, he said in discussing modern tendencies in the Soviet press, are absent from newspapers "unless, of course, something happens which carries political or social significance which reveals that something is going wrong in one of the numerous fields of the economic and cultural constructive work carried on throughout the country."

Retiring Postmaster Honored at Banquet

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Frederick, Md., April 5.—Irving S. Biser, retiring postmaster, was guest of honor at a banquet given by the Service Relations Council of Frederick postoffice last night. Speakers were Guy K. Motter, who succeeded Biser, and the Rev. William C. Royal, pastor of the First Baptist Church, representing the Ministerial Association.

Biser entered the postoffice service 35 years ago as a substitute clerk. He was advanced to clerk, then to assistant postmaster and April 16, 1923, was appointed postmaster and held office for 12 years. He was also the first president of the Service Relations Council.

Love at First Sight Costs Nurse Her $700

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Clarksburg, W. Va., April 5.—Mrs. Priscilla Hixon, 50, former Bridgeport nurse, has asked Pittsburgh police to arrest a man she knew as W. C. Alexander, who, she says, fleeced her of $700 on their way to Pittsburgh on a shopping trip on the eve of their intended marriage.

Declaring she met him only two weeks ago, Mrs. Hixon says "it was love at first sight," but he disappeared, and has not been seen since.

Collegians Ask Repeal of Ban On Hitch-Hikes

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., April 5.—Fifty Bridgewater College students appeared before the Bridgewater Town Council last night to ask that the ordinance against hitch-hiking be repealed or modified.

This protest was made after two of the students had been arrested for "thumbing a ride" to Harrisonburg recently. These students have not been prosecuted.

Mayor F. L. Pope told the students he was sympathetic with them but the town ordinance was passed to protect the public from being solicited for rides from undesirables.

Kenneth Stripe and Gomer Pritchett, spokesmen for the student delegation, said they appreciated the town's position but asked that exception be made for college students, especially for those who wish to return to Harrisonburg before the other members of their party return.

The college spokesmen asked that a zone be created in which the students could thumb rides. Stripe reminded that the students could go out of the town limits and seek a ride and not be liable from the town authorities.

Dr. R. E. L. Strickler, a member of the council, declared that the ordinance may work a hardship on commuting students, especially those from the vicinities of Harrisonburg and Dayton.

The Bridgewater town council agreed to take the matter under advisement and seek to work out a solution.

Social Science Group To Meet in Virginia

Richmond, Va., April 5 (AP).—Invitations have been extended to members of faculties of major colleges and universities in adjoining States to attend the annual meeting of the Virginia Social Science Association to be held at William and Mary College on April 26 and 27.

John J. Corson, association president, today said bids have been extended to teachers of economics, history, political science, sociology and law in a number of institutions. Among these were professors at the University of North Carolina, Duke University, George Washington University, American University, North Carolina College for Women, the University of Maryland, Catholic University and Davidson College.

Fugitive Pair Eludes Hunt In 2 Slayings

Search Narrows Down to Williams, Reeves, Escaped Convicts.

Richmond Experts Seek Identification of Fingerprints.

By the Associated Press.

Fredericksburg, Va., April 5.—The search for the marauding slayers of Mr. and Mrs. John Thomas Coleman at their farm home near here Tuesday night apparently had narrowed today to James Williams and Carney Reeves, escaped colored convicts.

Merger Waller, attendant of a filling station at Thornburg, where two men stopped in the Coleman car after the presumed time of the crime, picked Reeves' picture from a number police showed him and said it was the photograph of one of the men he saw.

The colored proprietor of a restaurant at Richmond described to police two men who he said entered his place and acted so suspiciously that he went out and obtained the number of the car they drove, which later was found to be the machine stolen from the Coleman garage.

Police said the descriptions tallied with those of Reeves and Williams, who overpowered a deputy who was taking them from Alexandria, where they had been captured, to the penitentiary at Richmond several weeks ago.

Richmond identification experts also were attempting today to compare fingerprints obtained at the Coleman home with those of Reeves, taken when he was captured at Alexandria for authorities in Fluvarna County, where he was wanted for housebreaking.

An appeal has been broadcast to officers to watch railways especially for the two suspects.

Smudge Clews Found In Coleman Murders

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, Va., April 5.—A few smudges found in the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Thomas Coleman, murdered in their Spotsylvania County home on Tuesday night, were the slim clews held by police here today to the identity of the two yet unidentified men believed responsible for the crime.

Sergt. John Wright, of the Richmond Identification Bureau, was laboring over a number of fingerprints gleaned from furniture about the house. The Coleman car, abandoned here, also will be examined for fingerprints.

Tree Planting Work Is Started at Easton

Easton, Md., April 5 (AP).—The planting of 550 trees here, part of a town beautification program announced some time ago, was begun today.

Deputy Forester Nelson Fritz and Mayor Hall Rightson are supervising the work and men from the unemployed list are doing the actual work. The trees are to be planted on all streets of the town.

Changes in the Public's Musical Taste Result in a Record Singing Engagement

Bert Granoff Completes Year For the Earle

(Reprinted from Yesterday's Last Edition.)

By Nelson B. Bell.

Tastes in music, in so far as the public patronizing the cinema is concerned, undergo sudden and inexplicable changes.

It was not so long ago—quite a time back, at that—when, in addition to the orchestral overture, the major item on any motion picture theater's musical menu was the "organlogue," involving the various stop combinations of "triple-manual Wurlitzer grands" and all that sort of thing.

The three-manual pipe organs still are component parts of the equipment of every major—as well as minor—theater in town, but they stand there dead, their dulcet tones muted to the world and no one to give them life, vibrance and that sweeping command of musical expression which they, above all instruments, are able to encompass.

A huge money investment is lying idle with the nonuse of the pipe organs that are a part of every picture theater's mechanical equipment. I know of several instruments in the Capital that cost upward of $30,000. Two that I have definitely in mind were purchased at a bargain for $55,000. And not a tone has been piped out of either of them since a time when the memory of man runneth not to the contrary. And that is quite a spell, in reverse!

However, that is all beside the point.

Vocalists Have Call.

The point, if there is any, seems to be that of late vocalists in the orchestra pit have taken the place of the other musical interludes that used to charm audiences into a receptive mood for what was to come later on the screen.

Foremost among the exponents of the new taste in movie music is that handsome elf, Bert Granoff, who carols weekly—I did not say "weakly"—under the baton of wee Freddie Clark at the Warner Brothers Earle Theater.

Bert celebrates his first anniversary—and it hardly seems possible that it can have been that long—as soloist with the Earle Theater Orchestra next week. This, it seems to me, entitles him to some sort of record or other. No other singer ever has lasted that long in any orchestra pit—or out of it, in a picture house, for that matter.

This desk, more or less, has been deluged with feminine requests for the lowdown on Bert's past, present and probable future condition of servitude, if any. So here it is, as nearly as I can gather it.

Bert Bagranoff—and don't forget that that Granoff is merely for the convenience of the ad writers and the electricians who set the lamps over the theater marques—was born in Bald Mount, Pa., at the age of 28.

Maybe I have that wrong. It is just possible that he was born in Bald Mount at the age of nothing and has come along since to the age of 28. At any rate, here he is, having been brought up in St. Louis—handicap enough in itself, as anyone will tell you—but a Washingtonian since 1929, when he came here to enroll as an aspirant for the higher planes of learning in George Washington University. It was here that he became an outstanding pigskinner—which is a sort of polite slang for football player—and a member of the Glee Club, or something.

Sang in High School.

Bert started singing as a member of his high school glee club in St. Louis, "because all of the other football players were doing it." He continued to sing while in college, and after graduation became a member of WRC's Radiotone Quartet, which appeared at the Earle in a special overture one week.

The idea of vocal interludes winning public favor, Guy Wonders of the Earle Theater auditioned Bert alone, and the next week he appeared as soloist in a Spanish overture, singing "In a Little Spanish Town." Since that time he has appeared regularly with the orchestra, under Freddy Clark's baton, presenting all types of numbers.

Bert recalls three outstanding moments in the past year—the week he presented his first operatic numbers; the week he sang "O Sole Mio," as a duet with the famous opera star, Carmela Ponselle, and the night the sound equipment at the theater went out for 45 minutes and Bert was called back into the pit. While Freddy Clark and his musicians played from music, from memory and from pure inspiration, Bert sang all the popular songs he knew and many of the numbers he had learned in college. The result was that almost the entire audience remained until the feature film could be shown.

Has Favorite Acts.

During his year at the Earle, Bert has watched every act many times, but he picks protean artist Owen McGivney and Paul Gerrits, roller-skating version of Robert Montgomery, as his favorites. Two band leaders of national repute have offered him engagements, but Bert prefers to remain in the theater here. His real ambition is to appear in musical comedy or light opera.

The week of voting by his audiences has pretty definitely determined that Bert next week will sing "The Isle of Capri"—which to these ears is a terrible fumble—"Solitude" and "Vesti la Giubba," which last is by way of being that celebrated "Ridi Pagliacci" number that has been done by every tenor with a voice since time immemorial.

But if that is what they want, that is what they will get!

The Studio of Theater Arts will journey to Baltimore tonight almost en masse, as the saying is, to see Katherine Cornell in John van Druten's new play, "Flowers of the Forest." Headed by Constance Connor Brown, herself an artiste to her finger tips, more than 20 of her students and their friends will make the trip. I made it last night and found it eminently worth the travail of crowded roads and late hours. Late hours? I am laughing! What else does a guy on a morning paper know about?

Another One-Act Tournament.

The fifth annual Negro Intercollegiate Dramatic Association One-Act Play Tournament, with Morgan College, Virginia State College, Hampton Institute, and Virginia Union University participating, will be held today at 8 p. m. in Garnet-Patterson Auditorium with the Howard Players, of Howard University, as hosts.

The Hampton Players will present "Submerged," by H. Stewart Cottman and LaVerne Shaw. This is a tragedy of a submerged submarine. The cast is made up wholly of men.

"The Cup of Life," by Francis Marion, a tragedy in an insane asylum, will be presented by the Virginia State Players.

The Morgan Players, who won the tournament last year, will present "Breeders," by Randolph Edmonds. The play takes place on a plantation in the year 1840, and is a portrayal of Southern culture of the period.

A Hudson Valley play, "Joe," will be presented by the Virginia Union Players. The Virginia Union Players, who won second place in last year's contest, are directed by Prof. Arthur Davis.

The winning club receives a prize of $50; the best individual actor also wins an award.

Judges for the tournament will be Mrs. Edith J. R. Isaacs, editor of Theater Arts Monthly; Elmer A. Carter, editor of Opportunity, and J. Newton Hill, professor of English at Lincoln University.

And to that charming young actress, singer and mimic, Mitzi Green, an armful of thanks for the gorgeous autographed photograph handed me by Dan Terrell yesterday. Mitzi is a grand kid—an idea we have endeavored feebly to express in print and over the air these past several days. May she go on to the triumphs that her talents seem so completely to forecast.

Au Revoir Note.

And so at 7 by the clock, we leave you to go on to Baltimore and the premiere of Katharine Cornell's "Flowers of the Forest." Our reactions will appear in the theater lead in the drama section of the Sabbath Post.

"EVERGREEN." Gaumont British picturization of the play by Benn W. Levy, adapted to the screen from Charles B. Cochran's production by Evelyn Williams, starring Jessie Matthews, with Sonnie Hale, Ivor MacLaren, Betty Balfour and Barry Mackay. Music by Rodgers and Hart. Directed by Victor Saville. Reviewed Thursday afternoon by W. A. Whitney.

It is not alone in the field of straight drama that England is invading the American cinema markets, for Gaumont British's "Evergreen" is eloquent testimony that the producers of these United States have no exclusive rights to the fabrication of musical dramas.

Although not so opulently accoutred as most similar domestic presentations, "Evergreen" has the outstanding quality of being a stage story with theater scenes where the production numbers might be produced in a house of ordinary proportions.

Somewhat more dramatic than is usually the case in this rubric, the theme is that of a talented girl impersonating her mother as an actress, dancer and singer. The story opens "yesterday," showing the farewell appearance of Harriet Green on the eve of her wedding. Blackmailing husband No. 1 enters and she renounces everything, even her small daughter, and goes alone to retirement in South Africa.

Scene Shifts.

The scene shifts, and it is "today." The daughter, also Harriet Green, is vainly looking for a job when a press agent gets the brilliant idea to have Harriet 2d appear as Harriet 1st, the perennial ingenue. Complications, naturally, ensue, but in the end her public accepts Harriet 2d for her own abilities. There is a love theme nicely woven into the narrative.

In Jessie Matthews the American cinema public will find a new and charming young woman who shines as a vocalist, a danseuse and actress—with plenty of ability in all three departments. Indeed, her three songs—things about "There's My Love," "When There's Spring in Your Heart," and "Over My Shoulder"—are ingratiatingly offered and pleasing to the ear.

Support and Subsidiaries.

The enterprising press agent is played by Barry Mackay, a lad who some time will blossom out in a Hollywood production. He furnishes the other half of the love interest, and does a highly satisfactory job with both assignments. Sonnie Hale, is the impresario; Betty Balfour, the understudy of Harriet 1st, and Ivor MacLaren, the Marquis of Staines, jilted fiance of the first Miss Green.

What will probably cause as much discussion as UFA'S famed "Ballet Mechanique" is "Lot in Sodom," an allegorical cinematographic version of the Bible story. Only as a piece of camera work can the picture claim distinction, and in that field it stands alone.

These Continue in Popular Favor

Postlude

By Ray C. B. Brown.

Song recital by Carlton Gauld in the National Theater; Alderson Mowbray, accompanist. Program: Arias from "Scipio" (Handel), "Alceste" (Lully) and "Don Giovanni" (Mozart); "Le Manoir de Rosemonde" (Duparc), "D'une Prison" (Hahn), "Les Berceaux" (Faure), "Chanson a Boire" (Saint-Saens), four songs from "Dichterliebe" (Schumann), "Der Wanderer" (Schubert), "Aufenthalt" (Schubert), "The Wreck of the Julie Plante" (O'Hara), "Tommy Lad" (Margetson), "The Last Hour" (Kramer), "Tavern Song" (Fisher).

One can readily understand why Mr. Gauld has attained success on the Paris Opera Comique, for in his arias he displayed the qualities of his voice to better advantage than in the remainder of the program. Those qualities are a fine resonant tone on the full breath, plasticity of phrasing, accuracy of attack, ease of utterance and steadiness of breath control. His diction is crisp and clear, and he has excellent rhythmic sense.

His delivery of the Handelian "Hear Me, Ye Winds and Waves" combined dignity and grace in balanced proportions, and reached emotional effects with sincerity; it expressed the genuine nobility of the declamatory style in song. The unfamiliar aria of Charon from Lully's "Alceste" was given the right ironic stress, and there was a humorous grimness in the oft-repeated line, "il faut passer dans ma barque." And the sly humor in the reading of the "Madamina" aria from "Don Giovanni" indicated that he would be a very satisfactory Leporello.

In lyrics, however, Mr. Gauld exercises too much restraint and curbs sonority to the detriment of his dramatic potentialities. Suavity and sweetness are not characteristics of his voice, and when he attenuates the tone it loses its color. One naturally would not have expected him to shout Hahn's exquisite setting of Verlaine's "D'une Prison," but a more vigorous intonation than he gave it would have it less like a pale lament. For the same reason Schumann's "Im Wunderschoenen Monat Mai" lacked virility, and "Ich Grolle Nicht" seemed a song of resignation rather than of bitter reproach.

When he let himself go in such songs as Saint-Saens' "Chanson a Boire," O'Hara's "The Wreck of the Julie Plante," and Fisher's "Tavern Song," the results were eminently pleasurable. And his reading of Schumann's "Two Grenadiers," as an extra number, was an exemplar of his skill in dramatic contrasts.

Mr. Gauld's attributes as an operatic basso are a credit to his native land. His theatrical instinct is strong, and when "in character" he is a forthright and effective singer. In the lyric field he is as yet too tentative in his approach. Further experience will doubtless give him the assertive accent that he needs.

Spellers Named For Albemarle County Match

Myrtle Hoffman and Howard Glasco to Represent Edgewood School.

Myrtle Hoffman and Howard Glasco will represent the Edgewood School in the Albermarle County match in the National Spelling Bee. Myrtle won first place and Howard second in a contest to determine the school's two best spellers, Miss Lillian G. Foster announced yesterday.

Registration in the bee, which is sponsored in 32 counties in Virginia, West Virginia and Maryland by The Washington Post, is still open. Entries will be received until the county matches are held early in May. However, immediate enrollment is advised so that word lists, which will be ready Monday, can be mailed to teachers.

County Match Prizes.

First prize in each county match will be a copy of the "Wonderbook of Knowledge" and second prize will be Thorndyke's "Junior Century Dictionary." In addition, the two county winners will advance to the area finals, where they will compete for a 12-volume set of the "Encyclopaedia Britannica Junior" and Champlin's "Young Folks' Cyclopaedia."

The Britannica Junior, a reference work that wins the interest of children because of its sprightly presentation of fact and wealth of illustrations, is a prize that is worth striving for. And as it is presented by The Post, for the championship of this area, some boy or girl in nearby Maryland, Virginia or West Virginia will own it when the area finals are held May 18. The winner of this set also will compete for $1,750 in cash prizes against champions from other parts of the country in the National Spelling Bee.

More Schools Enter.

Schools which entered the contest yesterday are:

Central School, Zepp, Va., T. C. Craig, principal, and Conicville School, Roy Lutz, principal, both in Shenandoah County.

Buckton School, Warren County, Va., enrolled by Miss Pauline Slaughter.

Nokesville School, Prince William County, Va., enrolled by C. O. Bittle.

Hamilton Elementary School, in Loudoun County, Va., Mrs. V. Coleman Miller, principal.

Charlotte Hall Elementary School, St. Marys County, Md., enrolled by Mrs. Eleanor E. Reeves.

On Monday word lists will be mailed to all principals or teachers who have enrolled, and details of the county matches, which are being arranged now, will follow shortly after. Meanwhile enrollment continues. All inquiries should be addressed to Alice Fox Pitts, Spelling Bee Director, in care of The Washington Post.

Suspect Is Seized In Attack and Theft

Colored Youth Charged With Assaulting Farmer.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Leonardtown, Md., April 5.—Arrested and charged with assault and robbery of an aged farmer Tuesday at Beauvue, Frank Young, 16, colored, has confessed, according to Sheriff Bernard Love, of St. Marys County.

James Cryer, 80, on his way home after cashing a pension check and making several purchases at a store nearby put the remaining $10 in his pocket and started for home. The assailant struck the old man on the head with a stone, knocking him senseless and robbing him.

Cryer's wife found him lying in the field. She assisted him home. The authorities were notified and after a search arrested Young.

A hearing will be held as soon as Cryer has recovered enough to appear against the prisoner.

Dynamite Found, Inquiry Started

Uncovered Near Home and Newspaper Building.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Westminster, Md., April 5.—Following the discovery of dynamite, caps, fuses and wire near two properties in Union Bridge, Sheriff John A. Shipley, of Carroll County, started an investigation yesterday.

According to local authorities, the dynamite was found on the front porch of a house tenanted by Edward Brown, colored, and also near the plant of the Union Bridge Pilot. Officers said the explosive had not been connected with the fuses and caps.

A survey of industrial plants here failed to reveal where the dynamite was obtained, according to Sheriff Shipley.

Hagerstown Officials Reappointed by Mayor

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, Md., April 5.—Mayor I. M. Wertz today opened his "green bag" of city appointees and in it was contained the reappointment of all officials with the exception of William T. Hamilton, jr., who retired as a member of the park board. J. Ralph Fiery succeeds Mr. Hamilton.

Other officials renamed were: City attorney, Ellsworth Roulette; clerk, Scott R. McKane, engineer; Samuel Greenawalt; tax collector, Charles E. Fry; market inspector, Raymond Smith; plumbing inspector, E. Fiske Elgin; food and dairy inspector, D. E. Callaway, and Frank Bentz, park commissioner.

Alumnae Reunion Is Held at College

Art Exhibit, Other Events at Mary Baldwin.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Staunton, Va., April 5.—Mary Baldwin College inaugurated its first alumnae week-end today, the program of entertainment and services running through Sunday morning. All former students of the institution were extended an invitation to return in order to meet new members of the faculty, inspect the improved physical equipment and take stock of other changes.

"America in a Changing World" is the subject of the week-end program. At noon today Miss Elizabeth Pfohl, dean of the college, discussed "The Contemporary American Novel;" at 3 p. m. Dr. Kenneth L. Smoke spoke on "Social Psychology in America Today;" at 4 p. m. Dr. Karl Shedd led a roundtable on "Latin America," this being followed by an art exhibit and tea at 5 p. m. Twenty-three original water colors by American artists were shown, as well as 40 landscapes in oil by the Landscape Club of Washington. For this event Miss Ruth Spoor was hostess. Tonight the Paris Instrumental Quintet gave a concert.

R. B. Rhodes Asks Leesburg Office

Mayoralty Race Develops as Three-Way Event.

Leesburg, Va., April 5.—Roscoe B. Rhodes, secretary of the Leesburg Rotary Club, today announced his candidacy for town recorder. He is opposed by Hurst Lefferts, newspaper man.

The town election, June 11, will find incumbent councilmen opposed by two former members, Joseph H. Turley and L. T. Frye, the latter a former chief of the Leesburg fire company.

The mayoralty race is a three-cornered affair, with E. N. Bradfield, Charles R. Lowenbach and John T. Hourihane qualified for the race.

Opposition to incumbent office holders in other Loudoun towns has not yet developed. The entire government of Round Hill qualified for relection as follows: Mayor, John A. Lynch; sergeant, J. F. Myers; recorder, Johnson Taylor; council, E. L. Donohoe, H. H. Cooley, Chrales J. Ford, William Goode and S. A. Hersperger.

2 Escaped Felons Get 7-Year Terms

North Carolina Pair Caught Near Stafford.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Fredericksburg, Va., April 5. Two North Carolina convicts who attacked Constable Lewis C. Stewart and Game Warden Douglas Gray, of Stafford County, on March 29, when the officers tried to arrest them on suspicion, were sentenced to seven years in the State Penitentiary this afternoon when they appeared before a special grand jury at Stafford.

The men were sentenced by Judge Frederick W. Coleman, after they had pleaded guilty to charges of breaking into a garage at Stafford and stealing a quantity of clothing. They were not tried on the assault charge.

Judge Coleman ordered the convicts taken to Henrico County Jail this afternoon for transfer to the penitentiary.

The convicts, James Johnson, 29, and George Field, 19, who were captured in the woods near Stafford following the attack upon the two county officers, escaped from a North Carolina penitentiary where they were serving terms for housebreaking.

Virginians Plan Ads for Apples

Horticulture Meeting Set at Roanoke in December.

By the Associated Press.

Harrisonburg, Va., April 5.—Meeting here, directors of the Virginia Horticultural Society voted to hold the 1935 convention of the organization in Roanoke in December and approved plans for advertising Virginia apples.

W. S. Campfield, secretary-treasurer of the society, was instructed to draw up the outline of an advertising campaign and submit it to the board.

The directors voted to contribute $100 toward the Apple Blossom Festival to be held at Winchester late this month and heard J. H. Meek, of the Virginia division of markets, explain his scheme for simplification of apple growing.

President Purcell McCue, of Greenwood; E. D. Nininger, of Roaknoke; J. Frank Jones, of Washington; P. H. Gold, of Winchester, and Frank Wisler, of Mount Jackson, were present.

Two Workers Rescued After Cave-in of Ditch

Westminster, Md., April 5 (AP). Only quick work by fellow workmen saved the lives of two Baltimore Negro laborers who were trapped here Thursday by a cave-in of a deep ditch in which they were working.

One of the trapped men was released in 20 minutes, the other in 30 minutes. They were not seriously injured.

14 Legion Posts Plan to Attend Parley Monday

Series of Area Meetings Will Be Opened at Charlottesville.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Charlottesville, Va., April 5.—Representatives from the 14 posts in the Seventh District, as well as legionnaires from the other nine districts in the State, will come here Monday to attend the first of a series of area meetings of the American Legion, the Legion Auxiliary, the Forty and Eight, and Eight and Forty.

Child welfare and Americanism will be the principal topics considered at the meeting, which will be called to order by Robert L. Insko, of Lorton, department commander. Other department officers who will attend are Vice Commanders R. B. Crawford, of Farmville, and Wilmer Coffman, of Harrisonburg, and Adjutant W. Glenn Elliott, of Richmond.

Following the invocation by the department chaplain, the Rev. David C. George, of Norfolk, greetings will be extended by Frank Ix, senior vice commander of Charlottesville and Albemarle Post, No. 74. Others who will extend greetings are Mrs. Felix K. Parker, department president; J. E. John, grand chef de gare, Forty and Eight, and Mrs. George Williams, la chapeau departmentale, Eight and Forty.

The guest of honor at the meeting will be Homer L. Chaillaux, national director of the Americanism Commission of the American Legion, who will address an open meeting.

At the morning session a child welfare meeting will be held, presided over by Mrs. R. B. English, of Richmond, Department child welfare officer. She will be assisted by Miss Cora Caughan, child welfare chairman of the Legion Auxiliary. The principal speaker will be Frank Hoy, depamtent chairman of West Virginia, who will discuss the child labor amendment.

$874,891 Expended For County Relief

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, Md., April 5.—Maintenance of Washington County needy from April, 1933, to March, 1935, has cost $874,891, of which all but 8 per cent for administrative costs went toward direct and works relief and CWA work, Park W. T. Loy, chairman of the Welfare Board, announces.

The cost of direct relief was $309,984.87 during that period and for work relief $243,548.68, while approximately $265,000 was spent for CWA work.

An increase in the relief load has been noted since it was started two years ago, when there were 1,321 families on relief, until the present time, when there are 2,375 families on relief.

Hagerstown Board Upholds Palmistry

Proposed Ban Voted Down by City Council.

By the Associated Press.

Hagerstown, Md., April 5.—The "revealing of the future" may continue unabated in Hagerstown.

After due consideration, the city council voted down an ordinance which would have prohibited such revealing by "palmistry and other methods." Councilmen felt such an ordinance would have blocked "fortune telling" at social functions, where small charges are made, and at the fair grounds here.

The proposed ordinance was drafted after complaint of a railroad worker that he had been "robbed" while his future was being revealed.

Virginia U. Professor To Direct Commission

Charlottesville, Va., April 5 (AP). Dr. Rowland Egger, director of the Bureau of Public Administration and associate professor of political science at the University of Virginia, has been appointed secretary of a joint commission on research in European public administration, and will leave for Brussels this spring to take over active direction of the commission's work, it was learned today. He will be on leave from the university until July 1, 1936.

The commission, which is a joint body set up by the International Union of Administrative Sciences and the International Union of Cities, is composed of M. Emile Vinck, vice president of the Belgian Senate; M. Edmond Lesoir, chief secretary of the Belgian Ministry of the Interior, and Louis Brownlow, director of the Public Administration Clearing House of Chicago.

Virginia Aid Total Is $16,500,000

$15,259,691 of Amount Received From FERA.

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, Va., April 5.—The Federal Emergency Relief Administration has poured approximately $16,500,000 into Virginia since it was set up shortly after President Roosevelt went into office, William A. Smith, Virginia Emergency Relief Administrator reported today.

These funds have been scattered all over the State providing various types of relief to many classes of people.

Director Smith reported through February, 1935, FERA has supplied Virginia outright grants aggregating $15,259,691 and estimated that the match relief expenditures would be about $1,250,000.

The sum is exclusive of approximately $12,000,000 in CWA money, the money coming to the State under the AAA, PWA, etc., and that provided locally through private relief agencies.

Picard's 67-68 Leads at Augusta; Jones Cards 33, Falters

This Morning...

With Shirley Povich

Louisville, Ky., April 5.

NO dreamer is Bucky Harris. The practicability and forthrightness of the man is written into his every declaration. Te leans, rather, on the side of cynicism. The figurative "humph" with which he greets mention of supposedly star athletes on his own team is the tip-off that the man is devoid of any semblance of hero worship. Bitter disappointments in his managerial career have taught him to stifle his enthusiasm, if any, for likely looking rookies. At the age of 37, he is about as impulsive as the United States Supreme Court. He enthuses about as easily as a man condemned.

POVICH.

Thus it was extremely flattering today to young Henry Coppola when Harris launched into glowing and unstinted praise for the kid pitcher who came to the Nats' training camp at Biloxi six weeks ago heralded no more than Whistler's Father. Anent Coppola, Harris went off the deep end, virtually tumbling over himself in his esteem for the stocky Italian lad who no more than a month ago rated as the rawest of the Nats' rookies.

"If I'm wrong about that kid," said Harris, "I'll never trust my judgment again. I don't care what his experience has been, he has the makings of a swell pitcher—a great pitcher. At least I'm going to find it out in short order. He may mean so much to this ball team this year that I can hardly wait to test him some more.

"With that fast ball of his, he should be poison to those right-handed hitting clubs, especially the Red Sox. And I think he knows how to pitch, too. As I was saying, I'm going to find out. I have a lot of pitchers who need work, but I don't care. Next Sunday in Chicago, I'm going to let this kid Coppola start the game against the Cubs.

"That will be a spot for him—starting against the Cubs in a big city with a big crowd on hand. If he's got the stuff, he'll show it then. That's what I want to find out. Frankly, I can't stand the suspense. The way some of our pitchers are training, there's a job open for a fellow like Coppola right off the bat if he can make the grade. What a break that would be for this ball team."

YOUNG Coppola is undeniably the most romantic figure on the Washington Ball Club at this writing. His rise from the second flight of rookies at Biloxi has been no less than sensational. From a run-of-the-mine rookie pitcher with less experience than most, he has by virtue of concrete performances in exhibition games, stamped himself as a budding, nay, blossoming star.

He's a swart, stocky kid of 20 from East Douglas, Mass., and if little has been written about his background, it is because he doesn't talk much. Off the field, he is instinctively aware that he is a rookie. He seeks out the out-of-the-way chairs in the hotel lobbies, is content apparently to study the passing faces and speaks only when spoken to.

But, even so, he revealed today under the pressure of persistent questioning that it was not Joe Cambria, owner of the Albany Club, nor Clark Griffith, Washington Club owner, who discovered his possibilities, but Joe Cronin who first recognized his talents.

FOR any success that Coppola might have, Bucky Harris can thank his predecessor, Cronin. It was in one of his last official acts as manager of the Washington Club that Cronin recommended the purchase of Coppola from Albany three days before the 1934 American League season ended.

Cronin, moreover, did not even see Coppola pitch in a ball game when he was impressed by the youth's low, fast ball. It was during batting practice on a day that the Nats' manager was in Albany scouting Outfielders Freddy Sington and Jake Powell that he first noticed the speed of the kid who was chucking them up in the pre-game hitting drill. That afternoon he prevailed upon Cambria to send Coppola to Washington that Griffith might be able to take inventory of him.

The joke of it is, Coppola was saying today, that Cronin didn't remember him as the fellow who pitched to him in Boston during batting practice one day at Fenway Park when, as a 17-year-old kid, he asked and received a tryout with the Nats and was dismissed at the end of the day by Cronin with the suggestion that he abandon all ideas that he was a pitcher.

Fans Cheer, Birds Sing, Sun Shines—Jones Rallies Briefly

By Paul Gallico.

A Special Correspondent.

AUGUSTA NATIONAL GOLF COURSE, Augusta, Ga., April 5.—Robert Tyre Jones, jr., was like an old prizefighter today. He won the first nine rounds, scored three knockdowns and everybody said, "Hooray! He's just as good as he ever was." However, it was an 18-round fight and from the tenth on, he didn't win a round. He went out in 33 and gave the crowd the biggest thrill it has had since he retired. Then he came home in 39, which is 3 over par, for a total of 72 strokes, which is even par.

Ordinarily you would not complain about even par on this golf course, but the truth that I am forced to confess is that some of its many subtleties, mental hazards and delicate refinements have not been apparent to some of the visiting professionals. Henry Picard has played it in 67—68, Gene Sarazen in 68—71 and Ray Mangrum the same. Even Charlie Yates, a young amateur, played the golf course in 70 strokes today. Jones, every man's hero, is exactly 11 strokes behind Henry Picard at this writing. An eyewitness would have to tell you that Bob played some pretty bad golf on that back nine.

And yet on the first nine he looked so much like the old Jones that the tournament took heart. His chips were going right up to the cup, his long brassies were rolling into the charmed circle, and he even dropped a long, almost impossible putt on the fifth, where his ball was down in a low valley on the putting surface, and he couldn't see the hole. On the eighth, he laid his brassie second 8 feet from the 500-yard hole, but missed the putt for the three.

And on the eighteenth he hit a real Jones second shot, one of those high irons that comes rushing for the flag like a falling shell, and striking the turf, bounces once and stops dead. This one was 6 feet away, and he holed the putt, but not until the ball hung on the lip for what seemed a Northern winter, until it finally collapsed into the pot. The crowd gave a great yell when they heard he had 33.

For the first time in the two days of the tourney, the tournament committee was beaming. Nice old ladies were all flushed and happy, O. B. Keeler went stepping around with a broad smile on his face, the birds sang sweeter, and the sun even looked out from behind low, heavy clouds. The old master was himself again. If Jones managed to finish with a 67 or a 68, or even a 69, you could see the daubers beginning to go down. And when he took a six on the thirteenth, by missing a little putt after playing safe, you could see people in the gallery stumbling over their own chins.

The real miracle of the current tourney is not, I would say, the machine-like Henry Picard, who apparently is not playing in the same tournament, or even, to judge from his scores, over the same golf course, but Walter Hagen. Mr. Hagen came up with a 69 this morning, which, tacked to his 73 of yesterday, gives him a 36-hole total of 142.

Now, I saw Mr. Hagen at 2 o'clock this morning at the local gambling hall, where the boys and girls go to steady their nerves for the golf matches, and at 2 o'clock this morning, Mr. Hagen's face was all bright and rosy, his eye was agleam, he had a Scotch highball in one hand and a stack of roulette chips in the other. After the round, I asked Mr. Hagen

By Alan Gould.

Associated Press Sports Editor.

AUGUSTA, Ga., April 5.—For little more than an hour today the sun penetrated the low-hanging clouds and the great Bobby Jones projected a flash-back of his one-time championship skill against the gray back-drop of the Augusta National Golf Club's $5,000 Invitation Tournament before yielding the low-scoring honors for the second straight day to Henry G. Picard, of Hershey, Pa.

For the first time since he retired as champion of the world five years ago, the 33-year-old Alanta lawyer shot the kind of golf that made him famous. Negotiating the outward nine in 33, 3 under par, Jones flung a belated challenge to the all-star field. It was a gallant bid but he couldn't make it stick.

Jones faltered on the home stretch and was overtaken by another sudden attack of the putting jitters. He struggled in finally with a par 72 but he had dissapated his hard-won advantage and forfeited a great chance to pass a flock of faltering leaders.

In Tie for 18th Place.

With a total of 146 for 36 holes, the halfway stage of the tournament, Jones was tied for eighteenth place in a field of 65. He was exactly 11 strokes behind Picard, the tall, youthful pro who added a 68, 4 under par, to his previous day's record score of 67, and took a strangle-hold on first place with the amazing total of 135.

Picard, the biggest money-winner of the winter circuit, turned in the low score for the second straight day. He is now 9 under par for a course the professionals consider the finest all-around layout in the country. He came to Augusta after capturing the Atlanta Metropolitan Open with a final 65, 6 under par, so that in his last three competitive rounds Picard has clipped 15 strokes from par with a 54-hole aggregate of exactly 200. He's playing the kind of golf they dream about and will spreadeagle the field unless some means is found to check him.

Leads by Four Shots.

Picard finished today with a four-stroke lead over the field. His nearest rivals were Ray Mangrum, slim Texan, who now lives in Los Angeles, and stocky Gene Sarazen, former open king. Both trailed by only a stroke yesterday with 68s, but subpar 71s for tie second round left them deadlocked for second place at 139.

Par was broken by 14 players, as compared with only 10 yesterday, but only six other players remained within seven strokes of the fast-traveling leader. With a chance to keep pace, big Olin Dutra, the national open champion, three-putted two greens on the home stretch, carded another 70 and landed in a tie for fourth place at 140 with Jimmie Hines, of New York. A stroke behind came Craig Wood, with 69—72—141, while Willie Goggin, of San Francisco; Walter Hagen, of Detroit, and Paul Runyan, the national P. G. A. titleholder, were tied for seventh with 142 each. Hagen, with a 69 in spite of a bad 6 on the eighth, was the only player besides Picard to crack 70 today.

Nine Strokes Behind.

Par golf simply wasn't good enough to make any impression or keep anybody in the running. In fact, the handful with par totals of 144 for 36 holes, including Denny Shute, of Philadelphia, and Johnny Revolta, of Milwaukee, found themselves exactly nine strokes behind.

Jones did not lack for prominent company in the upper brackets. Tied with the Georgian at 146 were Bobby Cruickshank, of Richmond; Jimmy Thomson, the California "siege gun," and Ed Dudley, the home club pro who hasn't been able so far to profit from his first hand knowledge of all the difficult angles of the Augusta layout. Trailing them were such former open champions as Johnny Farrell, Bill Burke and Will MacFarlane, with 148, 149 and 150, respectively. Favorites in the pretournament betting, like Harry Cooper, Ky Laffoon and Horton Smith, the winner of last year's tournament, were bracketed at the 149 level and definitely out of the picture.

Jones Draws Crowds.

For ten holes Jones drew the entire focus of attention and almost all the spectators on the course as the word spread that the Georgian, playing with Sarazen and beating him, was "hot" once more. Over this stretch Bob had every club in his bag working. He sank a

Biff's Transfer To Oklahoma Effected

All Parties Are "Pleased"; Salary Is Understood to Be $7,500.

By the Associated Press.

NORMAN, Okla., April 5.—Out of a snarl of War Department red tape, the University of Oklahoma today plucked a famous football coach—Capt. Lawrence (Biff) Jones—and fraternity row buzzed tonight in gleeful anticipation of halcyon days of victory.

The long-awaited formal announcement of the change came from the War Department in Washington. In Oklahoma City, the university board of regents voted unanimously for the employment of Jones, who commented in Baton Rouge, "I am glad of the opportunity offered by the transfer."

Campus comment was virtually unanimously favorable.

Tired of Huey Long.

Capt. Jones will be transferred at once from Louisiana State, where he tired of the dictatorial tactics of Senator Huey Long.

He will arrive shortly after the Easter holidays and will conduct a two-weeks signal practice.

University officials, after Jones' formal selection, disclosed he had secretly visited the campus here two weeks ago and made his tentative plans then.

When the former Army mentor takes over the football reins next fall, he will find a wealth of sophomore material, described by the retiring coach, Lewie Hardage, as the "best I ever saw." Not only that, he will find 23 returning lettermen aid a schedule "made to order" with opening games against Colorado and New Mexico, teams the Sooners expect to take in stride before running against their Big Six Conference foes.

Large Student Body.

He also will find a "million dollar" fraternity section of palatial houses, the second largest student body in the Big Six Confrence, only Nebraska surpassing the Sooners' 5,000 plus, and political conditions which led George Milburn, Oklahoma author, to call the university "a comic opera college in a comic opera State."

An advantage the new Sooner coach will enjoy is the fact that none of the other Big Six coaches has scouted his system.

Hardage, who withdrew his initial protest to Jones' transfer, could not be reached for comment upon the action of the regents releasing him May 31. His assistant, John (Bo) Rowland, who goes out with Hardage, said he had made no plans.

To Report at Once.

Jones' Army orders, expected within a few days, will direct him to report here "at once," Maj. Gen. James L. McKinley informed Representative Josh Lee (Democrat), of Oklahoma, in Washington. McKinley said this meant "as soon as he can get his things together."

Jones' annual salary as football coach here is understood to be about $7,500, most of which is to be paid by an alumnus' contribution. Hardage's salary was approximately $5,000.

Dr. Guy Y. Williams, Oklahoma director of athletics, said that while Jones has a year and a half to serve before entering the Fort Leavenworth War School there is a possibility he may remain here four years.

Baer, Braddock Fight In June, N. Y. Reports

By Jack Miley,

By a Special Correspondent.

NEW YORK, April 5.—That merry minstrel of mayhem, Max Baer, otherwise known as "the thief of bad gags," arrived here today with the same old moth-eaten monologue he's been perpetrating on the peasants ever since he became the world's heavyweight champion.

If the locquacious Livermore Lothario fights like he talks, he'd be knocked out in any first round, and for his own good it is suggested that Maxie get himself a new act or go back to the woods.

The heirs of old Jo Miller were wondering if they couldn't sue Merry Maximilian for plagiarism after he went into his kersoene circuit routine and flashed funny flips he must have swiped out of the Museum of Natural History.

"The boxing commissioners are mental bankrupts!" cracked the Coast clouter for the 'steenth time. "I'll box anybody, anywhere and at any time if the dough is on the line."

"I fight for glory. My manager gets a third, my lawyers get two thirds and the girls get the rest!" Max mouthed a gag that convulsed his B. C. (before Carnera) audiences. "Braddock is a bum," breathed the Barrymore of the beak-busters—but he stopped short; for just then Jolting Jimmy, the slugging stevedore, arrived on the scene.

"Howzit, Jimmy!" Max greeted the Jersey man as effusively as if he were a long-lost pal.

"Would you be surprised if Braddock beats you?" somebody asked Baer, and the champ may or may not have tipped over the apple cart of the fight racket by exclaiming:

"Anything can happen—if the house is big enough!"

"I really thought you'd knock out Art Lasky, Jim," Baer soft-soaped the guileless Braddock, who was now completely befuddled by the blandishments of Baer's bologna.

As a matter of fact, when Jimmy and his midget manager, Joe Gould, decided to crash the Baer interview, James (Jackanapes) Johnston, the Garden's Peter Pan matchmaker, had steamed Braddock up to taking a punch at Maxie for the mean things Baer had been saying about him in interviews as he traveled from California eastward.

"If Baer makes one nasty crack, I'll 'puck' him right on the lug," vowed the puncher from Pier 6. But Baer didn't—and the forthright Jimmy accepted his olive branch. Braddock beamed, Jack Dempsey smirked and Baer lost his cockiness when somebody remarked as the three posed for a group photo in Dempsey's tavern:

"Ah—three world's champions—past, present and future!"

Concluding the interview, Baer gave his opinions on the fair sex, which are too familiar to be reprinted here. He said something about going down to an insane asylum and getting himself a raving beauty—but, after all, Jimmy Durante said that first.

While the champ and his hard-headed manager, Ancil Hoffman, popped off about the possibilities of a Baer-Schmeling fight abroad, the low-down on the heavyweight situation is this:

Baer will fight Jimmy Braddock here in June, New Yorkers hear, and the Man Who Came Back will give him a tough tussle!

Dunlap Meets Druggist at Pinehurst

Johnson, Playing His First Big Event, in Finals After an Upset.

By the Associated Press.

PINEHURST, N. C., April 5.—Johnny Johnson, Lumberton, N. C., druggist, who was overlooked when the tournament started, today shot himself into the final round of the North and South amateur golf championship with George T. Dunlap, jr., the defending title holder.

While Dunlap was nosing out Arthur F. Lynch, Mamaroneck, N. Y., 2 and 1, in a great semifinals battle, Johnson smothered Ray Lenehan, Providence, R. I., the medalist, with pars and birdies, and won, 5 and 4.

The phlegmatic, 30-year-old druggist who has never won an important tournament, fired a 34, 2 under par, on the out nine, and was 4 up at the turn. For the five holes played on the inward nine, he was 1 over par, but nevertheless picked up another hole on the Providence star.

But for some ragged work on the greens, Lynch might have handed Dunlap the first defeat the 1933 national amateur champion has suffered at Pinehurst, where he learned his game, in six years.

Dunlap Off Form.

Dunlap was not playing well and with a 39 on the first nine stood 2 down at the turn. The Mamaroneck youngster held a lead of 1 up going to the fourteenth, but lost the next three holes.

Three putts cost him the fifteenth and he lost the sixteenth to a birdie four when his second shot, a brassie, proved too strong and went over the green.

Their tee shots from the seventeenth stopped within six inches of each other, but Lynch again three-putted to lose the hole to Dunlap's par 3 and the match.

The final tomorrow will present two contrasting types. Dunlap judges and plays his shots very quickly, while Johnson is one of the most deliberate players who ever performed here.

The Lumberton golfer started immediately behind Dunlap today, yet played so cautiously that he was only on the twelfth hole when Dunlap and Lynch were finishing.

Occidental Pinmen Set World Record

Roll 6,417 for 10 Games, Trim Blue Ribbons.

The Occidental bowling team won a ten-game match from the Connecticut Blue Ribbons at the Vonvention Hall last night by 153 pins, setting a new world record by scoring 6,417 for the ten games.

The Blue Ribbon team, whose previous world record of 6,437 was shattered by 70 pins, scored a total of 5,264 for the ten games.

Grove Touched For 6 Hits in 2 Innings

Red Sox Win by 4 to 2; Tigers Blanked, 1-0, as Johnson Hurls.

By the Associated Press.

ATLANTA, Ga., April 5.—Bob "Lefty" Grove, the Boston Red Sox' major pitching problem, received harsh treatment today from the Atlanta Crackers, who gained a 4-2 victory in a six-inning game that was shortened by rain and darkness.

Grove worked but two innings, and the Crackers belted him for six hits, which, combined with four passes, accounted for all of their runs. Manager Joe Cronin remained out of the contest.

Savanah, Ga., April 5 (AP).—Pulling out of numerous holes, with the aid of snappy fielding, Si Johnson pitched the Cincinnati Reds to a 1-to-0 victory over the Detroit Tigers in an exhibition game here today.

Nashville, Tenn., April 5 (AP).—The first of three scheduled exhibition games between the Cleveland Indians and Nashville's Southern Association Club was rained out today. The teams will meet tomorrow and Sunday.

Birmingham, Ala., April 5 (AP). Tony Lazzeri drove in five runs today as the New York Yankees came from behind to tie the score in the ninth and then count five times in the tenth to defeat the Birmingham Barons, 12 to 7.

Lazzeri sent two runs across the plate in the first with a single, another in the fifth with a triple, and two more in the ninth with another one-bagger to knot the count.

Charley Ruffing, making his second start of the spring for the Yanks, lasted only two innings, during which he was slugged for seven hits and six runs.

Owens Sets World Record for Dash

St. Louis, April 5 (U.P.).—Jesse Owens, Ohio State Negro star, tonight tied the world record for the indoor 500-yard dash. He defeated Jimmy Owen, Iowa University sophomore sensation, who was second, and Ed Hall, unattached, former Kansas University ace, was third.

The event was the fist of two special arces on the St. Louis relays program here.

Nats Stymied By Rain at Louisville

Planning to Use Burke, Russell, Cappola in Chicago Games.

By Shirley L. Povich,

A Staff Correspondent.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 5.—In what has been jokingly referred to as the Sunny South, the Nats were stymied by rain again today. They devoted the bulk of the daylight hours to preparing themselves for the approaching pennant race through the medium of the hotel slot machines, which is rar good exercise for the finger tips and vocabulary.

Their scheduled game with the Louisville Colonels was washed off the program by a morning cloudburst that transformed the field into a lagoon. It was the fifth cancellation in the Nats' eight days on the road, and mention of the weather is low humor to Manager Bucky Harris these days as he sees his ball club arriving nowhere rapidly in its training campaign.

In desperation, shortly after noon, Harris routed his ball players out of the hotel without lunch and herded them into the local ball park in an effort to salvage some part of the afternoon. By dint of super detective work, he found a dry area—under the stands—and turned his squad out for a bit of pitch and catch. Hitting practice, sadly needed, was out of the question.

Trip North Is Joke.

The Nats' barnstorming trip North has already taken on the aspect of a joke, competitively and financially. In plain language, it has been a flop. The team was rained out twice in Chattanooga, twice in Nashville and once here at great cost to both the team's condition and the club officials' hopes of recouping a portion of the training expenses.

While the club officials in Washington probably are stewing over the lack of gate receipts on the tour, word comes from Chicago, where the Nats are scheduled to play the Cubs tomorrow and Sunday, that the weather bodes ill for any games.

That would be the unkindest cut of all. In the event that the Nats are unable to meet the Cubs, the expected gate receipts of the homeward trip would be cut to a ridiculous figure. It was in Chicago, where $10,000 was netted by the Nats in the two games last year, that Clark Griffith expected to regain half of the $20,000 outlay required to foot the club's training expenses.

The backwardness of his pitchers continues to be the bane of Harris' reign as manager. Earl Whitehill's pathetic performance against the Louisville club here yesterday when at one point the Colonels slammed his pitching for seven consecutive base hits, proved no balm to Harris.

At that, the Nats' manager was not unduly alarmed at the failure of the man upon whom the bulk of his pitching hopes rests. "It was no fun of course, seeing Whitehill pounded like that," he said, "but that doesn't disturb me. He just had a bad day, that's all.

"Why, out there under the stands today he had more stuff on the ball while just warming up than he had in yesterday's game."

Off for Chicago.

The squad entrained tonight for Chicago and Harris is almost devout in his hopes that the two games with the Cubs can be played. On pre-season comparisons, his club, especially his pitchers, is far behind every other team in the league at this writing. On every other club, at least one pitcher has gone the nine-inning route. Several clubs number two and three. Not a Washington pitcher has hurled more than six innings.

At Chicago tomorrow Harris plans to send Bob Burke and Jack Russell to the mound. Burke is now rated the No. 2 pitcher on the squad, but Russell in his few appearances has been about as effective as the Swiss fleet.

On Sunday at Chicago, weather permitting, Harris will give young Henry Coppola his big chance to earn a regular berth on the Nats' staff. He will start the game against the Cubs. Monte Weaver will bring up the rear.

Cumberland to Hold City Swimming Meet

Cumberland, Md., April 5.—At a meeting of athletic officials of La-Salle Institute, Allegany High School and Pennsylvania Avenue High School last night at the Central Y. M. C. A., arrangements were completed for the city championship swimming meet which will be held in the "Y" pool on Wednesday night, May 1.

The meet, which has been a dual affair between Allegany and Penn for the last six years, developed into a triangular contest when La-Salle Institute, represented by Coach Pat Conway, accepted an invitation to participate in the swim.

There's No Joy in Fayetteville as Babe Ruth Strikes Out

By the United Press.

FAYETTEVILE, N. C., April 5. The mighty Babe struck out today. Ten thousand fans went home disappointed. They came from Grandfather Mountain, in the west, to Hatteras, on the coast, to see George Herman Ruth hit a home run, but the best the Bambino could do was two walks in four trips to the plate.

There was no joy in Fayetteville today, for the mighty Sultan of Swat struck out in his last trip to the plate. They stood up and pleaded with the Babe to hit one out over the fence, 600 feet away.

The game was called in the sixth inning because all the balls were lost. As fast as they were fouled into the crowd, youngsters snatched them up. Around 100 balls disappeared in that manner. The final score was 6 to 2 in favor of the Braves.

The Babe was as disappointed as the 10,000 fans who came to watch him play. "I tried to park one out of the lot," he said, "but it just couldn't be done today."

Asked about possibilities for the 1935 season, the Babe replied:

"I'm liable to get into a hitting streak and knock the hell out of 'em. Our chances to win the pennant are fair. There are several teams in the league that we are going to have trouble with, but we're going to give 'em a run for their money."

In the crowd today were old timers who saw Ruth swing from his heels just 21 years ago to hit his first home run in professional baseball, and the longest ever recorded here. He was at that time a pitcher with the Baltimore Orioles.

A royal welcome was given the Babe. All stores in town closed, and he was presented with the key to the city. In this small North Carolina town Ruth is the hero of young and old. They cried and yelled in vain for a home run, but the Bambino swung and missed.

North Carolina State made eight hits off Pitchers Betts and Hogan, while the collegiate hurlers, Flythe and Fleeman, held the Braves to seven hits. The Bostonians made two errors, both by Ruth, and State three.

Sang Froid, $11.30, Wins Nancy Sheridan Handicap at Bowie

Double Pays $101.50 to Backers

Ste. Louise, at $43, Last Time Figure in Combination.

By Walter Haight.

SANG FROID was the leading man in the Nancy Sheridan Handicap, named for the leading lady of the National Theater players, at Bowie yesterday afternoon. Sang Froid's cue came in the stretch and, under some hustling and bustling by young Bobby Merritt, he went out into the spotlight to win by three parts of a length.

Canterbury, half of the Small entry, tried to steal the show but he could save only the place money from the determined late rush of Prince Abbot.

Quickly, which drew most of the backing to the Smallman pair, must have gotten the hook. After setting a swift pace, he slowed to a walk and his case looks like one for the Theater Guild. The Greentree entry, Impunity and the others might as well have been doing a mob scene for they served only as background for the real running of the six-furlong race.

Follows Pace-Setters.

Sang Froid followed the pace of first Quickly and then Canterboy before playing the hero role when straightened out in the stretch. His performance, played to a house of some 7,000, resulted in a $11.30 payoff.

The day was damp and cold, but not for the successful daily double players. They stood in line while $101.50 was counted out to each and every customer with a ticket "2 and 1." The medium of the collection was the combination of Ste. Louise, a long shot, in the first, and Last Time, the third race favorite.

The daily double pool continued to climb. The total of $19,320 was $8,000 more than opening day and set a record for "double" betting in the East. At that, some 500 were in line when the windows were closed.

The daily doubles based on short prices in the first race were kicked higher than a kite when Ste. Louise surprised by galloping home ahead of John Tio and Clapping Jane to pay a $43.50 mutuel. Ridden by J. Pollard, Ste. Louise went to the front a few yards from the barrier and it was all over but the shouting. Carver, the well-played Vanderbilt representative, was last all the way.

Favorite Players Cheer.

The favorite players were given cause to cheer in the second race. Parva Stella, outclassing her opposition, came up on the outside of Hiatus to win going away by half a length. Hiatus held on for the place and Sun Camp took the show money. Jockey Fallon had to do some maneuvering with Parva Stella. She was blocked entering the stretch, dropped back and then came around to make it an impressive performance. It was the fifth victory of the meeting for the Vanderbilt forces and the mutuel was $4.10.

Last Time made it two in a row for the choice backers and supplied the second half of the daily double. With Earl Porter in the saddle, the daughter of Happy Time came from behind in the stretch to collar Happy Easter inside the sixteenth pole. Boocord was third in the field of nine. Boocord had nothing left after racing Vanda Cerulea into defeat.

Close Finish Booed.

The pine trees along the back stretch echoed the boos that greeted the placing numbers at the finish of the fourth race. Black Falcon lost Jockey Jones at the break and finished inside of Zulu Lad and Smear. Many customers and virtually everyone in the press box called it Smear's race. The judges said Zulu Lad took it, and they had the final say. Zulu Lad raced Clear Knight into the ground while Smear was coming from far back in the field.

The riderless Black Falcon bothered Lofty Lady in the stretch and Jockey Pollard was forced to grab the free horse's reins to get clear. Bobby Jones was not hurt in the fall.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—STE. LOUISE, $43.50, $18.10, $9.40; JOHN TIO, $4.90, $2.90; CLAPPING JANE, $3.30.

STE. LOUISE went into command with a rush after breaking forwardly, shook off JOHN TIO after the opening furlong, drew clear, and had much in reserve during the closing stages. JOHN TIO went in close attendance of the winner during the opening furlong, but was outrun after reaching the home stretch and had to be hard hustled to stall off CLAPPING JANE. Latter saved ground in the early running, responded to strong pressure, and closed gamely. MARNAN displayed speed in the opening furlong, but was held safe thereafter. TIME LIGHT lost ground and could not better her position. FAIRDERA and CARVER were never factors.

SECOND RACE—Four furlongs; claiming. Purse, $500. For 2-year-olds. Start good from gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:13. Off at 3:17. Winner, A. G. Vanderbilt's ch. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—PARVA STELLA, $4.10, $2.80, $2.60; HIATUS, $3.30, $2.50; SUN CAMP, $6.90.

PARVA STELLA broke sluggishly, but settled in stride quickly to enter a forward position during the opening furlong. She responded resolutely after reaching the home stretch, bettered her position while on the outside, and came strongly to get close approaching the finish. HIATUS followed in close pursuit of BALLAD SINGER early, gained a slight lead in the closing furlong, but could not resist the winner's rush. SUN CAMP went close up in the early stages, was kept under stout urging, and outstayed BALLAD SINGER when the real issue came. BALLAD SINGER showed good speed for three furlongs, then tired steadily. NATALIE ALICE was in close quarters when rounding the turn. She tired. ANGUS was unable to menace. VITO broke slow and lacked speed.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward (foaled in Maryland). Start good from gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:45. Off at 3:47. Winner, J. E. Two-dollar mutuels paid—LAST TIME, $3.60, $2.60, $2.30; HAPPY EASTER, $6.50, $4.80; BOOCORD, $3.60.

LAST TIME, outpaced for the first half-mile, worked his way to the leaders on the inside until reaching the home stretch, swung to the outside when straightened for the closing drive, gained command inside the closing furlong and was under strong handling to withstand HAPPY EASTER. Latter bettered his position on the inside after reaching the homestretch and was wearing the winner down slowly at the end. BOOCORD was used up racing with VANDA CERULEA and he weakened when the real test came. VERITAS was unable to challenge seriously when put to a stout drive. PEKIN awakened after a half-mile. VANDA CERULEA went strongly for five furlongs, then tired fast. The others could not reach a contending position.

DAILY DOUBLE (FIRST AND THIRD RACES) PAID $101.50.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ZULU LAD, $4.30, $2.80, $2.50; SMEAR, $3.50, $2.80; PRETTY WISE, $4.20.

ZULU LAD, a keen factor in the early racing while following CLEAR KNIGHT, wore the latter down after reaching the home stretch, then was kept under severe pressure and barely lasted long enough. SMEAR worked his way up steadily on the outside and came with excellent courage to the finish, wearing the winner down at every stride. PRETTY WISE raced prominently from the beginning and fought it out with good courage in the closing drive. LOFTY LADY shuffled back soon after the start, was carried very wide by the riderless BLACK FALCON. Pollard caught hold of the riderless racer when straightened into the home stretch in an endeavor to avoid interference, and then his mount closed fast when clear. ADVOCATE JUNIOR raced steadily for five furlongs and then tired. DON DULCIE failed to menace the leaders. CLEAR KNIGHT stopped badly. BLACK FALCON lost his rider when the break came.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $800. The Nancy Sheridan Graded Handicap. Class "C." For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:53. Off at 4:55. Winner, Howe Stable's b. g. (5), by Sal Sang—Sardonyx. Trained by P. M. Walker. Value to winner, $625; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:23 2-5, 0:48, 1:14 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SANG FROID, $11.30, $3.90, $3.00; †CANTERBOY, $2.50, $2.30; PRINCE ABBOT, $7.10.

SANG FROID, away nicely and a keen factor early, responded strongly to displace CANTERBOY midway of the home stretch, then came out steadily when kept under severe pressure. CANTERBOY followed close up and on the inside in the early racing, took a slight lead in the last half-mile, saved ground, but could not resist the winner in the final drive. PRINCE ABBOT worked his way up on the outside and finished full of run. BOSTON BROOK came with good speed during the stretch run. BASQUINE passed tiring horses. QUICKLY began tiring under her weight after a half-mile. WARD IN CHANCERY lacked speed. BEYOND DOUBT was held safe. CURRANTS stopped badly.

SIXTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:25. Off at 5:26½. Winner, F. A. Kearns' b. h. Two-dollar mutuels paid—CAPT. JERRY, $11.30, $5.00, $5.00; FLAXEN, $13.40, $7.30; ON LEAVE, $4.80.

CAPT. JERRY, rated along on the outside of BRAINS after reaching the back stretch, displaced the pacemakers when reaching the home stretch, drew clear, but had to be shaken up nearing the finish to withstand FLAXEN. Latter, slow to settle in her stride, bettered her position rapidly in the last three-sixteenths and finished with good courage. ON LEAVE worked his way up on the outside and finished gamely. PENCADER lacked speed and was never a formidable factor. FRIEND WHITEY went through on the inside of the leaders to take command when leaving the back stretch, but failed to rally under a drive. SCOTCH SOLDIER weakened fast after six furlongs. BRAINS stopped badly.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:54. Off at 5:58½. Winner, L. Haymaker's b. or br. g. (6), by Bright Knight—Burd Helen. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $625; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:24 3-5, 0:50 2-5, 1:16 3-5, 1:44 3-5, 1:51 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BRIGHT BIRD, $7.80, $3.90, $3.40; SUN ABBOT, $4.10, $3.40; IDLE FLIRT, $3.40.

BRIGHT BIRD, in the thick of contention and steadied for the first six furlongs, took command willingly when placed to a hard drive, stalled off stout contention from IDLE FLIRT and had enough in reserve to withstand SUN ABBOT. Latter went close up and on the outside of the leader, was placed to vigorous punishment in the last half-mile, and closed gamely. IDLE FLIRT secured an run on the inside to gain command at the final turn, saved ground thereafter, but hung near the end. FAIR MOLE faltered after setting the pace. RETRIBUTION was held safe. INFILEE suffered interference at the first turn. WAR TIDE raced poorly. SUN CLOISTER stopped.

Atcheson and Platak Advance to National Handball Final

Both Score Easily Over Rivals

The "Mechanical Man From Memphis" won the first game of his match with Bruck easily, 21-2, and found the going a little harder in the second, but managed to stave off his rivals belated rally to triumph, 21-13.

Atcheson Is Favorite.

Although he is favorite to win the title tonight, Atcheson must defeat a man whom George Nelson, former champion, was unable to conquer. Platak earlier in the tournament sprang one of the biggest upsets of the season when he subdued Nelson.

The small bleacher space surrounding the Y. M. C. A. courts were packed again last night, and the fans weer offered their greatest exhibition of the tournament.

Jones' Brief Rally Heartens Friends

what time he had got to bed, and he very frankly told me that it was 6 o'clock in the morning when he took a brief nap to prepare him for his test of nerve and skill at 11:30.

Mr. Hagen then added, cheerfully, that out of four times, he had been to bed at 6 o'clock in the morning in three of them. He said, "Do you know what I had for breakfast this morning? Rum and orange juice. That's all I had to eat. I should have had a 67. I relaxed my grip at the top of my swing on the eighth and hooked over into the woods. I was blocked getting out and had to take a 6. But I didn't have any more 5s and 6s after that."

Walter Hagen is unquestionably the Harry Greb of the golf world, and I revere him for it. He says he can't play when he gets too much sleep because his nerves are so steady it makes him jumpy. He is very fond of sitting in the gambling hall with chips in one hand and a highball in the other, and he has made his compromise with golf. If his golf is not able to keep up with his nocturnal energy and habits, then it is just too bad for golf, which is a sissy game, anyway, played out in the fresh open air under the sun and amid the birds, trees and flowers.

To date golf has accepted him very meekly. If somewhere there is a semi-divine highball counter and bedtime checker-inner which is supposed to punch late hours, and fast elbow lifting with 6s, 7s and 8s on the score cards, Hagen has it buffaloed. A gentleman who stays up until 6 in the morning sipping and gambling has no business shooting a 69 four or five hours later, but Hagen does. There is hope for the rest of us.

Dartmouth Is Winner Over Generals, 4 to 0

Lexington, Va., April 5 (AP).—Hitting in the pinches and playing heads-up baseball Dartmouth pushed across two runs in both the fourth and fifth innings here this afternoon to defeat Washington and Lee, 4-0. Six innings of the game were played in a steady rain that made the field soggy, but the fielding was perfect and not a single error was chalked up against either team.

Barrett tallied first for Dartmouth in the fourth on Hart's fly to deep center and Casey crossed the plate a few minutes later when Ray singled to right field. Conathan and Barrish stole home from third in the fifth when the Generals handled the ball carelessly.

Jaynes went in for Dartmouth in the sixth and Pette for the Generals in the seventh and staged a pitching duel, each striking out five men.

W. and L. filled the bases in the fifth, but Ray ended the threat when he snagged Mattox's liner and stepped on the bag for a double play.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Alexandria, April 5.—Lee-Jackson High School girls' baseball team opened its season on the Lee-Jackson diamond this afternoon, shutting out Clifton High, 12-0, in a Fairfax County Interhigh League game.

Misses Ayres and Hawes formed the winning battery, while Misses Riggles and Dewittles pitched and caught, respectively, for the visitors. Miss Windsor was the star for Lee-Jackson with two home runs.

Freddy Miller Is Sought for Bout Here

MATCHMAKER Goldie Ahearn, the boxing half of the boxing-wrestling firm of Ahearn and Joe Turner, yesterday made a bid for a title fight for Washington by relaying to Freddy Miller an offer of 37½ per cent to defend his featherweight championship here in July against the winner of an elimination tournament now in progress.

"We must have outstanding bouts at the ball park to hold the interest of the crowd," Ahearn said. "I think this is a title-bout town, and Turner and I want to be the men to give it to them. The winner of our featherweight elimination tournament certainly will be a strong contender, if not the leading challenger for the featherweight title, and we want Washington to get the bout toward which we are working."

Ahearn has Joe Doherty, an Irish club fighter, matched with Frankie Wolfram, a Canadian entry, in the main bout for the Auditorium next Monday night. The winner will meet either Pete Sarron, or his conqueror, Joe Rivers, in a later bout. Sarron was to have taken part in Monday night's bout, but a cut eye, suffered in trouncing Rivers, forced him from the ring for at least one month.

New Bi-County League Formed by Five Teams

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Charles Town, W. Va., April 5.—At a meeting of representatives of five baseball teams in Jefferson and Berkeley counties it was decided to organize a bi-county league. Teams entered include Millville, Bakerton, Martinsburg, Blairton and Berkeley Station.

Jude Faulk, Martinsburg, was elected president; Charles Thompson, Martinsburg, vice president and Max Brown, Charles Town, secretary and treasurer. The board of directors comprises G. Dewey Hill, Millville; Walter Flannagan, Bakerton; J. N. Maisel, Martinsburg; Edward Alder, Berkeley Station, and N. McCarthy, Blairton.

Martinsburg Nine Booked.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., April 5.—The local Blue Sox Baseball Club announced today it will open its 1935 season on May 11 against the Winchester (Va.) Park Association in Winchester. The teams will play a second game in June there also.

First practice for the local team will be held tomorrow.

Randolph-Macon Tops Delaware, Gives 2 Hits

Ashland, Va., April 5 (AP).—Behind the two-hit pitching of Ray Doggett, Randolph-Macon beat the University of Delaware here this afternoon on a wet diamond, 8 to 3.

While Doggett was holding Delaware in check the Jackets batted out timely hits which brought scores. Bair led both teams with three safeties, including two three-baggers.

Shepherdstown High Gives Sports Letters

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Shepherdstown, W. Va., April 5.—A banquet in honor of the Shepherdstown High School Basket Ball Team was held here. The boys' team has established somewhat of a record by winning the county championship for six consecutive years, during which it has been defeated only by the Charles Town High School and by the Harpers Ferry High School.

Virginia Nines Play Five Games

William and Mary Faces North Carolina in Track Dual.

By the Associated Press.

RICHMOND, Va., April 5.—If the weather man will turn off the water, six Virginia baseball teams, rained out for several days, will play five contests tomorrow, while three Old Dominion track teams will get in their first dual meets of the season.

The week-end bill will be headlined by the meeting of William and Mary's fine track team with North Carolina's Southern Conference champions at Chapel Hill, with the visiting Indians conceded an outside chance of upsetting the Tarheels.

Boast Strong Team.

Win, lose or draw they'll show the titleholders one of the finest college trackmen in the South in Monk Little, one of the Nation's finest broad jumpers, a fast performer in the dashes and an almost certain point scorer in the javelin.

Monk turned up in a practice meet with the Newport News Apprentice School team, proving that he's ready for his last year of college competition. He broad-jumped 23 feet 11 inches, well below his record of 25 feet but probably good enough to win at Chapel Hill with Co-Capt. Charlie Hubbard, Conference indoor record holder, nursing a game leg. He'll have to contend with Hubbard in the dashes, however, but Little demonstrated that he's still among the State's speediest by sprinting to victory in the Apprentice School meet in 9.9 seconds in the century. He rounded out his afternoon's work by tossing the javelin 193 feet, and will be gunning for 200 feet in the meet with North Carolina.

No Quarter-miler.

Well fortified in all cinder path events with the exception of the quarter-mile and with good representation in most of the field events and in the hurdles, the Indians probably will give the favored Tarheels a great battle.

Other track meets on the afternoon program will pit Richmond's unusually strong harriers against Davidson at Richmond and Lynchburg against American University at Lynchburg.

The William and Mary baseball team, which broke even in its two tilts with Washington and Lee's Generals, will play Virginia Tech at Williamsburg in the only all-State game on the program, while four other Old Dominion nines are entertaining Northern invaders. Virginia will play Dartmouth, Hampden-Sydney will take on Vermont, Roanoke will play Michigan and Randolph-Macon will clash with Delaware.

Terps Defeat Harvard's Nine, 8-2

Visitors' Errors Are Aid; Loker and Merriman Star on Mound.

UNIVERSITY OF MARYLAND'S baseball team won its third game in as many starts by walloping Harvard, 8-2, yesterday at College Park. It was the first defeat of the campaign for the Crimson, which Thursday conquered Georgetown.

Ford Loker, starting his first varsity game for Maryland, pitched no-hit ball until the fifth inning, when Harvard bunched four bingles to score two runs. Loker finished the inning, but was replaced in the sixth by Dick Merriman, who pitched the remainder of the way, giving only one hit and one walk. Martin Victor hurled creditably for the visitors, but was handicapped by poor support, the Cambridge team making nine errors. Victor gave 10 hits, but about half of them were infield taps.

Scores in Second.

Maryland was the first to score, shoving across a run in the second, when Lyman McAboy beat out a hit to shortstop, stole second, took third on Daly's sacrifice and counted on Hartenstein's long fly to left. In the third the Old Liners registered two more markers. Norwood Sothoron beat out an infield hit and continued to second on Fitzpatrick's poor throw to first. He took third on Stonebraker's sacrifice and scored as King Kong singled to right. Keller swiped second and cashed on McAboy's one-baser.

Harvard's two runs in the fifth came on Maguire's double, singles by Owen, Victor and Prouty, a passed ball and Stonebraker's error.

In the sixth when Maryland clinched the game with five runs there were six Harvard errors. These were combined with singles by Daly, Sothoron and Keller.

Amateur Boxers Vie Tonight; Burke Is Out

KIRKWOOD BURKE, heavyweight sensation of the recent A. A. U. championship tournament, yesterday was withdrawn from the amateur boxing card to be presented at the Auditorium tonight.

Burke, who was scheduled to work five rounds against Steve Kadash, Army champion, was pulled out of the bout by his manager, Joe Bateman, because the latter felt Burke's chances in the national A. A. U. tournament in St. Louis might be jeopardized.

"Kirkwood has a good chance of winning the heavyweight title in the St. Louis tournament," Bateman said, in announcing Burke's withdrawal, "and I think it would be foolish to take a chance on being forced out of the competition by a cut eye or some other injury that might make it impossible for him to compete."

A substitute for Burke has not been arranged by Matchmaker Matt Twomey, but it is considered likely that Bob Coughlin, another Olympic battler, will be pressed into service against Kadash.

The rest of the card for tonight will stand as originally announced, with Lou Gevinson and Steve Thompson, District champions, among those slated to appear.

Immediately after the show, five members of the Olympic Club will prepare to leave for the St. Louis tournament in the company of Twomey. Lou Gevinson and Eddie Saugstedt will make the trip as guests of the District A. A. U., while Danny DeRosa, Willie Feary and Steve Thompson will be sponsored in the tourney by the Olympic A. C.

118 pounds, three rounds, George Pickerel (Olympic A. C.) vs. Private Lough (Fort Monroe, Va.); 130 pounds, three rounds, Billy Bragg (Olympic A. C.) vs. George Shackleford (Merrick Boys Club); 135 pounds, three rounds, Harry Thompson (Olympic A. C.) vs. Phil Scott (Langley Field); 135 pounds, five rounds, Bob Mathias (Olympic A. V. P. I. Nine Bows To William-Mary

By the Associated Press.

Williamsburg, Va., April 5.—William and Mary outhit and outscored V. P. I. here today in the first of a two-game baseball series. They play here again tomorrow.

Daly, Indian pitcher, was wild but stingy with base hits. He walked eight, hit one, and made a wild pitch, but struck out eight and allowed six hits.

V. P. I scored in the second on Russell's walk and Robinnet's hit, and tallied again in the seventh on Harris triple and a long fly.

William and Mary counted two in the second on an error and three hits, four in the third on five hits and a sacrifice and scored again in the fourth on an error and Stewart's two-bagger.

V. P. I. filled the bases in the sixth with one out, but a fast double play shut off the threat.

Baseball Move Dropped.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Clarksburg, W. Va., April 5.—Promoters of organized baseball in Clarksburg have abandoned the movement. When only a dozen fans attended a meeting to plan such a movement, and so little interest shown, it was decided to surrender an option of a franchise in the newly organized Pennsylvania and West Virginia League.

Rally by Twins Turns Back Central

'Butch' Wood Is Wild but Impressive in Debut; Score Is 6 to 5.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

ALEXANDRIA, April 5.—Alexandria High School opened its baseball season this afternoon at Baggett's Stadium, defeating Central High School, 6 to 5, in a game called in the eighth inning, due to rain.

Coach Given, of the Twins, changed his plans at the last minute and started Butch Wood, first-year hurler. Wood performed impressively in his first scholastic start, limiting the Washingtonians to three well scattered hits. He was credited with seven strike-outs, and the only flaw in his performance was lack of control at critical moments. Seven free passes were granted the Centralites, and three of them ultimately resulted in scores.

The Twins took the lead in the first inning, when a walk, two errors and a single by Godfrey netted two runs.

Weakens in Third.

Wood weakened in the third and passed two batters, and a hit and an error accounted for three markers. Central added two more to this total in the fourth. A hit by Valenza scored two men who had been walked. In the same frame the Twins took advantage of a flurry of singles and an error by C. Chumbris to score three runs. Hayes, Central starting pitcher, was replaced by Rowles after the first run came in, but the Alexandrian attack was not halted. The Twins scored the winning run in the sixth. Varney singled in center field and went to second when McMenamin grounded out. Woody Godfrey, Twins' catcher, rapped out a clean single to left field, scoring Varney, and Shu and Fones ended the inning when they grounded out to Chumbris.

Godrey and Varney led the Twins' attack with two hits each in four attempts, while A. Chumbris, Valenza, Di Pretora and Dunlap each got one for Central.

Stock Market In Brisk Turn To Higher Level

Leaders Advance 1 to 2 Points, Including Late Rise of Rail Shares.

By the Associated Press.

New York, April 5.—Rusty stock market wheels were sent spinning at the fastest pace in about a month today by a rejuvenating current from utility shares. Every division of the list was well represented in the widespread advance that sent leaders 1 to 2 or more points net higher, and an unlooked-for thrill was provided at the last minute when railroad shares came roaring up with a burst of speed that theratened seriously to wrest market leadership from utilities.

Transfers of 1,213,500 shares were the largest since March 13, and the Associated Press average of 60 stocks advanced .9 of a point to 37.5, the best gain since February 18.

Fortified by a favorable technical position and an unusual collection of encouraging business news, the market turned up its nose in haughty manner at falling grain prices and an indifferent performance in cotton. A fresh sinking spell in the Holland guilder upset foreign exchange markets, but caused not a ripple of uneveness in equities.

A nest of low-priced common issues was the magnet that drew major trading activity but preferred shares of well known companies also enjoyed a wide market.

Although rail shares had kept fairly well in step with the market in earlier transactions, a burst of speed was put on when the full significance of the more seasonal upturn in car loadings during the week of March 30 was realized.

Industrials, oils and metals also basked in the spotlight of better news. Weekly reviews were optimistic over prospects for retail trade. Increased gasoline consumption held out bright prospects for the oil industry and advancing prices for export copper was the most popular topic of conversation in metal circles.

Argentine Corn Lowers Grains

Chicago, April 5.—Likelihood of enlarged imports of Argentine corn had a good deal to do with material setbacks in prices of all grains today.

It was shown that corn from Argentina can be laid down in Chicago at about the current price of May contracts here, the imported corn to be delivered in time for month-end market settlements. Argentine corn shipments this week totaled 3,138,000 bushels, including 335,000 bushels to the United States.

Corn closed unsettled, ½ to 1½ under yesterday's finish; May, 84¼ to 84⅝; wheat, ⅝ to 1⅜ off; May, 94⅜ to 94¾; oats, ⅞ to 1⅜ down, and provisions varying from 7 cents decline to 7 cents gain.

Wheat was bearishly influenced by weakness of the Liverpool market, with indications that there had been a pronounced pause in demand for wheat abroad. Much moisture, too, was reported in domestic wheat territory Northwest and Southwest as well, except Kansas dry areas. Oats mainly followed corn. Provisions averaged lower with grains, despite hog market upturns.

Cotton was moderately active today, with price movements irregular within a range of 10 or 12 points. The closing tone was steady, net 1 point lower to 7 points higher, with new crop months relatively firm. Offerings increased slightly after the call, but after showing net losses of three or four points under New Orleans and local selling prices steadied on trade buying and covering.

Utility Holding Company Dissolution, Wheeler Railroad Inquiry Seen Strengthening Government Ownership Agitation for the Future.

A Special Correspondent.

New York, April 5.—Regardless of the specific intentions of those who sponsor certain of the public utility and railroad measures now pending in Washington, their effect will be materially to advance the demand for Government ownership. This is the opinion of several able and far-seeing executives in these fields, who are usually not inclined to exaggerate such dangers.

The pending Wheeler-Rayburn bill to dissolve most public utility holding companies would intensify popular resentment against the utility industry to a large degree, it is believed. The bill, in its present form, would force the dissolution of most large utility systems. In the process of dissolution, it will be necessary to pay off first the senior securities of intermediate and top holding companies, so that common stock equities will be largely or wholly wiped out in a great many such cases. These utility holding company common stocks have been distributed quite widely among small investors. A number of these companies, in fact, report having well over 100,000 separate shareholders. It is felt that many of these stockholders will develop strong resentment against private ownership of public utilities in general as a result of their resulting losses, despite the fact that the enactment of the Wheeler-Rayburn bill would be the immediate cause for wiping out their equity.

Would Impair Service Of Some Subsidiaries.

Dissolution of holding company systems will cast adrift a number of smaller operating properties that are not now able to pay their fixed charges without aid from the parent holding company. Also, certain operating subsidiaries need new capital from time to time, but their past record may not give them strong enough credit for this purpose. The result will be bankruptcy for some operating utilities, and inability to raise needed capital for others. Resulting deterioration in service, or inability to expand facilities to meet new demands, will obviously strengthen greatly the popularity of the municipal ownership movement in such communities.

The holding company bill would thus, if enacted, supplement the "yardstick" program in placing at least a part of the public industry in an unfavorable light, by comparison with Government ownership and operation, and hence win favor for the latter.

The Wheeler Senate resolution for the investigation of recent railroad financing is held likely, similarly, to build up sentiment in favor of Government ownership of the rail carriers. The rise in freight rates that the Interstate Commerce Commission has just granted has aroused some bitterness among affected shippers, especially where they have been losing money even without this addition to transportation costs. If, at this juncture, the usual type of sensational congressional investigation is made into railroad financing by Government and private agencies, there would be two influences strengthening popular demand for public ownership.

No Public Demand Found by Eastman.

Co-ordinator of Transportation Eastman has said right along that one basic reason for his not seeking to bring about Government ownership of the railroads, which he favors, immediately is that there is no real public demand for it. With the carriers in their present plight, however, a skillful handling of the financial investigation might conceivably build up such a demand. Not a few railroad executives are emphatic in expressing their belief that the sponsors of the Wheeler resolution had this likely result in mind.

One dangerous aspect of an agitation for Government ownership of the railroads at this time is that not a few security holders, even among financial institutions, may give it tacit, if no active, support. Just as security owners of the New York City transit lines generally favor purchase of these lines by the city government for unification into one city-owned system, because they would thereby realize higher than market prices for their securities, so holders of rail bonds and stocks may come to regard Government purchase as the most likely way of salvaging investments jeopardized by the clouded prospects for railroad earnings under prevailing conditions. So serious a step as the Government's acquisition of a $25,000,000,000 transportation machine may thus be taken without adequate consideration of the "pros" and "cons" merely through arousing popular emotions.

Montgomery Ward Sales for March Highest in History

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, April 5.—Montgomery Ward & Co. today reported that March sales were the largest for that month in the history of the firm. The sales totaled $22,783,089, an increase of $4,470,612, or 24.41 per cent, compared with March, 1934.

Sales for the first two months of the fiscal year, which began February 1, were reported as $40,687,975, an increase of $6,953,605, or 20.61 per cent over a similar period in 1934.

Stocks—Fastest trading pace of past month lifted prices, with utilities shares taking the lead. All divisions were represented in the advance that carried some leaders up more than 2 points. Sales for the session were 1,213,500 shares.

Bonds—Joined stocks in upturn. Utilities averages went to new 1935 highs. Rails and industrials failed to reach the year peak, but recorded like gains. Federals followed the upturn sedately. Trading expanded sharply to $15,117,000.

Curb—Recent quiet upturns accelerated to a broad rally. Utilities, as before, led the advance, with metals, oils and other corporates not far behind. Sales nearly doubled to 258,000 shares.

Grains—Profit-taking sales and low-priced Argentine corn reports depressed prices slightly. Aggressive buying of the past few days was lacking. May wheat closed at 94⅝ and May corn at 84¼, unsettled.

Cotton—Following an irregular morning, prices steadied in sympathy with stock advances. Closes were steady at net advances of 3 to 8 points. May cotton at 10.90.

Sugar—Raw sugar was steady at 3.20, while refined closed unchanged at 4.90 for fine granulated.

Coffee—Spot coffee was quiet. Santos, No. 4, closed at 8¾ to 9, while Rio, No. 7, sold last at 7.

Bar silver—Up to a new high of 61¾ in New York. In London it closed the same at 28 5-16d per ounce. (U. S. equivalent, 61.85.)

Bar gold—Off 4½ pence in London to close at 143 shillings 10½ pence. ($34.89.)

Freight Loads Up 9,705 Cars, Continuing Rise

Report Shows Increase Over Corresponding Figures Last Year.

By R. Karl von Lewinski.

Revenue freight cars loaded on United States railroads during the week ended March 30 bettered the previous week's total by 9,705 cars, according to the Association of American Railroads here.

The increase, which carried total loads to 617,485 cars in the week, sustained an approximately equal increase during the two weeks preceding. For the first time in a month, loads gained on the corresponding week of 1934. Increase over last year was set at 7,295 cars, while the increase over 1933 was reported at 119,129.

Grain and grain products totaled 26,984 cars, an increase of 1,134 above the preceding week, but 539 below 1934 and 7,343 below 1933. In the Western districts loadings were 17,049 cars, a decrease of 269 below 1934.

Live stock totaled 11,023 cars, an increase of 344 above the preceding week, but decreases of 2,521 below 1934 and 3,847 below 1933. In the Western districts loadings were 8,562 cars, a decrease of 2,003 below 1934.

Capital Issues, Motors, Steel, Building, Indicate Revival

"Time to Call a Halt to Pessimism," Says Business Week, Which Also Cites Increased Factory Employment and Extra Dividends in First Quarter.

New York, April 5.—"It is time to call a halt to pessimism," Business Week says in its issue today. "Motor production is reaching the best levels in five years," it continues. "Construction activity is due for a pickup. March starts the ball rolling with a 30 per cent spurt over February. The influence is felt in lumber and cement. Steel production is making a gradual readjustment following the first burst of rush orders. Support is still coming from farm implement, can, and refrigerator makers.

"Carloadings have touched new highs for 1935 in the spring rise, and have a chance to get an edge over last year's figures in the second quarter. Railroads won a small part of their requested rate increase, and a victory in the Supreme Court involving sale of collateral on defaulted loans.

"Capital markets are reopening with a flock of refunding issues. Dividend declaration in the first quarter of 1935 were the largest since the same period of 1932. Some 150 companies have declared extra dividends in the last three months, against 144 in the first quarter of 1934. Increased business volume of 18 per cent is reported up to date by National Cash Register. General Electric is estimated running 30 per cent ahead of the first quarter of 1934. So is Stewart Warner. Kelvinator March shipments reached a new high for the month.

Factory Employment Up.

"Factory employment is increasing; so are pay rolls and hours worked. In February manufacturing plants operated at an average rate of 37 hours per week, better than any month in 1934. The gains are reflected in retail trade. First March chain sales show a 3 per cent gain over 1934. General Foods recently disclosed that last year it sold the largest physical volume of food in its history, breaking even the 1929 record.

"Increased freight rates might bring added zest to steel buying in the second quarter, when consumers also will wish to protect themselves from price advances likely to be posted for the third quarter. In addition, purchases from motor manufacturers overhang the market and are expected to be of fairly substantial proportions. Construction projects should be at hand shortly. The air-conditioning industry, lustiest of infants, also feels the effects of Government orders. The industry looks forward to a small boom this year.

Motor Industry Pressure.

"A $3 reduction in cold-finished steel bars coming from a Detroit mill emphasizes the pressure which the motor industry can put on steel prices. It recalls the moves taken by Ford to make himself less dependent on steel manufacturers. With a big investment being made in a sheet mill, and more recently in a glass factory, Dearborn frankly serves notice on suppliers who might like to jack up prices.

"Business on the West Coast has suffered to some extent by the strike of oil tanker employes. Fear of trouble in textile and motor centers is not pronounced. Power production has succumbed to seasonal influences in the last three weeks, which has narrowed the spread from 1934 to less than 3 per cent. The industry was startled by the report of Federal Trade Commission to the effect that a power shortage was imminent unless new generating capacity was established shortly. Members of the industry were inclined to discount the shortage threat despite the fact that current demand is close to former peak levels and further revival would establish new high records."

Butter Soars As Stocks Dip To Low Record

Chicago, April 5 (AP).—Climbing butter prices today accompanied reports that Chicago stocks of butter were the smallest ever recorded.

Spot butter prices jumped ¾ to 1¾ cents a pound on aggressive buying. Lower grades showed the most strength, with the result that all grades were around the same price an unusual situation in the trade.

Specials were quoted at 35 to 35½ cents and extras and extra firsts at 34½, with firsts 34¼@34½ and standards, 34½. In the futures market April deliveries touched 30¾ cents, a five-year high.

Reports to the trade showed Chicago warehouses early today had only 170,000 pounds of butter, the smallest supply on record, compared with 3,600,000 a year ago.

Santa Fe Net Up $1,267,558

Operating Expenses Increased $8,280,161 During Year.

By the Associated Press.

Topeka, Kans., April 5. — Net operating income of the Santa Fe Railroad increased in 1934 to $15,229,318, a gain of $1,267,558 over 1933, S. T. Bledsoe, president, informed stockholders in his annual report today. Reflecting an improvement in business conditions, the report listed totaled operating revenues of $128,093,947 against $119,826,438 in the previous year, although operating expenses increased $8,280,161 to a total of $102,083,479. Dividend payments totaled $5 a share on preferred stock and $2 a share on common stock.

Despite the severe drought in a large part of the Santa Fe territory, freight carloadings increased 79,393 cars, or 6 per cent over the 1933 figure, with a resulting rise in freight earnings of $7,293,637, or 7.5 per cent.

New Jersey Power & Light Co. has issued its annual report for 1934. In a statement to security holders R. D. Jennison, president, stated that the volume of general business and industrial activity in New Jersey during 1934 showed substantial improvement over the previous year. The increase in operating revenues of New Jersey Power & Light Co., which operates in 346 communities in New Jersey, he said, was an indication of this general improvement, which began late in the spring and continued throughout the balance of the year. Total operating revenues amounted to $4,365,989.29 for 1934, representing an increase of $250,389.76, or 6 per cent over the previous year. Operating expenses increased $173,952.94, or 10 per cent over 1933. Net income was $632,282.03, in comparison with $595,665.86 for 1933.

The United Corporation, utility holding company sponsored by J. P. Morgan & Co. and the Bonbright Interests, has announced the declaration of a dividend of 75 cents on the $3 cumulative preference stock. Action on the dividend was due several weeks ago but it was not ordered at that time because of a provision in the company's charter prohibiting the payment of dividends while net assets were below the stated value represented by the outstanding preference shares.

American Smelting & Refining Co. directors today authorized a distribution of $4.50 on the second preferred stock, thus reducing the accumulated dividends on the issue to $10.50 a share. The company also declared the usual quarterly dividends of $1.75 on the first preferred stock. Both dividends are payable June 1 to stock of record May 10. In January the company ordered a dividend of $3 on the second preferred on account of arrears.

Lumber Shipments Heavy.

By the Associated Press.

Lumber shipments for the week ended March 30 were reported by the National Lumber Manufacturers' Association to have been exceeded only once in 1935. Compared with the corresponding week of 1934, the association said shipments were 10 per cent higher while orders showed an increase of 6 per cent and production was 8 per cent lower.

Chambers Oppose Motor Fuel Tax

Chambers of commerce and trade organizations in every State and territory of the Union have voted overwhelmingly against continuance of the Federal tax on motor fuels, Henry I. Harriman, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, reported to the Ways and Means Committee of the House of Representatives, in discussing revenue revision.

In a referendum submitted to member organizations of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, the question was asked whether or not they favored continuance of the Federal excise tax on gasoline levied in addition to the State taxes. Only 117 votes were in favor of the Federal gasoline tax, whereas 1,909 votes were against it and in favor of leaving this source of revenue wholly to the States.

In his statement to the House Ways and Means Committee, Mr. Harriman stated, "The views thus expressed may fairly be interpreted as a representative expression of business men's organizations throughout the country."

Bond Market Surges Upward In Active Day

By the Associated Press.

New York, April 5.—Bonds joined stocks today in one of the most impressive steps toward recovery in a number of weeks. All domestic categories participated in the upturn, which carried the Associated Press utilities average to a new peak for the year. While the rail and industrial composites were still under their 1935 tops, they advanced almost as much as the power group.

Of particular cheer to dealers was the fact that the trading volume expanded sharply on the rally. Transfers totaled $15,117,000, par value, against $10,556,000 in the previous session.

The news, generally, was interpreted as constructive. Followers of the utilities added to their holdings on the belief that the much-disputed holding company bill, now under discussion at Washington, would be modified if not put over until the next session of Congress.

Among power issues up fractionally to around 3 points or so were International Hydro-Electric 6s at 36¼. Columbia Gas 5s at 83. North American 5s at 93. Laclede Gas 5½s at 61. North American Edison 5½s at 92¾, and Tennessee Electric Power 6s at 97.

The United States Government section followed corporation issues more sedately, but there was a turnover here of some $4,490,000, compared with $2,440,000 Thursday. Gains in the Federals ranged from 1-32d to 8-32ds of a point.

Hopkins Should Resign, Says Georgia Governor

Atlanta, April 5 (AP).—Aroused by National Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins' statement that Georgia should "think of its own school children a little bit," Gov. Eugene Talmadge today said it would be the best thing for this Nation if Hopkins would resign.

Gas Price Readjustment.

New York, April 5 (AP).—Oil circles hear that a general readjustment will be made early next week in retail gasoline prices in Eastern Seaboard States and the Gulf territory. The changes are expected to result in advances in some locations and reductions elsewhere to bring quotations in line with primary bulk market levels.

Lead Production Off.

New York, April 5 (AP).—World lead production in February totaled 123,964 tons, against 124,756 in January, and 116,967 in February, 1934, the American Bureau of Metal Statistics reported today. Production in the United States totaled 24,963 tons, against 27,176 in February, 1934.

Federal Contempt Charges Name 13

Violation of Anti-Trust Injunction Alleged.

Thirteen persons were charged with criminal contempt by the Department of Justice yesterday as a result of alleged violation of an anti-trust injunction against the National Retail Credit Association. The charges were filed in the Federal District Court at St. Louis.

The defendants are alleged to have violated an injunction issued in St. Louis October 6, 1933. It was alleged the association divided the country into 13 districts and refused to deal with non-member agencies.

The credit agencies and business establishments involved are in Mobile, Seattle, Springfield, O., and Wheeling, W. Va.

Disciples' Home Benefits.

For the benefit of the Disciples' Home, the Timothy Class of Ninth Street Christian Church will present the "Timothy Minstrels of 1936" at 8 p. m. Wednesday in Columbia Heights Christian Church. John M. Smith is originator and director of the show.

WHERE PERPETUAL CARE IS MORE THAN A PROMISE

On the Air Today

By Katherine Smith.

HERE is a letter which should not be limited to one reader. So, with what is hoped to be the writer's permission, here is what James H. Logan, of Charlottesville, Va., has to say:

"* * * I have never been urged to write you until recently, when I saw your comment concerning the dramatization of O. Henry's stories for radio. The suggestion brought back many fond memories of last year, when the Royal Players were active under my direction over Charlottesville's station, WEHC.

"Several of O. Henry's stories 'fell' under my pen for dramatization and proved very successful, although the only one I mention with pride is 'The Double-Eyed Deceiver.' (I say 'fell' under my pen because I know O. Henry would have passed up a literary career could he have seen some of the liberties I took with his plots and characters.)

"At the same time I attacked O. Henry with such vigor I also attempted a conquest of some of Robert Louis Stevenson's works. However, in this instance, none besides 'The Sire de Maledroit's Door' ever flourished long enough to reach the air. It was, if I may modestly remark so, a success. I have always wanted to hear it given by professional actors. The character of the Sire de Maledroit offers someone a marvelous opportunity to show their worth.

"All of which is not to tell you about my comparatively unknown group, but to assure you that I and hundreds of others would welcome dramas based on the short stories of authors we've all read as a pleasant relief from the usual 'hokum' that clogs the network drama * * *."

THIS is a pretty full radio day, what with Al Jolson on the air, and Army Day and Godfrey's second amateur show. So let's get down to Army Day programs first.

WJSV will pick up a description of the parade and air maneuvers at 1:30 p. m. Apparatus will be set up on top of the Earle Building, where views are good. WRC will report this scene at the same time from an Army airplane.

Then at 2:30, on WRC, there'll be a broadcast from the reviewing stand with speakers—Secretary Dern, Secretary Swanson, Admiral Standley and others.

At 7 p. m., over WMAL, you'll hear the "Second Annual Army Day Program of Forty and Eight" with Senator Steiwer, Representative Lucas, Frank N. Belgrano and others.

Representative McSwain will speak at a gathering of Jewish War Veterans at 4 p. m., over WMAL.

Brig. Gen. William Mitchell, retired, will speak on WJSV, 8:45 p. m.; Senator Reynolds will speak on "Army Day," WRC, at 9 p. m.; the Military Order of the World War will hold a banquet at 10:30 on WMAL, when Senator Sheppard will be the principal speaker.

NOW, to wind up the rest of the day's events.

Al Jolson, Max and Buddy Baer, Miriam Hopkins, the singing team of Jack Stanton and Peggy Gardner, Benay Venuta and Victor Young's orchestra will put on a show for Shell, 9:30 p. m., WRC.

Sigmund Romberg will put on a version of "Chu Chin Chow," 8 p. m., WRC.

American Bowling Congress description will come through WJSV, 10:45 p. m. The program originates in Syracuse, where bowling has been going on since March 1.

Thornton Fisher's sports talks take a new time beginning today. Hereafter they will be heard on WRC at 7:45 p. m.

THE second edition of Godfrey's amateur show goes on WJSV at 6:45 p. m. Judges will be Mary Morse, acting radio editor of the Herald; Don Craig, dramatic editor of the News, and Robert DeVore, staff writer of The Post.

Francis Sherlock Cunningham, 35, 1201 G street northwest, singer and instrumentalist. Selection, "I Like Mountain Music."

Sidney Jamison Dwight, 20, 1714 Twenty-fifth street southeast, singer. Selection, "Stay as Sweet as You Are."

Bakshian Arman, 21, 1625 Connecticut avenue, singer. Selection, "You and the Night and the Music."

THURSDAY, APRIL 18, 1935—
THOS. J. OWEN & SON, Auctioneers.
1431 EYE ST. N.W.

Trustee's Sale of Improved Real Estate, Known as the Arcade or Arcadia Properties, Fourteenth Street and Park Road Northwest, Consisting of a Three-story Building Fronting on Fourteenth Street, Occupied by Market, Stores, Bowling Alleys, Billiard Room, and by a Ball Room; also Addition Thereto Used as a Public Garage with Entrance on Park Road, and also Consisting of a Three-story Apartment House and Store Building, Containing Six Apartments and Two Stores, Fronting on Park Road; also Properties Known as 1410-1420 Park Road Northwest, Containing Five Stores and Three Apartments; Together With Certain Accessories and Equipment.

By virtue of a certain deed of trust executed by Washington Arcade Company, and duly recorded in Liber 6078, folio 179 et seq., one of the land records of the District of Columbia, and pursuant to an order for foreclosure and sale thereunder entered by the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, on the 19th day of December, 1934, as amended by order of said court dated March 8, 1935, in Equity Cause No. 54772, the undersigned trustees will sell at public auction, in the front entrance of the premises on Fourteenth Street, on THURSDAY, THE EIGHTEENTH OF APRIL, 1935, AT TWO O'CLOCK P. M., the following property as set forth and described in said deed of trust: All that tract or parcel of land, together with improvements, easements, rights, ways and appurtenances thereunto belonging, situate, lying and being in the County of Washington, District of Columbia: Lot numbered five hundred and twenty-five (525) in Harry K. Bliss' subdivision of part of lot numbered twenty-nine (29) of John Sherman's subdivision of part of "Mount Pleasant," as per plat recorded in the office of the surveyor for the District of Columbia, in Liber County 2, at folio 14; said property formerly known for purposes of assessment and taxation as lot numbered five hundred and twenty-five (525) in square numbered twenty-six hundred and seventy-four (2674). Lot numbered seven hundred and six (706) in the combination made by New Arcade Co.'s company of lot and parts of lot in John Sherman's subdivision of "Pleasant Plains," as per plat of said combination, recorded in the office of the surveyor for the District of Columbia, in Liber 52, at folio 31, except the rear or west 5 feet of said lot condemned and taken for alley purposes by proceedings in District Court Cause No. 1553, in the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, and shown on plat in the surveyor's office, in Liber 74, at folio 180, and being also known for purposes of assessment and taxation as lot 844, in square 2674; subject to the 16-ft. 6-in. way for alley purposes, as set out and described in agreement recorded in Liber 5178, at folio 114, among the land records of the District of Columbia. Also all furniture, fixtures, engines, boilers, machinery, belting, shafting, tanks, pipes and fittings, electrical apparatus, refrigerating machines, condensers, coolers, tanks, refrigerating boxes, counters, stalls, incinerator, pool tables, billiard tables, bowling alleys, chairs, piano and all accessories and equipment of every description, which the Riggs National Bank, as trustee, as aforesaid, has a right to sell and convey under the terms of said deed of trust. Together with all and singular the tenements, hereditaments and appurtenances belonging or in any way appertaining to the aforesaid property or any part thereof, with the reversion and reversions, remainder and remainders, rents, issues and profits thereof, and all the estate, right, title, interest and claims whatsoever at law or in equity, which the Riggs National Bank as trustee, as aforesaid, has a right to sell and convey under the terms of said deed of trust. Subject, however, to all existing leases, tenancies and rent agreements, the nature and extent of which will be made known at the time of sale.

Terms of sale: One-fifth of the purchase money to be paid in cash, balance in four equal installments, payable in one, two, three and four years, with interest at 5 per cent per annum, payable semi-annually from day of sale, secured by first deed of trust upon the property sold, or all cash, at the option of the purchaser. A deposit of $10,000 in cash or certified check on a local bank or trust company will be required at time of sale. Examination of title, conveyancing, recording, revenue stamps, etc., at cost of purchaser. Terms of sale to be complied with within thirty days after ratification by the court, otherwise the trustee reserves the right to resell the property at the risk and cost of defaulting purchaser, after five days' advertisement of such resale in some newspaper published in Washington, D. C., or deposit may be forfeited, or without forfeiting deposit, trustee may avail itself of any legal or equitable rights against the defaulting purchaser. Taxes, rents, insurance and water rents to be adjusted to date of sale. The sale hereunder shall be made subject to the ratification by the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia in said equity cause.

Relief Worker Killed, 6 Hurt in Slum Work

Chicago, April 4 (AP).—One relief worker was killed and six more injured yesterday when a three-story building which they were wrecking on the site of the Federal Government's South Side slum clearance project collapsed. The dead man, Louis Waltczek, 38, was pulled from under a pile of bricks and timbers by firemen.

Thomas Visions Fascist Party In United States

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Chapel Hill, N. C., April 5.—Conflicts in the world's social-economic trends and proposed solutions were described here today by three high authorities in their respective fields—Dr. Shailer Mathews, former dean of the University of Chicago Divinity School and noted author and lecturer; Norman Thomas, leader of the Socialist Party, and George Soule, jr., editor of the New Republic.

Speaking at the morning session, Dr. Mathews, recently returned from a tour of the Far East, asserted that "already the new Asiatic industrial efficiency is destroying European and American markets."

Mr. Thomas, addressing the afternoon session, on "Trends Toward Fascism," asserted "the trends toward Fascism in America are many and marked. The victory of some form of Fascism, perhaps a confused and partially regional Fascism within the next decade is highly probable," he declared. "It is not inevitable. There is still time to fight it and fight it successfully. The only alternative to the totalitarian state of Fascism and the Fascist type of dictatorship is the cooperative commonwealth of Socialism."

Mr. Soule, delivering the second of the series of three Weil lectures tonight, asserted that the purpose of liberty is the achievement of "more economic equality, and for this end to us the Democratic processes of some sort."

The institute, which is regarded as the most successful of the three held thus far and which has drawn record crowds, including many from nearby towns, will close tomorrow.

20 Rioters Face Murder Charges

New Mexico to Revive Old Statute in Slaying.

By the Associated Press.

Gallup, N. Mex., April 5.—Attorney General Frank Patton announced tonight he expected to charge perhaps 20 men with murder as a result of the wild street riot here in which two men were slain.

Charges will be based largely on evidence piled up at a coroner's inquest today.

Dr. P. L. Ravers and Deputy Sheriff D. W. Roberts headed the list of witnesses, with testimony pointing to Ignacio Velarde, unemployed miner whom Roberts killed, or Solomon L. Esquibel, who was injured seriously, as slayers of Sheriff M. R. Carmichael.

The sheriff and the miner were killed in a fight which followed an attempt yesterday to deliver three prisoners held for trespassing in a house from which one of them had been evicted.

Murder charges will be filed, Patton said, under a little used statute dating back to territorial days, which provides the charge for persons participating in a "riotous or tumultuous assembly" in which an officer is killed.

French Girl Loses Suit Against Loew

Insufficient Evidence of Betrayal Presented.

By the Associated Press.

New York, April 5.—The $100,000 seduction suit against Arthur M. Loew, wealthy film executive, was dismissed late today when Supreme Court Justice Aaron Levy ruled the plaintiff, Collette Francois, 21-year-old Parisian, had failed to present sufficient evidence.

Mlle. Francois charged Loew was the father of her 4-year-old daughter, Catherine, and that the theater executive had promised her a movie career.

Conscientious Juror 'Sees' Movie Blindfold

Birmingham, Ala., April 5 (AP).—A blindfold and a Bible combined today to allow members of a grand jury to see a motion picture and to keep clear the conscience of one of its members, the Rev. Arthur O. Garner, who does not "believe in such entertainment."

Eleven jurors wanted to see the movie, but the law provides that the members of the jury must remain together.

After arguments, a happy solution presented itself. Mr. Garner attended the movie, his back to the screen and a blindfold over his eyes.

In return for this compromise with his conscience, Mr. Garner was allowed to give a Bible reading and a 30-minute sermon to the other jurors.

The Federal Diary

(Trade-Mark Applied For.)

By Morgan Baker.

FURTHER tabulations of the Sirovich questionnaires reveal some unexpected data regarding the number of married women in Government service. More than 350,000 of the questionnaires were sent to Government employes of all departments except the Postoffice, in order to obtain information needed for the House Civil Service Committee. They are being tabulated by officers of the American Federation of Government Employes.

BAKER.

The number of married women in the field service is less than 5 per cent of the total, on the basis of 50,000 questionnaires examined. The actual percentage is 4.69. Single women constitute 16.70 per cent of the total, whereas of the men, who make up 83.30 per cent of the total employes in the field, it appears that 67.31 per cent of all employes were married men and 15.99 per cent single men.

In Washington the percentage of married women is higher, on the basis of 8,000 questionnaires tabulated. This shows that of this group of 8,000 Government employes, 8.77 per cent are married women; 23.96 single women; 50.39 per cent married men and 16.88 per cent single men. It should be borne in mind that these figures do not give any indication of the number of husbands and wives both of whom are in the Government service and hence subject to Section 213 (marriage clause) of the economy act. But inasmuch as the total of all married women in the field amounts to only 4.69 per cent of employes, and the percentage in the District is only 8.77, the probabilities are that the number of husbands and wives employed by the Government is small.

Most of the married women undoubtedly are married to men outside the Government service, and it is probably true that a great number of these husbands are unemployed, if not incapable of employment by reason of disabilities. It is generally known that the wives of a considerable number of disabled veterans are in the Government service.

John H. Lucas Retires.

Completing more than 30 years Government service, John H. Lucas, in charge of Paint Shop, Weather Bureau, yesterday went on leave prior to his rtirement effective April 30. On behalf of his fellow workers, Dr. Willis R. Gregg, bureau director, presented Mr. Lucas with a watch and paid tribute to his efficient work.

Mr. Lucas has worked at the Library of Congress, the White House and Government Printing Office, but most of his service was at Weather Bureau. During his retirement he hopes to devote some time to his hobby, fishing. Mr. Lucas resides at 1372 Kenyon street northwest.

Government Printing Office alumni expect a record attendance at their oyster roast and barbeque from 6:30 to 10:30 p. m. today at N. Auth's & Co., Seventh and D streets southwest.

Veterans Bureau Retirements.

Franklin J. Robinson, adjudicator in Widows' and Dependents' Claim Service. Mr. Robinson has had more than 44 years' Government service. He resides at 23 Wine avenue, Hyattsville, Md.

Mrs. Ellen W. Hodges (P), clerk in Widows' and Dependents' Claim Service. Mrs. Hodges has had approximately 20 years' Government service. She resides at 3840 Thirty-second street, Mount Rainier, Md.

Roy R. Reppert, (F), Agriculture, is the inventor of an apparatus for exterminating weevils from cowpeas, corn, beans and other plants. The device employs heat and a number of revolving drums, carrying screw conveyors.

Diary Guest Tickets.

Army Day in Washington.

April flowers and sunshine, and soon we shall hear the beat
Of martial music and thunder of troops marching down the street.
Rumors are flying of wars to come in the lands across the sea,
And I close my heart to the memories that the jonquils bring to me.

April, nineteen-seventeen, and the troops were marching by.
We were young as the jonquils, gay as the April sky,
Thrilled to the core with the glory that follows the roll of the drum,
With never a thought of the pain and grief that must shadow the years to come.

April again, and young hearts stir to the sound of marching feet,
But, oh, the memories that march with our Army down the street!

MRS. MARQUERITE WILCOX (P)
Interstate Commerce Commission.

OPPORTUNITIES for improving Federal personnel conditions by legislative enactment were discussed by Miss Gertrude McNally, secretary-treasurer, National Federation of Federal Employes, in an address before a largely attended meeting of Labor Department branch of Local Union No. 2.

Miss McNally pointed out that legislation of this character is important not only to the men and women who are making a career in Federal service, but is important to all citizens whose taxes pay for the support of governmental agencies.

"The upbuilding of Federal employe organization is essential if the workers' constructive objectives are to be achieved," the employe leader declared in urging vigorous participation in the current N. F. F. E. membership campaign.

Miss Bertha Blair, president of the Labor branch of No. 2, introduced Miss McNally. Joseph Stansfield, president of No. 2, spoke on organization matters.

Leland Barrows (P), special assistant to the director, Soil Erosion Service, is receiving congratulations upon his marriage to Miss Irene Conley at Leesburg, Va. Both Mr. and Mrs. Barrows originally came from Lawrence, Kans. He is at present directing plans for an educational exhibit portraying the work of the service.

Postoffice Complimented.

A letter postmarked "Canada" and addressed to "The Author of Psychology of the Inventor, Washington, D. C." has just reached Dr. Joseph Rossman, examiner at Patent Office. Dr. Rossman, author of the volume, in addition to other books on inventions and patents, is complimenting the Postoffice Department upon delivering the letter. He has added the envelope to his collection of oddities.

Relief Head Held On Slander Charge

By the Associated Press.

San Juan, Puerto Rico, April 5.—James R. Bourne, Federal relief administrator of Puerto Rico, was arrested late today on a charge of slandering the Legislature.

Slander, said the warrant, consisted in Bourne's alleged statement "there are criminals in the Legislature." Bourne denied making the statement and was released under $200 bond.

His arrest climaxed charges by the coalition legislative majority that the relief administration is being used politically to rehabilitate the Liberal minority.

Bourne has been bitterly attacked recently in both bodies of the Puerto Rican Legislature. The House adopted a resolution declaring him "persona non grata because of alleged political favoritism to the Liberal Party.

Cherry Blossom Theft Costs Man Fine of $10

His admiration for the Tidal Basin cherry blossoms cost John E. LaVelle, 26, of the 300 block of D street northwest, $10 in Police Court yesterday.

Park Policeman W. J. McFeeley testified he saw LaVelle place several large sprigs of cherry blossoms in the rear of an automobile. The blooms were on branches nearly 5 feet long, the policeman declared.

Fraud Charges Lead to Attack Upon the PWA

Lawyer for Accused Texans Asks Dismissal on Constitutional Grounds.

Citing 33 reasons why an indictment charging them and four others with conspiring to defraud the United States is invalid, Leonard C. Hammond, Harry W. Cole and James P. Barry, all of Texas, yesterday asked that the indictment be quashed in the District Supreme Court.

Prior to the attack, Charles R. Olberg, formerly an engineer with the PWA here, had lost an attempt to have the indictment held invalid on the theory that the special grand jury that returned it had not been lawfully seated.

Hammond, Cole and Barry contended that the indictment did not allege facts sufficient to make out an offense, that there was no showing that even if redwood pipe had been substituted instead of a gravitation system that the Government would have lost money on the Willacy County, Tex., irrigation project, and that the Government assertion that the seven alleged conspirators would have profited to the extent of $400,000 was a "mere conclusion of law."

George P. Hoover, attorney, representing the Texans, also contended the act of Congress creating the NRA and another act, creating the Federal Emergency Administration of Public Works, were both unconstitutional and void.

Three of the seven defendants have yet to make their court appearance. They are William A. Harding, Frank P. McElwarth and Perry A. Welty. Argument on the Hoover motion will be heard next week.

Five Seize Auto, Flee Reformatory

Youthful Fugitives Seen Headed for St. Louis.

By the Associated Press.

Jefferson City, Mo., April 5.—Five young prisoners escaped late today from the State Intermediate Reformatory at Algoa, near here, where all were serving sentences for robbery.

As one of the convicts worked on an automobile owned by a prison employe, the other four, assigned to tasks about the reformatory, suddenly ran to the machine. The five jumped in and sped away. When last seen they were on Highway U. S. 50, apparently headed toward St. Louis.

Reformatory officials identified the five fugitives as George Perrey, 19, and Raymond Sprost, 18, both of Grand Rapids, Mich.; Albert Chaplin, 23, St. Louis; James Elrod, 19, St. Louis, and Cecil Walker Eskew, 17.
